GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT, 1919.

(9 & 10 GEO. 5, CH. 101.)

An Act to make further provision with respect to the government of India.

[23rd December, 1919.]

WHEREAS it is the declared policy of Parliament to provide for the increasing association of Indians in every branch of Indian administration, and for the gradual development of self-governing institutions, with a view to the progressive realisation of responsible government in British India as an integral part of the empire:

And whereas progress in giving effect to this policy can only be achieved by successive stages, and it is expedient that substantial steps in this direction should now be taken:

And whereas the time and manner of each advance can be determined only by Parliament, upon whom responsibility lies for the welfare and advancement of the Indian peoples:

And whereas the action of Parliament in such matters must be guided by the co-operation received from those on whom new opportunities of service will be conferred, and by the extent to which it is found that confidence can be reposed in their sense of responsibility:

And whereas concurrently with the gradual development of self-governing institutions in the Provinces of India it is expedient to give to those Provinces in provincial matters the largest measure of independence of the Government of India, which is compatible with the due discharge by the latter of its own responsibilities:

Be it therefore enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

PART I.

LOCAL GOVERNMENTS.

Classification of central and provincial subjects.

1.—(1) Provision may be made by rules under the Government of India Act, 1915, as amended by the Government of India (Amendment) Act, 1916 (which Act, as so amended, is in this Act referred to as "the principal Act")—

(a) for the classification of subjects, in relation to the functions of government, as central and provincial subjects, for the purpose of distinguishing the functions of local governments and local legislatures from the functions of the Governor-General in Council and the Indian legislature;

(b) for the devolution of authority in respect of provincial subjects to local governments, and for the allocation of revenues or other moneys to those governments;

(c) for the use under the authority of the Governor-General in Council of the agency of local governments in relation to central subjects, in so far as such agency may be found convenient, and for determining the financial conditions of such agency; and

(d) for the transfer from among the provincial subjects of subjects (in this Act referred to as "transferred subjects") to the administration of the governor acting with ministers appointed under this Act, and for the allocation of revenues or moneys for the purpose of such administration.

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing powers, rules made for the above-mentioned purposes may—

(i) regulate the extent and conditions of such devolution, allocation, and transfer;

(ii) provide for fixing the contributions payable by local governments to the Governor-General in Council, and making such contributions a first charge on allocated revenues or moneys;

(iii) provide for constituting a finance department in any province, and regulating the functions of that department;

(iv) provide for regulating the exercise of the authority vested in the local government of a province over members of the public services therein;

(v) provide for the settlement of doubts arising as to whether any matter does or does not relate to a provincial subject or a transferred subject, and for the treatment of matters which affect both a transferred subject and a subject which is not transferred; and

(vi) make such consequential and supplemental provisions as appear necessary or expedient:

Provided that, without prejudice to any general power of revoking or altering rules under the principal Act, the rules shall not authorise the revocation or suspension of the transfer of any subject except with the sanction of the Secretary of State in Council.

(3) The powers of superintendence, direction, and control over local governments vested in the Governor-General in Council under the principal Act shall, in relation to transferred subjects, be exercised only for such purposes as may be specified in rules made under that Act, but the Governor-General in Council shall be the sole judge as to whether the purpose of the exercise of such powers in any particular case comes within the purposes so specified.

(4) The expressions "central subjects" and "provincial subjects" as used in this Act mean subjects so classified under the rules.

Provincial subjects, other than transferred subjects, are in this Act referred to as "reserved subjects."

Borrowing powers of local governments.

2.—(1) The provision in sub-section (1) of section thirty of the principal Act, which gives power to local governments to raise money on real or personal estate within the limits of their respective governments by way of mortgage or otherwise, shall have effect as though that provision conferred a power on local governments to raise money on the security of their allocated revenues, and to make proper assurances for that purpose.

(2) Provision may be made by rules under the principal Act as to the conditions under which the power to raise loans on the security of allocated revenues shall be exercised.

(3) The provision in sub-section (1) of section thirty of the principal Act, which enables the Secretary of State in Council with the concurrence of a majority of votes at a meeting of the Council of India to prescribe provisions or conditions limiting the power to raise money, shall cease to have effect as regards the power to raise money on the security of allocated revenues.

Revised system of local government in certain provinces.

3.—(1) The presidencies of Fort William in Bengal, Fort St. George, and Bombay, and the provinces known as the United Provinces, the Punjab, Bihar and Orissa, the Central Provinces, and Assam, shall each be governed, in relation to reserved subjects, by a governor in council, and in relation to transferred subjects (save as otherwise provided by this Act) by the governor acting with ministers appointed under this Act.

The said presidencies and provinces are in this Act referred to as "governor's provinces" and the two first-named presidencies are in this Act referred to as the presidencies of Bengal and Madras.

(2) The provisions of section forty-six to fifty-one of the principal Act, as amended by this Act, shall apply to the United Provinces, the Punjab, Bihar and Orissa, the Central Provinces, and Assam, as they apply to the presidencies of Bengal, Madras, and Bombay: Provided that the governors of the said provinces shall be appointed after consultation with the Governor-General.

4.—(1) The governor of a governor's province may, by notification, appoint ministers, not being members of his executive council or other officials, to administer transferred subjects, and any ministers so appointed shall hold office during his pleasure. Appointment of ministers and council secretaries.

There may be paid to any minister so appointed in any province the same salary as is payable to a member of the executive council in that province, unless a smaller salary is provided by vote of the legislative council of the province.

(2) No minister shall hold office for a longer period than six months, unless he is or becomes an elected member of the local legislature.

(3) In relation to transferred subjects, the governor shall be guided by the advice of his ministers, unless he sees sufficient cause to dissent from their opinion, in which case he may require action to be taken otherwise than in accordance with that advice: Provided that rules may be made under the principal Act for the temporary administration of a transferred subject where, in cases of emergency, owing to a vacancy, there is no minister in charge of the subject, by such authority and in such manner as may be prescribed by the rules.

(4) The governor of a governor's province may at his discretion appoint from among the non-official members of the local legislature council secretaries, who shall hold office during his pleasure, and discharge such duties in assisting members of the executive council and ministers, as he may assign to them.

There shall be paid to council secretaries so appointed such salary as may be provided by vote of the legislative council.

A council secretary shall cease to hold office if he ceases for more than six months to be a member of the legislative council.

5.—(1) The provision in section forty-seven of the principal Act, that two of the members of the executive council of the governor of a province must have been for at least twelve years in the service of the Crown in India, shall have effect as though "one" were substituted for "two," and the provision in that section that the Commander-in-Chief of His Majesty's Forces in India, if resident at Calcutta, Madras, or Bombay, shall, during his continuance there, be a member of the governor's council, shall cease to have effect. Qualification of members of local executive councils.

(2) Provision may be made by rules under the principal Act as to the qualifications to be required in respect of members of the executive council of the governor of a province in any case where such provision is not made by section forty-seven of the principal Act as amended by this section.

6.—(1) All orders and other proceedings of the government of a governor's province shall be expressed to be made by the government of the province, and shall be authenticated as the governor may by rule direct, so, however, that provision shall be made by rule for distinguishing orders and other proceedings relating to transferred subjects from other orders and proceedings. Business of governor in council and governor with ministers.

Orders and proceedings authenticated as aforesaid shall not be called into question in any legal proceeding on the ground that they were not duly made by the government of the province.

(2) The governor may make rules and orders for the more convenient transaction of business in his executive council and with his ministers, and every order made or act done in accordance with those rules and orders shall be treated as being the order or the act of the government of the province.

The governor may also make rules and orders for regulating the relations between his executive council and his ministers for the purpose of the transaction of the business of the local government:

Provided that any rules or orders made for the purposes specified in this section which are repugnant to the provisions of any rules made under the principal Act as amended by this Act shall, to the extent of that repugnancy, but not otherwise, be void.

Composition of governors' legislative councils.

7.—(1) There shall be a legislative council in every governor's province, which shall consist of the members of the executive council and of the members nominated or elected as provided by this Act.

The governor shall not be a member of the legislative council, but shall have the right of addressing the council, and may for that purpose require the attendance of its members.

(2) The number of members of the governors' legislative councils shall be in accordance with the table set out in the First Schedule to this Act; and of the members of each council not more than twenty per cent. shall be official members, and at least seventy per cent. shall be elected members:

Provided that—

(a) subject to the maintenance of the above proportions, rules under the principal Act may provide for increasing the number of members of any council, as specified in that schedule; and

(b) the governor may, for the purposes of any Bill introduced or proposed to be introduced in his legislative council, nominate, in the case of Assam one person, and in the case of other provinces not more than two persons, having special knowledge or experience of the subject-matter of the Bill, and those persons shall, in relation to the Bill, have for the period for which they are nominated all the rights of members of the council, and shall be in addition to the numbers above referred to; and

(c) members nominated to the legislative council of the Central Provinces by the governor as the result of elections held in the Assigned Districts of Berar shall be deemed to be elected members of the legislative council of the Central Provinces.

(3) The powers of a governor's legislative council may be exercised notwithstanding any vacancy in the council.

(4) Subject as aforesaid, provision may be made by rules under the principal Act as to—

(a) the term of office of nominated members of governors' legislative councils, and the manner of filling casual vacancies occurring by reason of absence of members from India, inability to attend to duty, death, acceptance of office, resignation duly accepted, or otherwise; and

(b) the conditions under which and manner in which persons may be nominated as members of governors' legislative councils; and

(c) the qualification of electors, the constitution of constituencies, and the method of election for governors' legislative councils, including the number of members to be elected by communal and other electorates, and any matters incidental or ancillary thereto; and

(d) the qualifications for being and for being nominated or elected a member of any such council; and

(e) the final decision of doubts or disputes as to the validity of any election; and

(f) the manner in which the rules are to be carried into effect:

Provided that rules as to any such matters as aforesaid may provide for delegating to the local government such power as may be specified in the rules of making subsidiary regulations affecting the same matters.

(5) Subject to any such rules any person who is a ruler or subject of any State in India may be nominated as a member of a governor's legislative council.

8.—(1) Every governor's legislative council shall continue for three years from its first meeting: Sessions and duration of governors' legislative councils.

Provided that—

(a) the council may be sooner dissolved by the governor; and

(b) the said period may be extended by the governor for a period not exceeding one year, by notification in the official gazette of the province, if in special circumstances (to be specified in the notification) he so think fit; and

(c) after the dissolution of the council the governor shall appoint a date not more than six months or, with the sanction of the Secretary of State, not more than nine months from the date of dissolution for the next session of the council.

(2) A governor may appoint such times and places for holding the sessions of his legislative council as he thinks fit, and may also, by notification or otherwise, prorogue the council.

(3) Any meeting of a governor's legislative council may be adjourned by the person presiding.

(4) All questions in a governor's legislative council shall be determined by a majority of votes of the members present other than the person presiding, who shall, however, have and exercise a casting vote in the case of an equality of votes.

9.—(1) There shall be a president of a governor's legislative council, who shall, until the expiration of a period of four years from the first meeting of the council as constituted under this Act, be a person appointed by the governor, and shall thereafter be a member of the council elected by the council and approved by the governor: Presidents of governors' legislative councils.

Provided that if at the expiration of such period of four years the council is in session, the president then in office shall continue in office until the end of the current session, and the first election of a president shall take place at the commencement of the next ensuing session.

(2) There shall be a deputy-president of a governor's legislative council who shall preside at meetings of the council in the absence of the president, and who shall be a member of the council elected by the council and approved by the governor.

(3) The appointed president of a council shall hold office until the date of the first election of a president by the council under this section, but he may resign office by writing under his hand addressed to the governor, or may be removed from office by order of the governor, and any vacancy occurring before the expiration of the term of office of an appointed president shall be filled by a similar appointment for the remainder of such term.

(4) An elected president and a deputy-president shall cease to hold office on ceasing to be members of the council. They may resign office by writing under their hands addressed to the governor, and may be removed from office by a vote of the council with the concurrence of the governor.

(5) The president and the deputy-president shall receive such salaries as may be determined, in the case of an appointed president, by the governor, and in the case of an elected president or deputy-president, by an Act of the local legislature.

10.—(1) The local legislature of any province has power, subject to the provisions of this Act, to make laws for the peace and good government of the territories for the time being constituting that province. Powers of local legislatures

(2) The local legislature of any province may, subject to the provisions of the sub-section next following, repeal or alter as to that province any law made either before or after the commencement of this Act by any authority in British India other than that local legislature.

(3) The local legislature of any province may not, without the previous sanction of the Governor-General, make or take into consideration any law—

(a) imposing or authorising the imposition of any new tax unless the tax is a tax scheduled as exempted from this provision by rules made under the principal Act; or

(b) affecting the public debt of India, or the customs duties, or any other tax or duty for the time being in force and imposed by the authority of the Governor-General in Council for the general purposes of the government of India, provided that the imposition or alteration of a tax scheduled as aforesaid shall not be deemed to affect any such tax or duty; or

(c) affecting the discipline or maintenance of any part of His Majesty's naval, military, or air forces; or

(d) affecting the relations of the government with foreign princes or states; or

(e) regulating any central subject; or

(f) regulating any provincial subject which has been declared by rules under the principal Act to be, either in whole or in part, subject to legislation by the Indian legislature, in respect of any matter to which such declaration applies; or

(g) affecting any power expressly reserved to the Governor-General in Council by any law for the time being in force; or

(h) altering or repealing the provisions of any law which, having been made before the commencement of this Act by any authority in British India other than that local legislature, is declared by rules under the principal Act to be a law which cannot be repealed or altered by the local legislature without previous sanction; or

(i) altering or repealing any provision of an Act of the Indian legislature made after the commencement of this Act, which by the provisions of that Act may not be repealed or altered by the local legislature without previous sanction:

Provided that an Act or a provision of an Act made by a local legislature, and subsequently assented to by the Governor-General in pursuance of this Act, shall not be deemed invalid by reason only of its requiring the previous sanction of the Governor-General under this Act.

(4) The local legislature of any province has not power to make any law affecting any Act of Parliament.

iess and lure in nors' ative ils.

11.—(1) Sub-sections (1) and (3) of section eighty of the principal Act (which relate to the classes of business which may be transacted at meetings of local legislative councils) shall cease to apply to a governor's legislative council, but the business and procedure in any such council shall be regulated in accordance with the provisions of this section.

(2) The estimated annual expenditure and revenue of the province shall be laid in the form of a statement before the council in each year, and the proposals of the local government for the appropriation of provincial revenues and other moneys in any year shall be submitted to the vote of the council in the form of demands for grants. The council may assent, or refuse its assent, to a demand, or may reduce the amount therein referred to either by a reduction of the whole grant or by the omission or reduction of any of the items of expenditure of which the grant is composed:

Provided that—

(a) the local government shall have power, in relation to any such demand, to act as if it had been assented to, notwithstanding the withholding of such assent or the reduction of the amount therein referred to, if the demand relates to a reserved subject, and the governor certifies that the expenditure provided for by the demand is essential to the discharge of his responsibility for the subject; and

(b) the governor shall have power in cases of emergency to authorise such expenditure as may be in his opinion necessary for the safety or tranquillity of the province, or for the carrying on of any department; and

(c) no proposal for the appropriation of any such revenues or other moneys for any purpose shall be made except on the recommendation of the governor, communicated to the council.

(3) Nothing in the foregoing sub-section shall require proposals to be submitted to the council relating to the following heads of expenditure:

(i) contributions payable by the local government to the Governor-General in Council; and

(ii) interest and sinking fund charges on loans; and

(iii) expenditure of which the amount is prescribed by or under any law; and

(iv) salaries and pensions of persons appointed by or with the approval of His Majesty or by the Secretary of State in Council; and

(v) salaries of judges of the High Court of the province and of the Advocate-General.

If any question arises whether any proposed appropriation of moneys does or does not relate to the above heads of expenditure, the decision of the governor shall be final.

(4) Where any Bill has been introduced or is proposed to be introduced, or any amendment to a Bill is moved or proposed to be moved, the governor may certify that the Bill or any clause of it or the amendment affects the safety or tranquillity of his province or any part of it or of another province, and may direct that no proceedings or no further proceedings shall be taken by the council in relation to the Bill, clause or amendment, and effect shall be given to any such direction.

(5) Provision may be made by rules under the principal Act for the purpose of carrying into effect the foregoing provisions of this section and for regulating the course of business in the council, and as to the persons to preside over meetings thereof in the absence of the president and deputy-president, and the preservation of order at meetings; and the rules may provide for the number of members required to constitute a quorum, and for prohibiting or regulating the asking of questions on and the discussion of any subject specified in the rules.

(6) Standing orders may be made providing for the conduct of business and the procedure to be followed in the council, in so far as these matters are not provided for by rules made under the principal Act. The first standing orders shall be made by the governor in council, but may, subject to the assent of the governor, be altered by the local legislatures. Any standing order made as aforesaid which is repugnant to the provisions of any rules made under the principal Act, shall, to the extent of that repugnancy but not otherwise, be void.

(7) Subject to the rules and standing orders affecting the council, there shall be freedom of speech in the governors' legislative councils. No person shall be liable to any proceedings in any court by reason of his speech or vote in any such council, or by reason of anything contained in any official report of the proceedings of any such council.

12.—(1) Where a Bill has been passed by a local legislative council, the governor, lieutenant-governor or chief commissioner may, instead of declaring that he assents to or withholds his assent from the Bill, return the Bill to the council for reconsideration, either in whole or in part, together with any amendments which he may recommend, or, in cases prescribed by rules under the principal Act may, and if the rules so require shall, reserve the Bill for the consideration of the Governor-General. Return and reservation of Bills.

(2) Where a Bill is reserved for the consideration of the Governor-General, the following provisions shall apply :—

(a) The governor, lieutenant-governor or chief commissioner may, at any time within six months from the date of the reservation of the Bill, with the consent of the Governor-General, return the Bill for further consideration by the council with a recommendation that the council shall consider amendments thereto :

(b) After any Bill so returned has been further considered by the council, together with any recommendations made by the governor, lieutenant-governor or chief commissioner relating thereto, the Bill, if re-affirmed with or without amendment, may be again presented to the governor, lieutenant-governor, or chief commissioner :

(c) Any Bill reserved for the consideration of the Governor-General shall, if assented to by the Governor-General within a period of six months from the date of such reservation, become law on due publication of such assent, in the same way as a Bill assented to by the governor, lieutenant-governor or chief commissioner but, if not assented to by the Governor-General within such period of six months, shall lapse and be of no effect unless before the expiration of that period either—

(i) the Bill has been returned by the governor, lieutenant-governor or chief commissioner, for further consideration by the council; or

(ii) in the case of the council not being in session, a notification has been published of an intention so to return the Bill at the commencement of the next session.

(3) The Governor-General may (except where the Bill has been reserved for his consideration), instead of assenting to or withholding his assent from any Act passed by a local legislature, declare that he reserves the Act for the signification of His Majesty's pleasure thereon, and in such case the Act shall not have validity until His Majesty in Council has signified his assent and his assent has been notified by the Governor-General.

Provision for case of failure to pass legislation in governors' legislative councils.

13.—(1) Where a governor's legislative council has refused leave to introduce, or has failed to pass in a form recommended by the governor, any Bill relating to a reserved subject the governor may certify that the passage of the Bill is essential for the discharge of his responsibility for the subject, and thereupon the Bill shall, notwithstanding that the council have not consented thereto, be deemed to have passed, and shall, on signature by the governor, become an Act of the local legislature in the form of the Bill as originally introduced or proposed to be introduced in the council or (as the case may be) in the form recommended to the council by the governor.

(2) Every such Act shall be expressed to be made by the governor, and the governor shall forthwith send an authentic copy thereof to the Governor-General, who shall reserve the Act for the signification of His Majesty's pleasure, and upon the signification of such assent by His Majesty in Council, and the notification thereof by the Governor-General, the Act shall have the same force and effect as an Act passed by the local legislature and duly assented to:

Provided that where, in the opinion of the Governor-General a state of emergency exists which justifies such action, he may, instead of reserving such Act, signify his assent thereto, and thereupon the Act shall have such force and effect as aforesaid, subject however to disallowance by His Majesty in Council.

(3) An Act made under this section shall, as soon as practicable after being made, be laid before each House of Parliament, and an Act which is required to be presented for His Majesty's assent shall not be so presented until copies thereof have been laid before each House of Parliament for not less than eight days on which that House has sat.

14. An official shall not be qualified for election as a member of a local legislative council, and if any non-official member of a local legislative council, whether elected or nominated, accepts any office in the service of the Crown in India, his seat on the council shall become vacant: Vacation of seats in local legislative councils.

Provided that for the purposes of this provision, a minister shall not be deemed to be an official and a person shall not be deemed to accept office on appointment as a minister.

15.—(1) The Governor-General in Council may, after obtaining an expression of opinion from the local government and the local legislature affected by notification, with the sanction of His Majesty previously signified by the Secretary of State in Council, constitute a new governor's province, or place part of a governor's province under the administration of a deputy-governor to be appointed by the Governor-General, and may in any such case apply, with such modifications as appear necessary or desirable, all or any of the provisions of the principal Act or this Act relating to governors' provinces, or provinces under a lieutenant-governor or chief commissioner, to any such new province or part of a province. Constitution of new provinces, etc., and provision as to backward tracts.

(2) The Governor-General in Council may declare any territory in British India to be a "backward tract," and may, by notification, with such sanction as aforesaid, direct that the principal Act and this Act shall apply to that territory subject to such exceptions and modifications as may be prescribed in the notification. Where the Governor-General in Council has, by notification, directed as aforesaid, he may, by the same or subsequent notification, direct that any Act of the Indian legislature shall not apply to the territory in question or any part thereof, or shall apply to the territory or any part thereof subject to such exceptions or modifications as the Governor-General thinks fit, or may authorise the governor in council to give similar directions as respects any Act of the local legislature.

16.—(1) The validity of any order made or action taken after the commencement of this Act by the Governor-General in Council or by a local government which would have been within the powers of the Governor-General in Council or of such local government if this Act had not been passed, shall not be open to question in any legal proceedings on the ground that by reason of any provision of this Act or of any rule made by virtue of any such provision such order or action has ceased to be within the powers of the Governor-General in Council or of the government concerned. Saving.

(2) Nothing in this Act, or in any rule made thereunder, shall be construed as diminishing in any respect the powers of the Indian legislature as laid down in section sixty-five of the principal Act, and the validity of any Act of the Indian legislature or any local legislature shall not be open to question in any legal proceedings on the ground that the Act affects a provincial subject or a central subject, as the case may be, and the validity of any Act made by the governor of a province shall not be so open to question on the ground that it does not relate to a reserved subject.

(3) The validity of any order made or action taken by a governor in council, or by a governor acting with his ministers, shall not be open to question in any legal proceedings on the ground that such order or action relates or does not relate to a transferred subject, or relates to a transferred subject of which the minister is not in charge.

PART II.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

17. Subject to the provisions of this Act, the Indian legislature shall consist of the Governor-General and two chambers, namely, the Council of State and the Legislative Assembly. Indian legislature.

Except as otherwise provided by or under this Act, a Bill shall not be deemed to have been passed by the Indian legislature unless it has been agreed to by both chambers, either without amendment or with such amendments only as may be agreed to by both chambers.

18.—(1) The Council of State shall consist of not more than sixty members nominated or elected in accordance with rules made under the principal Act, of whom not more than twenty shall be official members.

(2) The Governor-General shall have power to appoint, from among the members of the Council of State, a president and other persons to preside in such circumstances as he may direct.

(3) The Governor-General shall have the right of addressing the Council of State, and may for that purpose require the attendance of its members.

19.—(1) The Legislative Assembly shall consist of members nominated or elected in accordance with rules made under the principal Act.

(2) The total number of members of the Legislative Assembly shall be one hundred and forty. The number of non-elected members shall be forty, of whom twenty-six shall be official members. The number of elected members shall be one hundred:

Provided that rules made under the principal Act may provide for increasing the number of members of the Legislative Assembly as fixed by this section, and may vary the proportion which the classes of members bear one to another, so, however, that at least five-sevenths of the members of the Legislative Assembly shall be elected members, and at least one-third of the other members shall be non-official members.

(3) The Governor-General shall have the right of addressing the Legislative Assembly, and may for that purpose require the attendance of its members.

20.—(1) There shall be a president of the Legislative Assembly, who shall, until the expiration of four years from the first meeting thereof, be a person appointed by the Governor-General, and shall thereafter be a member of the Assembly elected by the Assembly and approved by the Governor-General:

Provided that, if at the expiration of such period of four years the Assembly is in session, the president then in office shall continue in office until the end of the current session, and the first election of a president shall take place at the commencement of the ensuing session.

(2) There shall be a deputy-president of the Legislative Assembly, who shall preside at meetings of the Assembly in the absence of the president, and who shall be a member of the Assembly elected by the Assembly and approved by the Governor-General.

(3) The appointed president shall hold office until the date of the election of a president under this section, but he may resign his office by writing under his hand addressed to the Governor-General, or may be removed from office by order of the Governor-General, and any vacancy occurring before the expiration of his term of office shall be filled by a similar appointment for the remainder of such term.

(4) An elected president and a deputy-president shall cease to hold office if they cease to be members of the Assembly. They may resign office by writing under their hands addressed to the Governor-General, and may be removed from office by a vote of the Assembly with the concurrence of the Governor-General.

(5) A president and deputy-president shall receive such salaries as may be determined, in the case of an appointed president by the Governor-General, and in the case of an elected president and a deputy-president by Act of the Indian legislature.

21.—(1) Every Council of State shall continue for five years, and every Legislative Assembly for three years, from its first meeting:

Provided that—

(a) either chamber of the legislature may be sooner dissolved by the Governor-General; and

(b) any such period may be extended by the Governor-General if in special circumstances he so thinks fit; and

(c) after the dissolution of either chamber the Governor-General shall appoint a date not more than six months, or, with the sanction of the Secretary of State not more than nine months after the date of dissolution for the next session of that chamber.

(2) The Governor-General may appoint such times and places for holding the sessions of either chamber of the Indian legislature as he thinks fit, and may also from time to time, by notification or otherwise, prorogue such sessions.

(3) Any meeting of either chamber of the Indian legislature may be adjourned by the person presiding.

(4) All questions in either chamber shall be determined by a majority of votes of members present other than the presiding member, who shall, however, have and exercise a casting vote in the case of an equality of votes.

(5) The powers of either chamber of the Indian legislature may be exercised notwithstanding any vacancy in the chamber.

Membership of both chambers.

22.—(1) An official shall not be qualified for election as a member of either chamber of the Indian legislature, and, if any non-official member of either chamber accepts office in the service of the Crown in India, his seat in that chamber shall become vacant.

(2) If an elected member of either chamber of the Indian legislature becomes a member of the other chamber, his seat in such first-mentioned chamber shall thereupon become vacant.

(3) If any person is elected a member of both chambers of the Indian legislature, he shall, before he takes his seat in either chamber, signify in writing the chamber of which he desires to be a member, and thereupon his seat in the other chamber shall become vacant.

(4) Every member of the Governor-General's Executive Council shall be nominated as a member of one chamber of the Indian legislature, and shall have the right of attending in and addressing the other chamber, but shall not be a member of both chambers.

Supplementary provisions as to composition of Legislative Assembly and Council of State.

23.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, provision may be made by rules under the principal Act as to—

(a) the term of office of nominated members of the Council of State and the Legislative Assembly, and the manner of filling casual vacancies occurring by reason of absence of members from India, inability to attend to duty, death, acceptance of office, or resignation duly accepted, or otherwise; and

(b) the conditions under which and the manner in which persons may be nominated as members of the Council of State or the Legislative Assembly; and

(c) the qualification of electors, the constitution of constituencies, and the method of election for the Council of State and the Legislative Assembly (including the number of members to be elected by communal and other electorates) and any matters incidental or ancillary thereto; and

(d) the qualifications for being or for being nominated or elected as members of the Council of State or the Legislative Assembly; and

(e) the final decision of doubts or disputes as to the validity of an election; and

(f) the manner in which the rules are to be carried into effect.

(2) Subject to any such rules, any person who is a ruler or subject of any State in India may be nominated as a member of the Council of State or the Legislative Assembly.

Business and proceedings in Indian legislature.

24.—(1) Sub-sections (1) and (3) of section sixty-seven of the principal Act (which relate to the classes of business which may be transacted by the Indian legislative council) shall cease to have effect.

(2) Provision may be made by rules under the principal Act for regulating the course of business and the preservation of order in the chambers of the Indian legislature, and as to the persons to preside at the meetings of the Legislative Assembly in the absence of the president and the deputy-president; and the rules may provide for the number of members required to constitute a quorum, and for prohibiting or regulating the asking of questions on, and the discussion of, any subject specified in the rules.

(3) If any Bill which has been passed by one chamber is not, within six months after the passage of the Bill by that chamber, passed by the other chamber either without amendments or with such amendments as may be agreed to by the two chambers, the Governor-General may in his discretion refer the matter for decision to a joint sitting of both chambers: Provided that standing orders made under this section may provide for meetings of members of both chambers appointed for the purpose, in order to discuss any difference of opinion which has arisen between the two chambers.

(4) Without prejudice to the powers of the Governor-General under section sixty-eight of the principal Act, the Governor-General may, where a Bill has been passed by both chambers of the Indian legislature, return the Bill for reconsideration by either chamber.

(5) Rules made for the purpose of this section may contain such general and supplemental provisions as appear necessary for the purpose of giving full effect to this section.

(6) Standing orders may be made providing for the conduct of business and the procedure to be followed in either chamber of the Indian legislature in so far as these matters are not provided for by rules made under the principal Act. The first standing orders shall be made by the Governor-General in Council, but may, with the consent of the Governor-General, be altered by the chamber to which they relate.

Any standing order made as aforesaid which is repugnant to the provisions of any rules made under the principal Act shall, to the extent of that repugnancy but not otherwise, be void.

(7) Subject to the rules and standing orders affecting the chamber, there shall be freedom of speech in both chambers of the Indian legislature. No person shall be liable to any proceedings in any court by reason of his speech or vote in either chamber, or by reason of anything contained in any official report of the proceedings of either chamber.

Indian budget.

25.—(1) The estimated annual expenditure and revenue of the Governor-General in Council shall be laid in the form of a statement before both chambers of the Indian legislature in each year.

(2) No proposal for the appropriation of any revenue or moneys for any purpose shall be made except on the recommendation of the Governor-General.

(3) The proposals of the Governor-General in Council for the appropriation of revenue or moneys relating to the following heads of expenditure shall not be submitted to the vote of the legislative assembly, nor shall they be open to discussion by either chamber at the time when the annual statement is under consideration, unless the Governor-General otherwise directs—

(i) interest and sinking fund charges on loans; and

(ii) expenditure of which the amount is prescribed by or under any law; and

(iii) salaries and pensions of persons appointed by or with the approval of His Majesty or by the Secretary of State in Council; and

(iv) salaries of chief commissioners and judicial commissioners; and

(v) expenditure classified by the order of the Governor-General in Council as—

(a) ecclesiastical;
(b) political;
(c) defence.

(4) If any question arises whether any proposed appropriation of revenue or moneys does or does not relate to the above heads, the decision of the Governor-General on the question shall be final.

(5) The proposals of the Governor-General in Council for the appropriation of revenue or moneys relating to heads of expenditure not specified in the above heads shall be submitted to the vote of the legislative assembly in the form of demands for grants.

(6) The legislative assembly may assent or refuse its assent to any demand or may reduce the amount referred to in any demand by a reduction of the whole grant.

(7) The demands as voted by the legislative assembly shall be submitted to the Governor-General in Council, who shall, if he declares that he is satisfied that any demand which has been refused by the legislative assembly is essential to the discharge of his responsibilities, act as if it had been assented to, notwithstanding the withholding of such assent or the reduction of the amount therein referred to, by the legislative assembly.

(8) Notwithstanding anything in this section the Governor-General shall have power, in cases of emergency, to authorise such expenditure as may, in his opinion, be necessary for the safety or tranquillity of British India or any part thereof.

26.—(1) Where either chamber of the Indian legislature refuses leave to introduce, or fails to pass in a form recommended by the Governor-General, any Bill, the Governor-General may certify that the passage of the Bill is essential for the safety, tranquillity or interests of British India or any part thereof, and thereupon— Provision for case of failure to pass legislation.

(a) if the Bill has already been passed by the other chamber, the Bill shall, on signature by the Governor-General, notwithstanding that it has not been consented to by both chambers, forthwith become an Act of the Indian legislature in the form of the Bill as originally introduced or proposed to be introduced in the Indian legislature, or (as the case may be) in the form recommended by the Governor-General; and

(b) if the Bill has not already been so passed, the Bill shall be laid before the other chamber, and, if consented to by that chamber in the form recommended by the Governor-General, shall become an Act as aforesaid on the signification of the Governor-General's assent, or, if not so consented to, shall, on signature by the Governor-General, become an Act as aforesaid.

(2) Every such Act shall be expressed to be made by the Governor-General, and shall, as soon as practicable after being made, be laid before both Houses of Parliament, and shall not have effect until it has received His Majesty's assent, and shall not be presented for His Majesty's assent until copies thereof have been laid before each House of Parliament for not less than eight days on which that House has sat; and upon the signification of such assent by His Majesty in Council, and the notification thereof by the Governor-General, the Act shall have the same force and effect as an Act passed by the Indian legislature and duly assented to:

Provided that, where in the opinion of the Governor-General a state of emergency exists which justifies such action, the Governor-General may direct that any such Act shall come into operation forthwith, and thereupon the Act shall have such force and effect as aforesaid, subject, however, to disallowance by His Majesty in Council.

27.—(1) In addition to the measures referred to in sub-section (2) of section sixty-seven of the principal Act, as requiring the previous sanction of the Governor-General, it shall not be lawful without such previous sanction to introduce at any meeting of either chamber of the Indian legislature any measure—

(a) regulating any provincial subject, or any part of a provincial subject, which has not been declared by rules under the principal Act to be subject to legislation by the Indian legislature;

(b) repealing or amending any Act of a local legislature;

(c) repealing or amending any Act or ordinance made by the Governor-General.

(2) Where in either chamber of the Indian legislature any Bill has been introduced, or is proposed to be introduced, or any amendment to a Bill is moved, or proposed to be moved, the Governor-General may certify that the Bill, or any clause of it, or the amendment, affects the safety or tranquillity of British India, or any part thereof, and may direct that no proceedings, or that no further proceedings, shall be taken by the chamber in relation to the Bill, clause, or amendment, and effect shall be given to such direction.

28.—(1) The provision in section thirty-six of the principal Act, imposing a limit on the number of members of the Governor-General's executive council, shall cease to have effect.

(2) The provision in section thirty-six of the principal Act as to the qualification of members of the council shall have effect as though the words "at the time of their appointment" were omitted, and as though after the word "Scotland" there were inserted the words "or a pleader of the High Court" and as though "ten years" were substituted for "five years."

(3) Provision may be made by rules under the principal Act the qualifications to be required in respect of members of the Governor-General's executive council, in any case where such provision is not made by section thirty-six of the principal Act as amended by this section.

(4) Sub-section (2) of section thirty-seven of the principal Act (which provides that when and so long as the Governor-General's executive council assembles in a province having a governor, the governor shall be an extraordinary member of the council) shall cease to have effect.

29.—(1) The Governor-General may at his discretion appoint, from among the members of the Legislative Assembly, council secretaries who shall hold office during his pleasure and discharge such duties in assisting the members of his executive council as he may assign to them.

(2) There shall be paid to council secretaries so appointed such salary as may be provided by the Indian legislature.

(3) A council secretary shall cease to hold office if he ceases for more than six months to be a member of the Legislative Assembly.

PART III.

SECRETARY OF STATE IN COUNCIL.

30. The salary of the Secretary of State, the salaries of his under-secretaries, and any other expenses of his department may, notwithstanding anything in the principal Act, instead of being paid out of the revenues of India, be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament, and the salary of the Secretary of State shall be so paid.

31. The following amendments shall be made in section three of the principal Act in relation to the composition of the Council of India, the qualification, term of office, and remuneration of its members:—

(1) The provisions of sub-section (1) shall have effect as though "eight" and "twelve" were substituted for "ten" and "fourteen" respectively, as the minimum and maximum number of members, provided that the council as constituted at the time of the passing of this Act shall not be affected by this provision, but no fresh appointment or re-appointment thereto shall be made in excess of the maximum prescribed by this provision.

(2) The provisions of sub-section (3) shall have effect as if "one-half" were substituted for "nine" and "India" were substituted for "British India."

(3) In sub-section (4) "five years" shall be substituted for "seven years" as the term of office of members of the council, provided that the tenure of office of any person who is a member of the council at the time of the passing of this Act shall not be affected by this provision.

(4) The provisions of sub-section (8) shall cease to have effect and in lieu thereof the following provisions shall be inserted:

"There shall be paid to each member of the Council of India the annual salary of twelve hundred pounds: provided that any member of the council who was at the time of his appointment domiciled in India shall receive, in addition to the salary hereby provided, an annual subsistence allowance of six hundred pounds.

Such salaries and allowances may be paid out of the revenues of India or out of moneys provided by Parliament."

(5) Notwithstanding anything in any Act or rules, where any person in the service of the Crown in India is appointed a member of the council before completion of the period of such service required to entitle him to a pension or annuity, his service as such member shall, for the purpose of any pension or annuity which would be payable to him on completion of such period, be reckoned as service under the Crown in India whilst resident in India.

32.—(1) The provision in section six of the principal Act which prescribes the quorum for meetings of the Council of India shall cease to have effect, and the Secretary of State shall provide for a quorum by directions to be issued in this behalf. Further provisions as to Council of India.

(2) The provision in section eight of the principal Act relating to meetings of the Council of India shall have effect as though "month" were substituted for "week."

(3) Section ten of the principal Act shall have effect as though the words "all business of the council or committees thereof is to be transacted" were omitted, and the words "the business of the Secretary of State in Council or the Council of India shall be transacted, and any order made or act done in accordance with such direction shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be treated as being an order of the Secretary of State in Council" were inserted in lieu thereof.

33. The Secretary of State in Council may, notwithstanding anything in the principal Act, by rule regulate and restrict the exercise of the powers of superintendence, direction, and control, vested in the Secretary of State and the Secretary of State in Council, by the principal Act, or otherwise, in such manner as may appear necessary or expedient in order to give effect to the purposes of this Act. Relaxation of control of Secretary of State.

Before any rules are made under this section relating to subjects other than transferred subjects, the rules proposed to be made shall be laid in draft before both Houses of Parliament, and such rules shall not be made unless both Houses by resolution approve the draft either without modification or addition, or with modifications or additions to which both Houses agree, but upon such approval being given the Secretary of State in Council may make such rules in the form in which they have been approved, and such rules on being so made shall be of full force and effect.

Any rules relating to transferred subjects made under this section shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament as soon as may be after they are made, and, if an Address is presented to His Majesty by either House of Parliament within the next thirty days on which that House has sat after the rules are laid before it praying that the rules or any of them may be annulled, His Majesty in Council may annul the rules or any of them, and those rules shall thenceforth be void, but without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done thereunder.

Correspondence between Secretary of State and India.

34. So much of section five of the principal Act as relates to orders and communications sent to India from the United Kingdom and to orders made in the United Kingdom, and sections eleven, twelve, thirteen and fourteen of the principal Act, shall cease to have effect, and the procedure for the sending of orders and communications to India and in general for correspondence between the Secretary of State and the Governor-General in Council or any local government shall be such as may be prescribed by order of the Secretary of State in Council.

High Commissioner for India.

35. His Majesty may by Order in Council make provision for the appointment of a High Commissioner for India in the United Kingdom, and for the pay, pension, powers, duties, and conditions of employment of the High Commissioner and of his assistants; and the Order may further provide for delegating to the High Commissioner any of the powers previously exercised by the Secretary of State or the Secretary of State in Council whether under the principal Act or otherwise in relation to making contracts, and may prescribe the conditions under which he shall act on behalf of the Governor-General in Council or any local government.

PART IV.

THE CIVIL SERVICES IN INDIA.

The civil services in India.

36.—(1) Subject to the provisions of the principal Act and of rules made thereunder, every person in the civil service of the Crown in India holds office during His Majesty's pleasure, and may be employed in any manner required by a proper authority within the scope of his duty, but no person in that service may be dismissed by any authority subordinate to that by which he was appointed, and the Secretary of State in Council may (except so far as he may provide by rules to the contrary) reinstate any person in that service who has been dismissed.

If any such person appointed by the Secretary of State in Council thinks himself wronged by an order of an official superior in a governor's province, and on due application made to that superior does not receive the redress to which he may consider himself entitled, he may, without prejudice to any other right of redress, complain to the governor of the province in order to obtain justice, and the governor is hereby directed to examine such complaint and require such action to be taken thereon as may appear to him to be just and equitable.

(2) The Secretary of State in Council may make rules for regulating the classification of the civil services in India, the methods of their recruitment, their conditions of service, pay and allowances, and discipline and conduct. Such rules may, to such extent and in respect of such matters as may be prescribed, delegate the power of making rules to the Governor-General in Council or to local governments, or authorise the Indian legislature or local legislatures to make laws regulating the public services:

Provided that every person appointed before the commencement of this Act by the Secretary of State in Council to the civil service of the Crown in India shall retain all his existing or accruing rights, or shall receive such compensation for the loss of any of them as the Secretary of State in Council may consider just and equitable.

(3) The right to pensions and the scale and conditions of pensions of all persons in the civil service of the Crown in India appointed by the Secretary of State in Council shall be regulated in accordance with the rules in force at the time of the passing of this Act. Any such rules may be varied or added to by the Secretary of State in Council and shall have effect as so varied or added to, but any such variation or addition shall not adversely affect the pension of any member of the service appointed before the date thereof.

Nothing in this section or in any rule thereunder shall prejudice the rights to which any person may, or may have, become entitled under the provisions in relation to pensions contained in the East India Annuity Funds Act, 1874. 37 & 38 Vict., c. 12.

(4) For the removal of doubts it is hereby declared that all rules or other provisions in operation at the time of the passing of this Act, whether made by the Secretary of State in Council or by any other authority, relating to the civil service of the Crown in India, were duly made in accordance with the powers in that behalf, and are confirmed, but any such rules or provisions may be revoked, varied, or added to by rules or laws made under this section.

Appointments to the Indian Civil Service.

37.—(1) Notwithstanding anything in section ninety-seven of the principal Act the Secretary of State may make appointments to the Indian Civil Service of persons domiciled in India, in accordance with such rules as may be prescribed by the Secretary of State in Council with the concurrence of the majority of votes at a meeting of the Council of India.

Any rules made under this section shall not have force until they have been laid for thirty days before both Houses of Parliament.

(2) The Indian Civil Service (Temporary Provisions) Act, 1915 (which confers power during the war and for a period of two years thereafter to make appointments to the Indian Civil Service without examination), shall have effect as though "three years" were substituted for "two years." 5 & 6 Geo. 5, c. 87.

Public service commission.

38.—(1) There shall be established in India a public service commission, consisting of not more than five members, of whom one shall be chairman, appointed by the Secretary of State in Council. Each member shall hold office for five years, and may be re-appointed. No member shall be removed before the expiry of his term of office, except by order of the Secretary of State in Council. The qualifications for appointment, and the pay and pension (if any) attaching to the office of chairman and member, shall be prescribed by rules made by the Secretary of State in Council.

(2) The public service commission shall discharge, in regard to recruitment and control of the public services in India, such functions as may be assigned thereto by rules made by the Secretary of State in Council.

Financial control.

39.—(1) An auditor-general in India shall be appointed by the Secretary of State in Council, and shall hold office during His Majesty's pleasure. The Secretary of State in Council shall, by rules, make provision for his pay, powers, duties, and conditions of employment, or for the discharge of his duties in the case of a temporary vacancy or absence from duty.

(2) Subject to any rules made by the Secretary of State in Council, no office may be added to or withdrawn from the public service, and the emoluments of no post may be varied, except after consultation with such finance authority as may be designated in the rules, being an authority of the province or of the Government of India, according as the post is or is not under the control of a local government.

Rules under Part IV.

40. Rules made under this Part of this Act shall not be made except with the concurrence of the majority of votes at a meeting of the Council of India.

PART V.

STATUTORY COMMISSION.

Statutory commission.

41.—(1) At the expiration of ten years after the passing of this Act the Secretary of State, with the concurrence of both Houses of Parliament, shall submit for the approval of His Majesty the names of persons to act as a commission for the purposes of this section.

(2) The persons whose names are so submitted, if approved by His Majesty, shall be a commission for the purpose of inquiring into the working of the system of government, the growth of education, and the development of representative institutions, in British India, and matters connected therewith, and the commission shall report as to whether and to what extent it is desirable to establish the principle of responsible government, or to extend, modify, or restrict the degree of responsible government then existing therein, including the question whether the establishment of second chambers of the local legislatures is or is not desirable.

(3) The commission shall also inquire into and report on any other matter affecting British India and the provinces, which may be referred to the commission by His Majesty.

PART VI.

GENERAL.

Modification of s. 124 of principal Act.

42. Notwithstanding anything in section one hundred and twenty-four of the principal Act, if any member of the Governor-General's executive Council or any member of any local government was at the time of his appointment concerned or engaged in any trade or business, he may, during the term of his office, with the sanction in writing of the Governor-General, or, in the case of ministers, of the governor of the province, and in any case subject to such general conditions and restrictions as the Governor-General in Council may prescribe, retain his concern or interest in that trade or business, but shall not, during that term, take part in the direction or management of that trade or business.

Signification of Royal Assent.

43. Any assent or disallowance by His Majesty, which under the principal Act is required to be signified through the Secretary of State in Council, shall as from the passing of this Act be signified by His Majesty in Council.

Power to make rules.

44.—(1) Where any matter is required to be prescribed or regulated by rules under the principal Act and no special provision is made as to the authority by whom the rules are to be made, the rules shall be made by the Governor-General in Council, with the sanction of the Secretary of State in Council, and shall not be subject to repeal or alteration by the Indian legislature or by any local legislature.

(2) Any rules made under this Act or under the principal Act may be so framed as to make different provision for different provinces.

(3) Any rules to which sub-section (1) of this section applies shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament as soon as may be after they are made, and, if an Address is presented to His Majesty by either House of Parliament within the next thirty days on which that House has sat after the rules are laid before it praying that the rules or any of them may be annulled, His Majesty in Council may annul the rules or any of them, and those rules shall thenceforth be void, but without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done thereunder:

Provided that the Secretary of State may direct that any rules to which this section applies shall be laid in draft before both Houses of Parliament, and in such case the rules shall not be made unless both Houses by resolution approve the draft either without modification or addition, or with modifications or additions to which both Houses agree, but, upon such approval being given, the rules may be made in the form in which they have been approved, and such rules on being so made shall be of full force and effect, and shall not require to be further laid before Parliament.

Amendments of principal Act to carry Act into effect, &c.

45.—(1) The amendments set out in Parts I and II of the Second Schedule to this Act, being amendments to incorporate the provisions of this Act in the principal Act, and further amendments consequential on or arising out of those provisions, shall be made in the principal Act, and any question of interpretation shall be settled by reference to the principal Act as so amended. The provisions of the principal Act specified in Part III of that schedule, being provisions which are obsolete or unnecessary, or which require amendment in detail, are hereby repealed or modified, and shall be dealt with, in the manner shown in the second column of that schedule.

(2) Every enactment and word which is directed by the Government of India (Amendment) Act, 1916, or by this section and the Second Schedule to this Act, to be substituted for or added to any portion of the Government of India Act, 1915, shall form part of the Government of India Act, 1915, in the place assigned to it by the Government of India (Amendment) Act, 1916, or that schedule; and the Government of India Act, 1915, and all Acts, including this Act, which refer thereto, shall, after the commencement of this Act, be construed as if the said enactment or word had been enacted in the Government of India Act, 1915, in the place so assigned, and, where it is substituted for another enactment or word, had been so enacted in lieu of that enactment or word.

A copy of the Government of India Act, 1915, with the amendments, whether by way of substitution, addition or omission, required by the Government of India (Amendment) Act, 1916, and by this section and the Second Schedule to this Act, shall be prepared and certified by the Clerk of the Parliaments, and deposited with the Rolls of Parliament, and His Majesty's printer shall print, in accordance with the copy so certified, all copies of the Government of India Act, 1915, which are printed after the passing of this Act, and the Government of India Act, 1915, as so amended, may be cited as "The Government of India Act."

Sub-section (3) of section eight of the Government of India (Amendment) Act, 1916, is hereby repealed.

46. In this Act the expressions "official" and "non-official," where used in relation to any person, mean respectively a person who is or is not in the civil or military service of the Crown in India: Definition of official.

Provided that rules under the principal Act may provide for the holders of such offices as may be specified in the rules not being treated for the purposes of the principal Act or this Act, or any of them, as officials.

47.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Government of India Act, 1919, and the principal Act, as amended by any Act for the time being in force, may be cited as the Government of India Act. Short title, commencement, interpretation, and transitory provisions.

(2) This Act shall come into operation on such date or dates as the Governor-General in Council, with the approval of the Secretary of State in Council, may appoint, and different dates may be appointed for different provisions of this Act, and for different parts of India.

On the dates appointed for the coming into operation of the provisions of this Act as respects any executive or legislative council all the members of the council then in office shall go out of office, but may, if otherwise qualified, be re-appointed, renominated or re-elected, as the case may be, in accordance with the provisions of the principal Act as amended by this Act.

(3) Any reference in any enactment, whether an Act of Parliament or made by any authority in British India, or in any rules, regulations or orders made under any such enactment, or in any letters patent or other document, to any enactment repealed by the principal Act, shall for all purposes be construed as references to the principal Act as amended by this Act, or to the corresponding provision thereof.

(4) Any reference in any enactment in force in India, whether an Act of Parliament or made by any authority in British India, or in any rules, regulations, or orders made under any such enactment, or in any letters patent or other document, to any Indian legislative authority, shall for all purposes be construed as references to the corresponding authority constituted by the principal Act as amended by this Act.

(5) If any difficulty arises as to the first establishment of the Indian legislature or any legislative council after the commencement of this Act or otherwise in first giving effect to the provisions of this Act, the Secretary of State in Council or the Governor-General in Council, as occasion may require, may by order do anything which appears to them necessary for the purpose of removing the difficulty.

(2) The persons whose names are so submitted, if approved by His Majesty, shall be a commission for the purpose of inquiring into the working of the system of government, the growth of education, and the development of representative institutions, in British India, and matters connected therewith, and the commission shall report as to whether and to what extent it is desirable to establish the principle of responsible government, or to extend, modify, or restrict the degree of responsible government then existing therein, including the question whether the establishment of second chambers of the local legislatures is or is not desirable.

(3) The commission shall also inquire into and report on any other matter affecting British India and the provinces, which may be referred to the commission by His Majesty.

PART VI.

GENERAL.

Modification of s. 124 of principal Act.

42. Notwithstanding anything in section one hundred and twenty-four of the principal Act, if any member of the Governor-General's executive Council or any member of any local government was at the time of his appointment concerned or engaged in any trade or business, he may, during the term of his office, with the sanction in writing of the Governor-General, or, in the case of ministers, of the governor of the province, and in any case subject to such general conditions and restrictions as the Governor-General in Council may prescribe, retain his concern or interest in that trade or business, but shall not, during that term, take part in the direction or management of that trade or business.

Signification of Royal Assent.

43. Any assent or disallowance by His Majesty, which under the principal Act is required to be signified through the Secretary of State in Council, shall as from the passing of this Act be signified by His Majesty in Council.

Power to make rules.

44.—(1) Where any matter is required to be prescribed or regulated by rules under the principal Act and no special provision is made as to the authority by whom the rules are to be made, the rules shall be made by the Governor-General in Council, with the sanction of the Secretary of State in Council, and shall not be subject to repeal or alteration by the Indian legislature or by any local legislature.

(2) Any rules made under this Act or under the principal Act may be so framed as to make different provision for different provinces.

(3) Any rules to which sub-section (1) of this section applies shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament as soon as may be after they are made, and, if an Address is presented to His Majesty by either House of Parliament within the next thirty days on which that House has sat after the rules are laid before it praying that the rules or any of them may be annulled, His Majesty in Council may annul the rules or any of them, and those rules shall thenceforth be void, but without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done thereunder:

Provided that the Secretary of State may direct that any rules to which this section applies shall be laid in draft before both Houses of Parliament, and in such case the rules shall not be made unless both Houses by resolution approve the draft either without modification or addition, or with modifications or additions to which both Houses agree, but, upon such approval being given, the rules may be made in the form in which they have been approved, and such rules on being so made shall be of full force and effect, and shall not require to be further laid before Parliament.

Amendments of principal Act to carry Act into effect, &c.

45.—(1) The amendments set out in Parts I and II of the Second Schedule to this Act, being amendments to incorporate the provisions of this Act in the principal Act, and further amendments consequential on or arising out of those provisions, shall be made in the principal Act, and any question of interpretation shall be settled by reference to the principal Act as so amended. The provisions of the principal Act specified in Part III of that schedule, being provisions which are obsolete or unnecessary, or which require amendment in detail, are hereby repealed or modified, and shall be dealt with, in the manner shown in the second column of that schedule.

(2) Every enactment and word which is directed by the Government of India (Amendment) Act, 1916, or by this section and the Second Schedule to this Act, to be substituted for or added to any portion of the Government of India Act, 1915, shall form part of the Government of India Act, 1915, in the place assigned to it by the Government of India (Amendment) Act, 1916, or that schedule; and the Government of India Act, 1915, and all Acts, including this Act, which refer thereto, shall, after the commencement of this Act, be construed as if the said enactment or word had been enacted in the Government of India Act, 1915, in the place so assigned, and, where it is substituted for another enactment or word, had been so enacted in lieu of that enactment or word.

A copy of the Government of India Act, 1915, with the amendments, whether by way of substitution, addition or omission, required by the Government of India (Amendment) Act, 1916, and by this section and the Second Schedule to this Act, shall be prepared and certified by the Clerk of the Parliaments, and deposited with the Rolls of Parliament, and His Majesty's printer shall print, in accordance with the copy so certified, all copies of the Government of India Act, 1915, which are printed after the passing of this Act, and the Government of India Act, 1915, as so amended, may be cited as "The Government of India Act."

Sub-section (3) of section eight of the Government of India (Amendment) Act, 1916, is hereby repealed.

46. In this Act the expressions "official" and "non-official," where used in relation to any person, mean respectively a person who is or is not in the civil or military service of the Crown in India: Definition of official.

Provided that rules under the principal Act may provide for the holders of such offices as may be specified in the rules not being treated for the purposes of the principal Act or this Act, or any of them, as officials.

47.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Government of India Act, 1919, and the principal Act, as amended by any Act for the time being in force, may be cited as the Government of India Act. Short title, commencement, interpretation, and transitory provisions.

(2) This Act shall come into operation on such date or dates as the Governor-General in Council, with the approval of the Secretary of State in Council, may appoint, and different dates may be appointed for different provisions of this Act, and for different parts of India.

On the dates appointed for the coming into operation of the provisions of this Act as respects any executive or legislative council all the members of the council then in office shall go out of office, but may, if otherwise qualified, be re-appointed, renominated or re-elected, as the case may be, in accordance with the provisions of the principal Act as amended by this Act.

(3) Any reference in any enactment, whether an Act of Parliament or made by any authority in British India, or in any rules, regulations or orders made under any such enactment, or in any letters patent or other document, to any enactment repealed by the principal Act, shall for all purposes be construed as references to the principal Act as amended by this Act, or to the corresponding provision thereof.

(4) Any reference in any enactment in force in India, whether an Act of Parliament or made by any authority in British India, or in any rules, regulations, or orders made under any such enactment, or in any letters patent or other document, to any Indian legislative authority, shall for all purposes be construed as references to the corresponding authority constituted by the principal Act as amended by this Act.

(5) If any difficulty arises as to the first establishment of the Indian legislature or any legislative council after the commencement of this Act or otherwise in first giving effect to the provisions of this Act, the Secretary of State in Council or the Governor-General in Council, as occasion may require, may by order do anything which appears to them necessary for the purpose of removing the difficulty.

(2) The persons whose names are so submitted, if approved by His Majesty, shall be a commission for the purpose of inquiring into the working of the system of government, the growth of education, and the development of representative institutions, in British India, and matters connected therewith, and the commission shall report as to whether and to what extent it is desirable to establish the principle of responsible government, or to extend, modify, or restrict the degree of responsible government then existing therein, including the question whether the establishment of second chambers of the local legislatures is or is not desirable.

(3) The commission shall also inquire into and report on any other matter affecting British India and the provinces, which may be referred to the commission by His Majesty.

CIVIL AVIATION.

Delhi, the 31st January 1920.

No. 66-C. A.—In exercise of the powers conferred by sections 3 and 6 of the Indian Aircraft Act, 1911 (XVII of 1911), and in supersession of the Indian Airship Rules, 1913, published with the notification of the Government of India in the Home Department, No. 525, dated the 1st May, 1913, the Governor General in Council is pleased to make the following Rules.

PART I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. These rules may be called the Indian Aircraft Rules, 1920.

Definitions and interpretation.

2. (1) In these rules, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

"aerodrome" means any definite ground or water area intended to be used and capable of being used for the landing or departure of aircraft, and includes all buildings, sheds, vessels, piers, and other structures thereon or appertaining thereto;

"airship" means an aircraft lighter than air;

"approved aerodrome" means an aerodrome the proprietor of which has received a certificate of approval in respect thereof from an officer authorised by the Governor General in Council in that behalf, but does not include a Government or Royal Air Force aerodrome;

"Chief Customs-authority," "Chief Customs-officer," and "Customs-collector" mean respectively a person appointed to be a Chief Customs-authority, a Chief Customs-officer, and a Customs-collector under rule 53;

"customs-aerodrome" means an aerodrome notified as a customs-aerodrome under rule 53;

"examination station" means a space in a customs-aerodrome set apart under the orders of the Chief Customs-authority for the examination of goods;

"export" means the taking by aircraft out of British India;

"flying machine" means an aeroplane, seaplane, flying boat, or other aircraft heavier than air;

"foreign aircraft" means an aircraft which has not been registered in the manner provided by these rules, and is not ordinarily kept, in British India;

"Government aerodrome" means any aerodrome which is maintained by, or on behalf of, Government;

"import" means the bringing by aircraft into British India;

"passenger aircraft" and "goods aircraft" mean aircraft which carry, or are intended to carry, for hire or reward passengers and goods (including mails), respectively;

"personnel" in relation to any aircraft means the commander, pilot, navigator, engineer, and all other members of the crew;

the "proprietor" of an aerodrome includes any person responsible for the management thereof;

"visible" as applied to lights means visible on a dark night with a clear atmosphere;

the expression "under way" applies to any aircraft when it is not made fast to the ground or to any object on land or water.

(2) The General Clauses Act, 1897, shall apply, for the purpose of the interpretation of these rules, in like manner as it applies for the purpose of the interpretation of an Act of the Governor General in Council. X of 1897.

PART II.

GENERAL CONDITIONS OF FLYING.

Prohibitions of use save in accordance with conditions.

3. No person shall use, or assist in using, an aircraft save in accordance with the provisions of this Part in so far as they are applicable in the case of each such person, and compliance therewith to such extent shall be deemed to be a condition of every licence granted under these rules.

Registration and nationality and registration marks.

4. No person shall fly, or assist in flying, any aircraft which—

(a) has not been registered in the manner provided in Part III, and

(b) does not bear the nationality and registration marks assigned to it in the certificate of registration granted under that Part, affixed thereon in such manner as is provided in Part VI:

Provided that nothing in this rule shall apply to aircraft flown only for the purpose of experiment or test within three miles of an aerodrome or aircraft factory.

Licensing of personnel.

5. The pilot of every aircraft and the entire personnel of every passenger and goods aircraft shall be licensed in the manner provided in Part IV:

Provided that nothing in this rule shall apply within a distance of one mile from an aerodrome in the case of personnel under instruction, and personnel under instruction beyond that distance may be exempted from the requirements of this rule by or under the orders of an officer authorised by the Governor General in Council by order in writing in that behalf.

Certificates and licences to be carried in aircraft.

6. No person in charge of any aircraft shall allow such aircraft to be flown unless its certificate of registration and the licence of each member of the personnel who is under these rules required to be licensed is carried therein

Explosives, etc.

7. No person shall carry in any aircraft, and no person in charge of any aircraft shall allow to be carried therein, any explosives, arms or ammunition.

Mails and wireless apparatus.

8. No person shall carry in any aircraft, and no person in charge of any aircraft shall allow to be carried therein, any mails or wireless telegraphic apparatus without the consent in writing of the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs.

Use of aerodrome.

9. No pilot or person in charge of any aircraft shall use any place as a regular place of landing or departure other than an approved aerodrome:

Provided that any aircraft may use any Government or Royal Air Force aerodrome which may be appointed for this purpose by or under the orders of the Governor General in Council or the Air Officer Commanding the Royal Air Force in India, as the case may be, subject to such conditions and directions as may be laid down in the case of each such aerodrome.

General safety conditions.

10. (1) No pilot shall fly any aircraft, and no person in charge of any aircraft shall allow it to be flown over any city or town except at such altitude as will enable the aircraft to land outside the city or town in the event of the means of propulsion failing through mechanical breakdown or other cause:

Provided that this prohibition shall not apply within a distance of one mile from an approved aerodrome or a Government or Royal Air Force aerodrome.

(2) No person in any aircraft shall—

(a) carry out any trick flying or exhibition flying over any city, town area, or village site; or

(b) carry out any trick flying or exhibition flying over any regatta, race meeting or meeting for public games or sports or other public assembly, except where a request in writing for such flying has been received by such person from the promoters of any such assembly; or

(c) carry out any flying which, by reason of low altitude or proximity to persons or dwellings, is dangerous to public safety; or

(d) drop or cause or permit to be dropped from the aircraft any article except—

(i) ballast the dropping of which is not prohibited by the provisions of sub-rule (13) of rule 49,

(ii) mails as may be authorised by the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs, and

(iii) any other article the dropping of which may be permitted by general or special order of the Governor General in Council or an officer authorised by him by order in writing in that behalf:

Provided that separate sheets of paper containing printed matter only may be dropped in any place if the written permission of the District Magistrate or, in a Presidency-town or Rangoon, of the Commissioner of Police be first obtained in each case.

Rules of the air.

11. Every pilot and navigator shall observe, and every person in charge of an aircraft shall cause to be observed, all the rules of the air as contained in Part VIII.

Further conditions for passenger and goods aircraft.

12. (1) No pilot of any passenger aircraft carrying passengers shall fly the same unless it has, in accordance with the provisions of Part V.,—

(a) been certified as airworthy;

(b) undergone a periodical inspection and overhaul; and

(c) undergone examination on the day of flight;

and, unless all the certificates referred to in that Part and relating to such aircraft, are carried in the aircraft.

(2) No pilot or person in charge of any passenger aircraft shall use, as a regular place of landing or departure, any approved aerodrome which has not been appointed for the use of passenger aircraft by an officer authorised by the Governor General in Council by order in writing in that behalf.

(3) No person in charge of any passenger or goods aircraft shall allow the same to be flown unless there are carried in the aircraft log books in accordance with the provisions of Part VII.

Aircraft arriving in or departing from British India.

13. Every person arriving in, or departing from, British India in an aircraft shall comply with the provisions of Part IX in so far as they may be applicable to him.

Production of licences, etc.

14. Any Magistrate, any Police-officer above the rank of constable, any Customs-officer, any commissioned officer of His Majesty's naval, military or air forces or of His Majesty's Royal Indian Marine, any non-commissioned officer of the Royal Air Force, or any other officer of Government authorised by the Governor General in Council by general or special order in writing in this behalf may, for the purposes of inspection, demand the production by any member of the personnel of an aircraft of his licence or the production by the owner or person in charge of any aircraft of any certificate or log book relating thereto granted or maintained under these rules, and every such person shall be bound to comply with such demand.

PART III.

REGISTRATION.

Certificates of registration.

15. A certificate of registration for an aircraft may be granted by the Governor General in Council or an officer authorised by him by order in writing in that behalf, on the application by, or on behalf of, the owner of such aircraft:

Provided that no such certificate shall be granted in respect of any aircraft owned by a person who is not a British subject or a firm or company having its principal place of business in His Majesty's dominions, save under a general or special order of the Governor General in Council.

Nature of application.

16. Every such application shall be made in Form A set out in Schedule VI, and shall be accompanied—

(a) by a fee of twenty rupees, which shall be returned if the application is not granted;

(b) by a certificate of the nationality and suitability of the owner in Form B set out in Schedule VI granted and signed by a District Magistrate or, in a Presidency-town or Rangoon, by a Commissioner of Police within sixty days before the date on which the application is made; and,

(c) in the case of passenger aircraft, by a certificate of airworthiness in respect of the aircraft issued under rule 27 or rule 28.

Grant of application.

17. If the application is granted there shall be delivered to the applicant a certificate of registration in Form C set out in Schedule VI.

Change of ownership.

18. Upon any change of ownership of an aircraft registered under these rules, the certificate of registration of such aircraft shall be deemed to be cancelled.

PART IV.

LICENSING OF PERSONNEL.

19. The licences referred to in rule 5 may be granted by the Governor General in Council or by an officer authorised by him by order in writing in that behalf :

Grant of licences.

Provided that no such licence shall be granted to any person who is not a British subject save under a general or special order of the Governor General in Council.

20. Application for the grant of such licences shall be made as nearly as may be in Form D set out in Schedule VI, and shall be accompanied—

Mode of application.

(a) by a fee of five rupees which shall be returned if the application is not granted;

(b) by a certificate of the nationality and suitability of the person applying to be licensed, granted in the manner provided in clause (b) of rule 16; and

(c) by two unmounted copies of a photograph of the person applying to be licensed.

21. (1) A person applying for a pilot's licence to fly aircraft other than passenger or goods aircraft will be required—

Pilots.

(a) to produce a medical certificate in Form E set out in Schedule VI granted by an officer of the Royal Army Medical Corps or the Indian Medical Service or a medical officer of the Royal Air Force, stating to what extent the applicant fulfils the requirements of mental and physical fitness specified in Schedule I;

(b) unless he is qualified as a Royal Air Force pilot, to produce an "A" certificate of flying competency for pilots of private flying machines in Form F set out in Schedule VI after examination conducted in the manner provided in Schedule II for the case of such applicants; and may be required to submit proof of recent reasonable flying experience, or, failing such proof, undergo practical tests.

(2) A person applying for a pilot's licence to fly passenger or goods aircraft will be required—

(a) to produce a medical certificate in Form E set out in Schedule VI granted by a medical officer of the Royal Air Force, stating to what extent the applicant fulfils the requirements of mental and physical fitness specified in Schedule I;

(b) unless he is qualified as a Royal Air Force pilot, to produce a "B" certificate of flying competency for pilots of passenger and goods aircraft as nearly as may be in Form F set out in Schedule VI after examination conducted in the manner provided in Schedule II for the case of such applicants; and may be required to submit proof of recent reasonable flying experience on the class of aircraft for which the licence is required.

22. A person applying for a licence to navigate a passenger or goods aircraft will be required—

Navigators.

(a) to produce a medical certificate granted in the manner provided in clause (a) of sub-rule (1) of rule 21; and,

(b) to produce a certificate of technical competency in Form G set out in Schedule VI after examination conducted in the manner provided in Schedule III for the case of navigators.

23. A person applying for a licence to be engaged as engineer on passenger or goods aircraft will be required—

Engineers

(a) to produce a medical certificate granted in the manner provided in clause (a) of sub-rule (1) of rule 21;

(b) to produce a certificate of technical competency in Form G set out in Schedule VI after examination conducted in the manner provided in Schedule III for the case of engineers; and may be required to undergo practical and theoretical tests.

24. A person applying for a licence as a member of the personnel of a passenger or goods aircraft in any other capacity than that of a pilot, navigator, or engineer will be required to produce a certificate in Form H set out in Schedule VI granted by a person approved in that behalf by the officer authorised under rule 19 to the effect that he possesses a good general knowledge of the rules of the air as contained in Part VIII.

Other personnel.

25. (1) Every licence under this Part shall be issued in Form I set out in Schedule VI, and shall, save as otherwise hereinafter provided, remain valid for a period of one year from the date of issue.

Issue, renewal, and cancellation of licences.

(2) Any licence issued under this Part may be renewed by the officer authorised under rule 19 to grant the same, for such further period as he may think fit, and such officer may before renewing the licence require the person applying for renewal to undergo practical or theoretical tests.

(3) A fee of five rupees shall be payable in respect of each licence renewed under sub-rule (2).

(4) In the event of any applicant for a licence, or for renewal of a licence, being required to undergo any practical test, a further fee of twenty rupees shall be payable.

(5) It shall be deemed to be a condition of every licence issued under this Part that it is subject to cancellation or suspension at the pleasure of the Governor General in Council or of the officer authorised under rule 19.

Further medical examination.

26. Any pilot, navigator or engineer to whom a licence has been granted under this Part may be required, from time to time, to undergo further medical examination as may be directed by the officer authorised under rule 19.

PART V.

CERTIFICATES OF AIRWORTHINESS, PERIODICAL OVERHAUL AND EXAMINATION OF PASSENGER AIRCRAFT.

Type aircraft.

27. (1) In the case of passenger aircraft, a certificate of airworthiness in Form J set out in Schedule VI in respect of one aircraft of any particular type (hereinafter referred to as a "type aircraft") may be issued by the Governor General in Council or an officer authorised by him by order in writing in that behalf in such manner and subject to such conditions as are specified in Schedule IV.

(2) For each such certificate a fee of one hundred rupees shall be payable.

Subsequent aircraft.

28. (1) After the issue of a certificate of airworthiness to a type aircraft, a certificate of airworthiness in Form J set out in Schedule VI may be issued in respect of any further aircraft of that type by the Governor General in Council or an officer authorised by him by order in writing in that behalf in such manner and subject to such conditions as are specified in Schedule IV.

(2) For each such certificate a fee of twenty rupees shall be payable.

Periodical inspection and overhaul.

29. (1) Every passenger aircraft and each engine of every such aircraft must be periodically inspected and overhauled by a person approved, or by persons respectively approved, for the purpose of inspection and overhaul of aircraft and engines under this rule by the Governor General in Council or an officer authorised by him by order in writing in that behalf.

(2) If an aircraft or engine is on such inspection and overhaul found to be fit for flight or in good order, as the case may be, the person making the inspection in each case shall grant a certificate in duplicate to that effect in Form K set out in Schedule VI.

(3) No passenger aircraft shall be flown,

(a) which has been flown for two hundred hours without having been certified under this rule during the period covered by such flights as fit for flight, or

(b) of which any engine has been run for one hundred hours, without having been so certified during the period covered by such running as being in order.

Official inspection.

30. Any person authorised by the Governor General in Council by general or special order in writing in this behalf may at any time inspect any passenger aircraft, and the certificate of airworthiness of any aircraft deemed as a result of such inspection to be unsafe may be cancelled or suspended by the authority by which such certificate was issued.

Examination before each flight.

31. (1) No passenger aircraft shall on any day proceed on any journey carrying passengers unless it has previously been examined on that day by a person other than the pilot of such aircraft.

(2) Such examination shall be made of both the aircraft and the engine or engines by a person approved, or by persons respectively approved, for the purpose of examination of aircraft and engines under this rule, by such officer as may be authorised by the Governor General in Council by general or special order in writing in that behalf.

(3) If on such examination the aircraft and each engine thereof are found to be in every way fit for the flight or flights proposed, the examiner in each case shall sign a certificate in duplicate to that effect in Form L set out in Schedule VI, which certificates shall state the date on which and the hour at which they were signed and shall be countersigned by a person (who may be the pilot of the aircraft) in the employment of the owner.

Use of certificates.

32. One copy of each of the certificates prescribed in rules 29 and 31 shall be retained by the owner of the aircraft, and the other shall be carried in the aircraft.

33. The pilot of every passenger aircraft shall, before commencing any flight, satisfy himself that the aircraft does not carry more than the load specified in the certificate of airworthiness, and that the aircraft is fit in every way for the proposed journey, and shall sign a certificate to that effect in Form M set out in Schedule VI, which certificate shall be carried in the aircraft.

Pilot to record certificate of load.

PART VI

NATIONALITY AND REGISTRATION MARKS.

34. (1) The nationality and registration marks shall be affixed in black on a white ground in the following manner, and underlined with a black line :—

Marks how to be affixed.

(a) In the case of flying machines, the marks shall be painted once on the lower surface of the lower main planes, and once on the upper surface of the top main planes, the top of the letters towards the leading edge. They shall also be painted along each side of the fuselage between the main planes and the tail planes. In cases where the machine is not provided with a fuselage, the marks shall be painted on the nacelle

(b) In the case of airships, the marks shall be painted near the maximum cross section on both sides and on the upper surface equidistant from the marks on the sides.

(2) The nationality mark in the case of flying machines and airships shall also be painted on the port and starboard sides of the lower surface of the lowest tail planes or elevators and also on the upper surface of the top tail planes or elevators, whichever are the larger. It shall also be painted on both sides of the rudder, or on the outer sides of the outer rudders if more than one rudder is fitted.

(3) (a) In the case of flying machines the height of marks on the main planes and tail planes respectively shall be equal to four-fifths of the chord, and the marks on the rudder shall be as large as possible. The height of the marks on the fuselage or nacelle shall be equal to four-fifths of the depth of the narrowest part of that portion of the fuselage or nacelle on which the marks are painted.

(b) In the case of airships the nationality mark painted on the tail plane shall be equal in height to four-fifths of the chord of the tail plane and on the rudder shall be as large as possible. The height of the other marks shall be equal to at least one-twelfth of the circumference at the maximum transverse cross-section of the airship.

(c) In no case need the numbers or letters of the nationality and registration marks exceed eight feet in height.

(4) (a) The width of the numbers or letters shall be two-thirds of their height, and the thickness shall be one-sixth of their height The numbers or letters shall be painted in plain block type and shall be uniform in shape and size. A space equal to half the width of the numbers or letters shall be left between each number or letter.

(b) The thickness of the line underlining the marks shall be equal to the thickness of the numbers or letters, and the space between the bottom of the marks and the line shall be equal to the thickness of the line

(5) Where the nationality and registration marks appear together, a hyphen of a length equal to that of one of the numbers or letters shall be painted between the nationality mark and the registration mark.

(6) The nationality and registration marks shall be displayed to the best possible advantage in view of the constructional features of the aircraft. The marks shall be kept clean and visible.

PART VII.

LOG BOOKS.

35. (1) The log books required to be maintained in the case of each passenger or goods aircraft are—

Log books

(a) a journey log book ;

(b) an aircraft log book ;

(c) an engine log book for each engine ; and

(d) a signal log book.

(2) Each log book shall be a separate book, but all log books shall be kept together in the aircraft in a waterproof bag.

(3) Log books shall be maintained in the manner, and shall contain the particulars, required in the case of each by the provisions of Schedule V, and aircraft log books and engine log books shall be maintained in Forms N and O, respectively, set out in Schedule VI.

PART VIII.

RULES OF THE AIR

Lights and Signals.

Obligation to carry the required lights.

36. The rules concerning lights shall be complied with in all weathers from sunset to sunrise, and during such time no other lights which may be mistaken for the prescribed lights shall be exhibited. The said lights shall not be dazzling.

Lights to be carried

37. (1) A flying machine when in the air or manoeuvring on land or water under its own power shall carry the following lights, namely :—

(a) forward, a white light, visible in a dihedral angle of two hundred and twenty degrees bisected by a vertical plane through the line of flight, and of such a character as to be visible at a distance of at least five miles ;

(b) on the starboard side, a green light, so constructed and fixed as to show an unbroken light between two vertical planes, whose dihedral angle is one hundred and ten degrees when measured to the right from dead ahead, and of such a character as to be visible at a distance of at least three miles ;

(c) on the port side, a red light, so constructed and fixed as to show an unbroken light between two vertical planes whose dihedral angle is one hundred and ten degrees when measured to the left from dead ahead, and of such a character as to be visible at a distance of at least three miles ; and

(2) The green and red sidelights shall be fitted so that the green light shall not be seen from the port side, nor the red light from the starboard side.

(3) Where, in order to fulfil the conditions of visibility laid down in clauses (a) to (d) of sub-rule (1), a single light has to be replaced by several lights, the field of visibility of each of these lights should be so limited that in no case can more than one be seen at a time.

Explanation.—The angular limits referred to in this rule shall be determined when the aircraft is in its normal position for flying on a rectilinear horizontal course.

Airships.

38. (1) The foregoing rules as to the lighting of flying machines shall apply to airships, subject to the following modifications, namely :—

(a) All lights shall be doubled, the forward and aft lights vertically, and the side lights horizontally ;

(b) Both lights of each pair forward and aft shall be visible at the same time ;

(c) The distance between lights comprising a pair shall not be less than six feet.

(2) An airship when being towed shall carry the lights required by sub-rule (1), and in addition those specified in rule 40 for airships not under control.

Flying machine not under control.

39. A flying machine, when on the surface of the water and when not under control, that is to say, not able to manoeuvre as required by the regulations for preventing collisions at sea, shall carry two red lights not less than six feet apart in a vertical line one over the other, and of such a character as to be visible all round the horizon at a distance of at least two miles. In addition, the side lights must be shown if the flying machine is under way.

Airship not under control, etc.

40. (1) An airship, which from any cause is not under control, or which has voluntarily stopped its engines, shall, in addition to the other prescribed lights, display conspicuously two red lights, one over the other approximately in a vertical line, not less than six feet apart and constructed to show a light in all directions and of such a character as to be visible at a distance of at least two miles.

(2) By day an airship, when being towed, or which from any cause is not under control, shall display conspicuously two black balls or shapes, each two feet in diameter, placed one over the other and approximately in a vertical line.

(3) By day an airship moored or under way, but having voluntarily stopped its engines shall display conspicuously a black ball or shape two feet in diameter, and shall be treated by other aircraft as being not under control.

Moored airship.

41. (1) An airship, when moored near the ground, shall carry the lights required by sub-rule (1) of rule 38.

(2) In addition, if moored but not near the ground, the airship shall carry below the car at a distance of not less than twenty feet, three lights in a vertical line one over the other not less than six feet apart. The highest and lowest of these lights shall be red, and the middle light shall be white, and they shall be of such a character as to be visible in all directions at a distance of at least two miles.

(3) In addition, the mooring cable shall have attached to it at intervals of one thousand feet, measured from the airship, groups of three lights similar to those mentioned in the preceding paragraph. In addition, the object to which the airship is moored on the ground shall have a similar group of lights to mark its position.

(4) By day the mooring cable shall carry in the same positions as the groups of lights specified in the preceding paragraph, and in lieu thereof, tubular streamers, not less than eight inches in diameter and six feet in length, marked with alternate bands of white and red eighteen inches in width.

Stationary flying machine

42. A flying machine stationary on land or water, but not moored or anchored, shall carry lights as prescribed in rule 37.

Prevention of collisions.

43. In order to prevent collisions with surface craft, the following provisions shall have effect, namely :—

(a) A flying machine when at anchor or moored on the water shall carry forward where it can best be seen a white light so constructed as to show an unbroken light visible all round the horizon at a distance of at least one mile.

(b) A flying machine of one hundred and fifty feet or upwards in length, when at anchor or moored on the water, shall in the forward part carry one such light, and at or near the stern, and, at such a height that it shall be not less than fifteen feet lower than the forward light, another such light.

Explanation.—The length of a flying machine shall be deemed to be the overall length.

(c) A flying machine of one hundred and fifty feet or upwards in span, when at anchor or moored in the water, shall carry in addition at each lower wing tip one such light as is specified in clause (a).

Explanation.—The span of a flying machine shall be deemed to be the maximum lateral dimension.

Failure of lights

44. In the event of the failure of any of the lights prescribed in this Part, the aircraft shall land at the first reasonably safe opportunity.

Savings.

45. Nothing in these rules shall interfere with the operation of any special rules made by the Government of any State with respect to the additional station and signal lights for two or more aircraft or for aircraft in formation, or with the exhibition of recognition signals adopted by owners of aircraft which have been authorised by their respective Governments and duly registered and published.

Landing at night.

46. (1) Aircraft proposing to land at night on aerodromes having a ground control shall before landing fire a green Very's light or flash a green lamp, and in addition shall make by international Morse code the letter group forming its call sign.

(2) Permission to land will be given by the repetition of the same call sign from the ground followed by a green Very's light or the flashing of a green lamp.

(3) The firing of a red Very's light or the display of a red flare from the ground shall be taken as an instruction that aircraft are not to land.

(4) An aircraft compelled to land at night shall, before landing, fire a red Very's light, or make a series of short flashes with the navigation lights.

Aircraft in distress.

47. When an aircraft is in distress and requires assistance, the following signals shall be used or displayed, either together or separately, namely :—

(1) the international signal, S O.S., by means of visual or wireless signals ;

(2) the international code flag signal of distress, indicated by NC ;

(3) the distant signal consisting of a square flag, having either above or below it a ball or anything resembling a ball ;

(4) a continuous sounding with any sound apparatus ;

(5) a signal consisting of a succession of white Very's lights, fired at short intervals.

Sound signals.

48. In fog, mist, falling snow, or heavy rainstorm, whether by day or night, an aircraft on the water shall make the following sound signals with any sound apparatus, namely :—

(a) if not anchored or moored, a sound at intervals of not more than two minutes, consisting of two blasts of about five seconds' duration, with an interval of about one second between them ;

(b) if at anchor or moored, a sound at intervals of not more than one minute, consisting of one blast of about five seconds' duration.

Air traffic.

General rules.

49. (1) Flying machines shall always give way to airships, and flying machine and airships shall always give way to balloons, whether fixed or free.

(2) A motor-driven aircraft must always manœuvre according to these rules as soon as it is apparent that, if it pursued its course, it would pass at a distance of less than two hundred yards from any part of another aircraft.

(3) When two motor-driven aircraft are meeting end on, or nearly end on, each shall alter its course to starboard.

(4) When two motor-driven aircraft are on courses which cross, the aircraft which has the other on its own starboard side shall keep out of the way of the other.

(5) An aircraft overtaking any other shall keep out of the way of the overtaken aircraft by altering its own course to starboard, and shall not pass by diving.

(6) Every aircraft coming up with another aircraft from any direction more than one hundred and ten degrees from ahead, that is to say, in such a position with reference to the aircraft which it is overtaking that at night it would be unable to see either of that aircraft's sidelights, shall be deemed to be an overtaking aircraft; and no subsequent alteration of the bearing between the two aircraft shall make the overtaking aircraft a crossing aircraft within the meaning of this rule, or relieve it of the duty of keeping clear of the overtaken aircraft until it is finally past and clear.

Explanation.—As by day the overtaking aircraft cannot always know with certainty whether it is forward of or abaft this direction from the other aircraft, it should, if in doubt, assume that it is an overtaking aircraft and keep out of the way.

(7) Where under this rule one of two aircraft is to keep out of the way, the other shall keep its course and speed. When in consequence of thick weather or other causes, such other aircraft finds itself so close that collision cannot be avoided by the action alone of the aircraft giving way, it shall take such action as will best serve to avert collision.

(8) Every aircraft which is required by these rules to keep out of the way of another aircraft shall, if the circumstances of the case admit, avoid crossing ahead of the other.

(9) In following an officially recognised aerial route, every aircraft, when it is safe and practicable, shall keep to the right side of such route.

(10) Aircraft on land or water about to ascend shall not attempt to take off until there is no risk of collision with alighting aircraft.

(11) Every aircraft in a cloud, fog, mist or other conditions of bad visibility, shall proceed with caution, careful regard being had to the existing circumstances and conditions.

(12) In obeying and construing the provisions of this rule, due regard shall be had to all dangers of navigation and collision and to any special circumstances which may render necessary a departure from the said provisions in order to avoid immediate danger.

(13) The dropping of ballast other than fine sand or water from aircraft in the air is prohibited.

Rules to be observed in the vicinity of approved aerodromes.

50. (1) (a) At every approved aerodrome a flag hoisted in a prominent position shall be taken as an indication that, if an aircraft about to land finds it necessary to make a circuit or partial circuit, such circuit shall be left-handed (anti-clockwise) or right-handed (clockwise) according to the colour of the flag. A blue flag shall indicate a right-handed circuit, that is to say, that the flag is kept to the starboard side or side which carries the green light of the aircraft, and a red flag shall indicate a left-handed circuit, that is to say, that the red flag is kept to the port side or side which carries the red light of the aircraft.

(b) Similarly, aircraft leaving an approved aerodrome shall conform to the circuit as indicated by the flag.

(2) When an aircraft starts from an approved aerodrome, it shall not turn until five hundred yards distant from the nearest point of the aerodrome, and the turning then made shall conform with the circuit indication.

(3) An aircraft flying between five hundred and one thousand yards distance from the nearest point of an approved aerodrome shall conform to the circuit indication, unless such aircraft is flying at a greater height than six thousand five hundred feet.

(4) Side slip and trick landings are prohibited at approved aerodromes, and trick flying is prohibited within a distance in any direction of at least two thousand yards from the nearest point of any such aerodrome.

(5) An aircraft, when taking off from or alighting on an approved aerodrome, shall do so up-wind, except when the natural conditions of the aerodrome do not permit.

(6) In the case of two or more aircraft approaching an approved aerodrome for the purpose of landing, the aircraft flying at the greater height shall be responsible for avoiding the aircraft at the lower height, and shall, as regards landing, comply with theprovisions of sub-rule (5) of rule 49.

(7) Aircraft showing signals of distress shall be given free way in attempting to make a landing on an approved aerodrome.

(8) Every approved aerodrome shall be considered to consist of three zones when looking up-wind. The right-hand zone shall be the taking-off zone, and the left hand shall be the landing zone. Between these two there shall be a neutral zone. An aircraft when landing should attempt to land as near as possible to the neutral zone, but on the left of any aircraft which have already landed. After slowing up or coming to a stop at the end of its landing run, an aircraft will immediately move into the neutral zone. Similarly, an aircraft when taking-off shall keep as far as possible towards the right of the taking-off zone, but shall keep clear to the left of any aircraft which are taking off or are about to take-off.

(9) No aircraft shall commence to take off until a preceding aircraft is clear of the aerodrome.

(10) The above rules shall apply equally to night landings on approved aerodromes, when the signals, if exhibited, shall be as follows, namely :—

(a) A red light shall indicate a left-handed circuit, and a green light shall indicate a right-handed circuit. The right-hand zone will be marked by white lights placed in the position of an "L," and the left-hand zone will be similarly marked The "L's" shall be back to back, that is to say, the long arms of the "L's" will indicate the borders of the neutral zone. The direction of landing shall invariably be along the long arm of the "L" and towards the short arm. The lights of the "L's" should be so placed that the lights indicating the top extremity of the long arm shall be the nearest point on the aerodrome upon which an aeroplane can safely touch ground. The lights indicating the short arm of the "L" should indicate the limit of safe landing ground for the aircraft, that is, that the aeroplane should not over-run the short arm

(b) Where it is desired to save lights and personnel, the following system may be used :—

Two lights shall be placed on the windward side of the aerodrome to mark the limits of the neutral zone, the line joining the lights being at right angles to the direction of the wind; two more lights shall be placed as follows, namely, one on the leeward side of the aerodrome on a line drawn parallel to the direction of the wind and passing midway between the two lights on the windward side, for showing the extent of the aerodrome and the direction of the wind; and the other midway between the two lights marking the limits of the neutral zone.

Additional lights may be symmetrically placed along the boundary lines of the neutral zone and on the ends of the taking off and landing zones, on the line through the three lights on the windward side.

(11) No airship shall, in the vicinity of any aerodrome, be moored otherwise than near the ground without the special authorisation of the proprietor of such aerodrome

Manœuvring on water.

51. Every aircraft manœuvring under its own power on the water shall conform to any regulation for the time being in force for preventing collisions at sea, and for the purposes of such regulations shall be deemed to be a steam-vessel, but shall carry lights as laid down in this Part, and not those specified for steam-vessels in those regulations. The sound signals specified in those regulations shall not be used by or apply to such aircraft, save as provided in rules 47 and 48.

Obligation to observe ordinary precautions.

52. Mere compliance with the provisions of this Part shall not be deemed to exonerate the owner or personnel of any aircraft from the consequences of neglect of any precaution which may be required by the ordinary practice of the air or by the special circumstances of any particular case.

PART IX.

RULES AS TO AIRCRAFT ARRIVING IN OR DEPARTING FROM BRITISH INDIA.

Customs-aerodromes and Customs-officers.

53. The Governor General in Council may for the purposes of this Part—

(a) by notification in the Gazette of India declare any aerodrome to be a customs-aerodrome; and

(b) appoint persons to be Chief Customs-authorities, Chief Customs-officers and Customs-collectors, and define the areas within which each such person shall exercise the powers and perform the duties conferred and imposed upon him hereunder.

Arrival and departure.

54. (1) Every person in charge of an aircraft entering British India shall [illegible] landed in British India, and the first [illegible] shall be made at a [illegible] aircraft is compelled to land before arriving at a customs-aerodrome by [illegible] weather or other unavoidable cause.

(3) No person in charge of an aircraft shall fly the same or allow it to be flown to a place outside British India save from a customs-aerodrome unless compelled to land after departure from a customs-aerodrome by accident, stress of weather or other unavoidable cause.

55. (1) No person in any aircraft entering or departing from British India shall carry or allow to be carried in the aircraft any goods of which the import or export by sea or by land is prohibited by or under any law for the time being in force.

Import and export of goods.

(2) No person in any aircraft entering British India shall break or alter any seal placed upon any part of the aircraft or upon any goods therein by an officer of customs at the aerodrome at which such aircraft departed for British India.

56. (1) The person in charge of any aircraft arriving at a customs-aerodrome from a place outside British India shall, on landing, forthwith cause the aircraft to be taken to the examination station at that aerodrome or, if, owing to circumstances over which he has no control, he is unable so to do, shall make the report required by sub-rule (2), and thereafter remove all goods carried in the aircraft to the examination station in the presence of a Customs-collector or some person duly authorised by the Customs-collector in that behalf.

Procedure on arrival in British India.

(2) Within twenty-four hours after the landing at any customs-aerodrome of an aircraft from a place outside British India, the person in charge thereof shall —

(a) make a report to the Customs-collector in such form as may be approved by the Chief Customs-authority;

(b) deliver to the Customs-collector with such report his log book and a manifest, list of passengers and their baggage and declaration of the goods and stores on board the aircraft signed by the proper officer of customs at the aerodrome from which he departed for British India; and

(c) land at such aerodrome for examination all passengers and their baggage carried in such aircraft, and, after making such report, produce, and, if required to do so, unload all goods in such aircraft for examination.

57. (1) The person in charge of every aircraft in which goods are to be exported shall, before any goods are taken on board, deliver to the Customs-collector at the customs-aerodrome of departure a notice of departure for a foreign destination in Form P set out in Schedule VI, containing the particulars specified in that Form.

Procedure on departure from British India

(2) Every person in charge of an aircraft proceeding to any place outside British India shall deliver to the Customs-collector at the customs-aerodrome of departure, together with any log books belonging to the aircraft and a list of passengers and their baggage an application in duplicate for clearance from that aerodrome in such form as may be approved by the Chief Customs-authority, and also, if the aircraft carries any goods, a manifest and declaration in a form approved in like manner declaring the goods and stores on such aircraft, and shall truly state therein the particulars required by such forms; and such forms, when signed by such Collector, shall be the clearance and authority for the aircraft to proceed to its foreign destination.

58. (1) No person importing goods shall land the goods at any place in British India other than a customs-aerodrome, or shall, save as provided in sub rule (1) of rule 56, unload the goods from any aircraft except at an examination station, or shall unload the goods except between such hours as the Chief Customs-authority by general or special order directs, or shall remove the goods from an examination station unless the same have first been duly entered in the manner provided in this rule and produced to the Customs-collector and duly passed by him.

Unloading of goods on import.

(2) No person shall remove from any aircraft any goods imported therein until the report required by clause (a) of sub-rule (2) of rule 56 has been made, and the authority of the Customs-collector has been obtained.

(3) Any person importing goods shall deliver to the Customs-collector at the customs-aerodrome of importation a bill of entry of such goods in the manner provided in section 29 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878, and shall truly furnish therein the several particulars required in a bill of entry under that section, and shall pay to such Collector duties thereon as if such goods were chargeable to duties under that Act. VIII of 1878

(4) All goods imported into a customs-aerodrome shall be duly entered and unloaded within seven days from the time of the arrival of such aircraft at that aerodrome or within such further period as the Customs-collector or Chief Customs-officer may allow.

(5) All goods imported which have not been examined and passed by the Customs-collector shall be stored in a transit shed at the customs-aerodrome, and no person shall remove such goods from the transit shed before they have been examined and passed by such Collector.

59. (1) The exporter of any goods shall deliver to the Customs-collector at the customs-aerodrome of departure a shipping bill in the manner provided in section 29 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878, and shall truly furnish therein the several particulars required in a shipping bill under that section, and shall pay to such Collector duties thereon as if such goods were VIII of 1878

chargeable to duties under that Act, and such bill when signed by the Customs-collector shall be the clearance and authority for the exportation of such goods.

(2) No person shall without the consent of the Customs-collector unload from any aircraft any goods loaded thereon for export which have been cleared under sub-rule (1), or open, alter, or break any lock, mark or seal placed by any Customs-collector on any goods in any aircraft about to depart from British India.

Prohibition of signals in certain cases.

60. No person shall for the purpose of evading, or assisting the evasion of, the provisions of this Part make any signal from an aircraft entering or leaving British India.

Forced landings

61. If any aircraft arriving from a place outside British India shall be forced to land in any place other than a customs-aerodrome, or if any aircraft is so forced after departure from a customs-aerodrome for a foreign destination, the person in charge of the aircraft shall, if the place of landing is not an aerodrome, forthwith report to a Customs-collector or Police-officer, and shall on demand produce to such Collector or officer the log books belonging to the aircraft, and shall not allow any goods to be unloaded therefrom without the consent of such Customs-collector, and no passenger or member of the personnel thereof shall leave the immediate vicinity without the consent of such Collector or Police-officer When the locality is one in which no Customs-collector or Police-officer is available, the person in charge shall not allow any goods to be unloaded without his consent, and no passenger or member of the personnel shall leave the immediate vicinity without his consent. The person in charge shall make in his log book a full statement of the action taken, and shall forthwith report the occurrence to the Customs-collector at the nearest customs-aerodrome. If the place of landing is an aerodrome, such person shall forthwith report the arrival of the aircraft and the place whence it came to the proprietor of the aerodrome, and the proprietor of the aerodrome shall forthwith report the arrival of the aircraft to a Customs-collector, and shall not allow any goods to be unloaded therefrom, or any passenger thereof to leave the aerodrome, without the consent of such Collector.

Examination.

62. (1) The person in charge of any aircraft shall permit any Customs-collector or other officer authorised in this behalf by the Customs-collector at any time to board and examine the aircraft and any goods laden thereon.

(2) The importer or exporter of any goods shall produce such goods to the Customs-collector at the customs-aerodrome of importation or exportation, as the case may be, and permit him to examine such goods.

Provisions of Act VIII of 1878 to be deemed to apply to import and export

63. All persons importing or exporting or concerned in importing or exporting goods or passengers into or from British India, and all persons in charge of aircraft arriving in or departing from British India, shall so far as may be observe, comply with and be bound by the provisions of the Sea Customs Act, 1878, as if any references in such provisions to ships or vessels and the masters or captains thereof, and to the loading or unloading of goods thereon or therefrom, included references to aircraft and the persons in charge thereof, and to the loading or unloading of goods thereon or therefrom, and as if references in such provisions to a port or quay included references to a customs-aerodrome or an examination station. VIII of 1878

Exemption of aircraft proceeding to or from Indian States.

64. Nothing in this Part, save the provisions of rule 55, shall apply in the case of aircraft—

(a) entering British India from a State in India and not bound for a place outside India, or

(b) departing from British India for a State in India.

PART X.

GENERAL.

Inspection.

Inspection.

65. Any officer of Government authorised by the Governor General in Council by general or special order in writing in this behalf may—

(a) at all reasonable times enter any place to which access is necessary for the purpose of exercising his powers or carrying out his duties under these rules;

(b) at all times during working hours enter that portion of any factory in which aircraft or parts of aircraft are being manufactured or assembled and inspect and examine any such factory, aircraft or parts and any drawings relating to such parts;

(c) enter, inspect and search any aircraft which he has reason to believe contains explosives, arms, ammunition, wireless telegraphic apparatus or goods which are being or have been imported or are being exported;

(d) enter and inspect any place where aircraft are kept.

Foreign Aircraft.

Exemption of foreign aircraft.

66. The provisions of these rules as to—

(a) registration of aircraft,
(b) licensing of personnel,
(c) airworthiness, and
(d) log books,

shall not apply in the case of any foreign aircraft during one month from the date of its arrival in British India:

Provided that—

(i) no person shall fly or land, or assist in flying or landing, any foreign naval, military or air-force aircraft over or in British India except on or with the invitation or permission in writing of the Governor General in Council, and in the case of any such aircraft landing on such invitation or with such permission the exemption provided by this rule shall apply only to such extent and on such conditions as may be specified in the invitation or permission, and

(ii) where any foreign aircraft, after first landing in British India, is flown over any part thereof except in such manner as may be necessary in order to proceed to a foreign destination, all the provisions of these rules shall apply in the case of such aircraft, unless there are carried in the aircraft and produced for inspection, as and when required by any officer specified in, or authorised under, rule 14, certificates and licences issued, and log books in the form approved, by a responsible authority in the country to which the aircraft belongs, complying substantially with the requirements of these rules.

Exemptions

General power to exempt.

67. The Governor General in Council may by general or special order in writing exempt any aircraft or class of aircraft or any person or class of persons from the operation of these rules either wholly or partially, subject to such conditions, if any, as may be specified in such order.

Penalty.

Penalty.

68. Any person contravening any of the rules contained in Part II or any other of these rules with which by any rule contained in Part II he is required to comply, shall where no punishment is provided for such contravention in the Indian Aircraft Act, 1911, be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to one month, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, or with both. XVII of 1911.

SCHEDULE I

(See rules 21, 22 and 23.)

QUALIFICATIONS FOR GRANT OF MEDICAL CERTIFICATE.

(a) Good personal and family history, with particular reference to nervous stability. Absence of any mental, moral or physical defect which will interfere with flying efficiency.

(b) The minimum age for pilots and navigators of passenger or goods aircraft shall be nineteen years

(c) The applicant must neither suffer from any wound, injury or operation, nor possess any abnormality, congenital or otherwise, which will interfere with the efficient and safe handling of aircraft.

(d) The applicant must not suffer from any disease or disability which renders him liable suddenly to become incompetent in the management of aircraft. His heart, lungs, kidneys and nervous system must be capable of withstanding the effects of altitude and of prolonged flight.

(e) The applicant must possess a degree of visual acuity compatible with the efficient performance of his duties. No pilot or navigator shall have more than two dioptres of latent hypermetropia; muscle balance must be good and commensurate with the refraction. He must have a good field of vision in each eye, and must possess normal colour perception.

(f) The middle ear must be healthy. The applicant must possess a degree of auditory acuity compatible with the efficient performance of his duties

(g) The vestibular mechanism must be intact, and neither unduly hypersensitive nor hyposensitive.

(h) The applicant must possess free nasal air entry on either side, and not suffer from serious acute or chronic affections of the upper respiratory tract.

SCHEDULE H.

(See rule 21.)

NATURE OF EXAMINATION TO BE UNDERGONE FOR THE GRANT TO AN APPLICANT FOR A PILOT'S LICENCE OF A CERTIFICATE OF FLYING COMPETENCY.

I.—For Flying Machine Licence.

Certificates are of two kinds—

"A" of flying competency for pilots of private flying machines (not valid for the flying of passenger or goods aircraft);

"B" of flying competency for pilots of passenger or goods flying machines.

Certificates may be granted in each case by two examiners approved in that behalf by the officer authorised under rule 19.

PRACTICAL TESTS

The practical tests for certificates of flying competency shall be carried out within a period of one month.

They may be carried out in any order and each may be attempted twice

They shall, save as otherwise provided, be witnessed by both examiners who will forward their official reports to the officer authorised under rule 19.

In each practical test the candidate must be alone in the flying machine.

"A" certificate of flying competency for pilots of private flying machines

(a) Test for altitude and gliding flight—A flight without landing, during which the pilot shall remain for at least an hour at a minimum altitude of 6,000 feet above the point of departure. The descent shall finish with a glide, the engines being cut off at 4 500 feet above the landing ground The landing shall be made without the engine being started again, within 150 yards of a point fixed beforehand by the examiners.

(b) Test of skill.—A flight without landing round two posts (or buoys) situated 500 yards apart, making a series of five figure-of-eight turns, each turn reaching one of the two posts (or buoys). This flight shall be made at an altitude of not more than 600 feet above the ground (or water) without touching the ground (or water) The landing shall be effected by—

(i) finally shutting off the engine or engines at latest when the aircraft touches the ground (or water), and

(ii) finally stopping the flying machine within a distance of 50 yards from a point fixed by the candidate before starting.

(c) Cross-country flight.—A cross-country or oversea flight of at least 50 miles, the final landing being made at the point of departure.

"B" certificate of flying competency for pilots of passenger or goods flying machines.

The practical tests shall be as in clauses (a) and (b) above. Candidates already in possession of the "A" certificate are not required to pass these tests again.

Further practical tests shall be as follows:—

Test of endurance.—A cross-country or oversea flight of at least 200 miles, the final landing being made at the point of departure.

This flight shall be carried out in the same aircraft within eight hours, and include two obligatory landings during which the machine must come to rest at a point or points which shall not be the point of departure but which shall be fixed by the examiners.

At the time of departure the candidate shall be informed of his course and furnished with a map. The examiners will decide if the course has been correctly followed Night flight.—A thirty minutes' flight at an altitude of at least 1,500 feet and also a landing to be made between two hours after sunset and two hours before sunrise.

Recent flying experience test.—This is to be carried out on the type of machine for which the licence is required. It is to be a flying test of at least two hours with four landings in each of which no part of the machine is damaged.

This test need not be carried out in the presence of the examiners; but the candidate must submit proof to their satisfaction that he has performed this test.

TECHNICAL EXAMINATION.

The technical examination for both "A" and "B" certificates shall be in the following subjects:—

Rules of the air as contained in Part VIII .

Theoretical abstract knowledge of the resistance of the air in connection with planes, rudders, elevators and propellers; functions of the different parts of the machine and of their controls.

Assembling of aeroplanes, propellers, undercarriages, rudders, elevators and their controls.

Practical tests on rigging.

General knowledge of internal combustion engines, and their various functions; valve gear, carburation, ignition, exhaust.

Characteristics of aero-engines and a general idea of their construction, adjustment and assembling.

Causes of the faulty running of engines. Fuel and oils. Description of the details of the aero-engines used. Adjustments, lubrication, upkeep dissembling and assembling of the principal parts. Causes of breakdown. Use of throttle and other controls.

Practical tests in running repairs.

II. For Airship Licence.

The examination for certificates of flying competency for pilots of airships shall be conducted in a similar manner to those for the flying machine licence with such modifications as may be permitted by the examiners under the directions of the officer authorised under rule 19.

The Technical Examination shall also include knowledge of the properties of gases and the theory of Ballooning

SCHEDULE III.

(See rules 22 and 23.)

NATURE OF EXAMINATION TO BE UNDERGONE FOR GRANT TO AN APPLICANT FOR A NAVIGATOR'S OR ENGINEER'S LICENCE OF A CERTIFICATE OF TECHNICAL COMPETENCY.

Certificates may be granted in each case by an examiner approved in this behalf by the officer authorised under rule 19. The examination shall be in the following subjects :—

For Navigators.

Rules of the air as contained in Part VIII.

Map and chart reading and location of position.

Compass—magnetic meridian—declination, deviation, variation.

Courses—bearings—and their corrections.

Compensation of compasses (theoretical and practical).

Calculations of azimuth.

Flight by dead reckoning—measure of the relative speed—drift, traverse table.

Chronometer – chronometer rate—comparisons.

Sextants—adjustments.

Nautical almanac.

Determination of positions by means of bearings and altitudes of stars.

Aeronautical navigational instruments.

Meteorology and weather charts.

International rules for aerial and maritime navigation and other international aerial legislation.

For Engineers.

Rules of the air as contained in Part VIII.

General knowledge of internal combustion engines, and their various functions; valve gear, carburation, ignition, exhaust.

Characteristics of aero-engines and a general idea of their construction, adjustment and assembling.

Causes of the faulty running of engines. Fuel and oils. Description of the details of the aero-engines used. Adjustments, lubrication, upkeep, dissembling and assembling of the principal parts. Causes of breakdown. Use of throttle and other controls.

Practical tests in running repairs.

SCHEDULE IV.

(See rules 27 and 28.)

CONDITIONS SUBJECT TO WHICH CERTIFICATES OF AIRWORTHINESS MAY BE ISSUED IN RESPECT OF TYPE AIRCRAFT AND TO SUBSEQUENT AIRCRAFT OF THE SAME TYPE.

Type Aircraft.

(1) The applicant shall forward with his application a copy of any certificate of airworthiness which may have been granted in respect of such type aircraft.

The applicant shall also send general arrangement drawings of the proposed aircraft, together with such particulars of load, fuel, engines, etc., as will enable a preliminary opinion to be formed as to general safety.

(2) The applicant shall forward either with the application or subsequently such drawings and particulars of the proposed aircraft as may be necessary for the checking in detail of the safety of the aircraft. (Blue prints or rough sketches may be sufficient to enable the said checking to proceed provided they are fully dimensioned.)

(3) The applicant may proceed with the construction of any part or parts of the aircraft as and when these are approved by the officer authorised under sub-rule (1) of rule 27 (in this Schedule referred to as the Officer).

(4) The workmanship and materials of construction of the aircraft shall be approved by the Officer in accordance with detailed directions in clause (17) of this Schedule.

(5) On completion of the aircraft, flying trials shall be carried out by the applicant's or constructor's pilot in the presence of the Officer or of persons nominated by him (in this Schedule referred to as the representatives of the Officer).

(6) After the satisfactory completion of the check calculations, inspection, and applicant's flying trials, and after any modifications considered necessary for safety have been completed to the satisfaction of the Officer, the applicant may be instructed to deliver the aircraft for official trials to such aerodrome as the Officer may specify (in this Schedule referred to as the official aerodrome).

(7) At any time prior to the delivery of the aircraft for official trials, modifications to the aircraft may be made by the applicant, provided that full particulars and drawings of the proposed modifications are first submitted to the Officer and that such as affect the safety of the aircraft are approved by him.

(8) During official trials, which may be attended by such number of representatives of the applicant as the Officer may approve, the aircraft will be in the charge of the representatives of the Officer, but the Officer and his representatives shall not be liable for any loss or damage caused to such aircraft during official trials.

(9) If any modifications are considered by the Officer to be necessary for safety as a result of such official trials, such modifications shall be carried out by the applicant, and on completion thereof the aircraft shall be delivered, if required, for further official trials.

(10) On the completion of official trials, the applicant will be notified, and reports on calculations and tests will be supplied to him by the Officer on application. The aircraft will, as the Officer may direct, either be handed over to the applicant at the official aerodrome for removal, or be delivered by an official pilot to an aerodrome selected by the applicant and approved by the Officer.

(11) On the satisfactory completion of the official trials, and after the completion to the satisfaction of the Officer of any modifications considered necessary for safety, a certificate of airworthiness will be issued. Prior to the issue of such certificate the applicant shall deliver to the Officer a complete set of working drawings (process tracing) of the aircraft.

Subsequent Aircraft.

(12) Following the receipt by the Officer of an application form duly completed, certificates of airworthiness for subsequent aircraft which conform in all essential respects with a type aircraft for which a certificate of airworthiness has previously been issued will be granted subject to the conditions and procedure hereinafter specified.

(13) The applicant may make modifications (including change of engine type) to the aircraft and may depart from the approved complete set of working drawings (process tracings) of the type aircraft which were delivered under clause (11) of this Schedule; but full particulars and drawings of the proposed modification shall first be delivered to the Officer and such as affect the safety of the aircraft shall be subject to his approval.

(14) During the construction of the aircraft the inspection of the workmanship, construction and materials shall be as approved by the Officer in accordance with the detailed directions in clause (18) of this Schedule.

(15) In the case of an aircraft which, in the opinion of the Officer, differs considerably from the type aircraft, or in the case of an aircraft built by a constructor not familiar with the type aircraft, the Officer may on completion of the aircraft require flying trials to be carried out by the applicant's or constructor's pilot in the presence of representatives of the Officer, and may require the aircraft to be delivered to the official aerodrome for additional trials. The procedure in this case will be in accordance with the procedure governing similar trials in the case of a type aircraft, as laid down in clauses (8), (9) and (10) of this Schedule.

(16) On the satisfactory completion of the aircraft and of any trials that may be required by the Officer, and when any modifications considered necessary for safety have been completed to the satisfaction of the Officer, a certificate of airworthiness will be issued.

Prior to the issue of such certificate, the applicant shall deliver to the Officer a complete set of working drawings (process tracing) of any modifications to or departure from the type aircraft.

Method of Approval of Workmanship and Materials.

(17) In the case of type aircraft—

(a) inspection of workmanship and materials will be carried out by representatives of the Officer;

(b) the Officer will accept wherever in his opinion possible the inspection of details, components and materials for type aircraft made by employees of the constructor under the supervision of a representative of such constructor, but each component will be finally inspected and approved by a representative of the Officer who will co-operate with the constructor's inspecting staff;

(c) constructors must notify the Officer seven days before commencing work on any part of the aircraft, the inspection of which is necessary prior to further work;

(d) the constructor must also fulfil the conditions detailed hereunder for subsequent aircraft.

(18) In the case of subsequent aircraft of a type—

(a) constructors must satisfy the Officer that their inspecting staff is such as to ensure that aircraft passed by them conform in all essential respects to the type design;

(b) constructors must purchase material to the specifications approved for the type design, and must arrange that each and every batch of material is proved to comply with those specifications by such examination, sampling and testing, as may be approved by the Officer;

(c) constructors must make such arrangements at their works as will preclude the use of material other than that approved as in sub-clause (b);

(d) constructors' inspecting staffs, referred to in sub-clause (a), must stamp, or otherwise provide means for the identification of, each and every detail in such a way that the individual responsible for such approval can subsequently be traced, selective inspection being adopted where considered possible,

(e) constructors must issue only details or parts in respect of which the provisions of sub-clause (d) have been complied with to the shops for assembly into components;

(f) constructors must maintain an efficient process inspection during such work of assembly and record such inspection on a process card for each component. Every component must be finally inspected by a qualified member of their inspecting staff, who will stamp the component in such a way that he may afterwards be identified, and will also sign the process card;

(g) constructor's methods of carrying out the following operations must be approved by the Officer or his representative, namely :—heat treatment of steel, seasoning and conversion of timber, gluing of important parts, and doping;

(h) constructors must ensure that all instruments and other parts affecting airworthiness purchased from sub-contractors have been inspected and approved in accordance with these conditions;

(i) constructors (of aircraft or engine as may be arranged) must ensure that all engines have been inspected and approved in accordance with these conditions, and further that they have satisfactorily undergone such bench tests as are required by the Officer and for this purpose that suitable test stands and accessories are provided to the satisfaction of the Officer;

(j) aircraft constructors must carry out an efficient inspection of the installation of all engines, instruments and parts that are fitted by them into the aircraft, such inspection to ensure that they function correctly, the individual responsible being indicated by a signature on the process card referred to in sub-clause (f);

(k) constructors must limit the power of their inspection staff to grant concessions to matters which do not affect the weight, the strength or the functioning of the part. Should any of these points be affected, the matter must be referred to the designer of the aircraft, and, if affecting the type design, to the Officer as laid down in the case of modifications to type designs.

Aircraft constructed outside British India.

(19) In the case of any type or subsequent aircraft constructed outside British India the Officer may in his discretion issue a certificate of airworthiness, although the conditions specified in this Schedule have not been fulfilled, if he is satisfied that they have been substantially fulfilled in the construction of the aircraft.

SCHEDULE V.

(See rule 36)

Instructions for maintenance of Log Books.

(1) The constructor, or the owner if the constructor is not in a position to do so, should fill in and sign the original entries in each log book Subsequent entries should be made and signed by the pilot or other responsible member of the personnel.

(2) A copy of the certificate of airworthiness should be kept in a pocket at the end of the aircraft log book

(3) All entries should be in ink, except in the case of journey and signal log books, the entries for which may be made in pencil in a rough notebook, but should be entered in ink in the log book every twenty-four hours.

In the event of any official investigation the rough notebook may be called for.

(4) No erasures should be made in, nor pages torn from, any log book.

(5) A copy of this Schedule should be inserted in each log book

(6) The various log books shall contain in each case the following particulars namely :—

(1) in the case of a journey log,—

(a) the type to which the aircraft belongs, its nationality and registration marks; the full name, nationality and residence of the owner; the name of the constructor; the carrying capacity; and

(b) in addition, for each journey,

(i) the name, nationality and residence of each member of the personnel, and

(ii) the place, date and hour of departure, the route followed, and all incidents of the journey, including landings and weather conditions;

(2) in the case of an aircraft log,—

(a) the type to which the aircraft belongs; its nationality and registration marks; the full name, nationality and residence of the owner; the name of the constructor; the carrying capacity; and the capacity of the tanks;

(b) the type and series number of engine, and the type of propeller, showing number pitch, diameter and maker's name;

(c) the type of wireless apparatus fitted, if any;

(d) a table showing the necessary rigging data for the information of persons in charge of the aircraft and of its maintenance; and

(e) a fully detailed engineering record of the life of the aircraft, including all acceptance tests, overhauls, replacements, repairs and all work of a like nature;

(3) in the case of an engine log,—

(a) the type of engine, series number, maker's name, power, normal and maximum revolutions of engine, date of acceptance and date on which first put into service; petrol consumption; oil consumption;

(b) the registration mark and the type of aircraft in which the engine has been installed; and

(c) a fully detailed engineering record of the life of the engine, including all acceptance tests, hours run, overhauls, replacements, repairs and all work of a like nature;

(4) in the case of a signal log,—

(a) the type to which the aircraft belongs; its nationality and registration marks; the full name, nationality and residence of the owner;

(b) the place, date and time of the transmission or reception of any signal; and

(c) the name or other indication of the person or station from or to whom or which a signal is received or sent.

ORDER.

No. 67-C. A.—In exercise of the powers conferred by the Indian Aircraft Rules, 1920, the Governor General in Council is pleased to authorise the officers named in the first column of the Schedule hereto annexed to exercise the powers specified in the corresponding entry in the second column thereof.

Schedule.

Column (1).	Column (2).
Secretary, Air Board.	(1) To grant certificates of approval in respect of aerodromes, under sub-rule 2 (1); (2) to grant, or authorise the grant of, exemptions under the proviso to rule 5; (3) to permit the dropping from aircraft of articles, other than ballast and mails, under rule 10 (2) (d) (iii); (4) to appoint approved aerodromes for the use of passenger aircraft, under rule 12 (2); (5) to demand the production of licences, certificates or log books, under rule 14; (6) to grant certificates of registration for aircraft, under rule 15. (7) to grant licences to personnel of aircraft, under rule 19; (8) to issue certificates of airworthiness, under rules 27 (1) and 28 (1); (9) to approve persons for the purpose of the periodical inspection and overhaul of aircraft and engines, under rule 29 (1); (10) to inspect aircraft, under rule 30; (11) to approve persons for the purpose of examination of aircraft and engines before each flight, under rule 31 (2); (12) to take action as provided in rule 65.
Chief Inspector of Aircraft or Aircraft Inspector.	(1) To demand the production of licences, certificates or log books, under rule 14; (2) to approve persons for the purpose of the periodical inspection and overhaul of aircraft and engines, under rule 29 (1); (3) to inspect aircraft, under rule 30; (4) to approve persons for the purpose of examination of aircraft and engines before each flight, under rule 31 (2); (5) to take action as provided in rule 65.

No. 68-C. A.—In exercise of the powers conferred by Rule 53 of the Indian Aircraft Rules, 1920, the Governor General in Council is pleased :—

(a) to declare the aerodrome at Karachi to be a custome aerodrome, and

(b) to appoint the Chief Customs-authority, the Chief Customs-officer and the Customs-collectors for the time being appointed for the port of Karachi, under the Sea Customs Act, 1878 (VIII of 1878), to be respectively the Chief Customs-authority, the Chief Customs-officer and Customs- collectors for the purposes of the said rules at the said customs-aerodrome.

No. 69-C. A.—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 7 of the Indian Aircraft Act, 1911 (XVII of 1911), and in supersession of the notification of the Government of India in the Home Department No. 555-C., dated the 27th November, 1914, the Governor General in Council is pleased to declare that :—

(1) the navigation of all aircraft over the place or places mentioned or described in the schedule hereto annexed shall be prohibited, and such places shall hereinafter be referred to as "prohibited areas" ;

(2) the persons appointed to give the signals referred to in section 7 A of the said Act and take the action therein provided shall be any commissioned officer of His Majesty's Naval, Military or Air Forces or of the Royal Indian Marine ;

(3) the following shall be the signals given when an aircraft flies or attempts to fly over any prohibited area, namely :—

By day : three discharges, at intervals of not less than ten seconds, of a projectile showing smoke on bursting ; and

By night : three discharges, at intervals of not less than ten seconds, of a projectile showing red stars or red lights ;

(4) on such signal being given, the aircraft shall immediately land at the nearest practicable spot ; provided that, if it be approaching or flying over any prohibited area, it shall not, in descending, advance further towards, or into, the area ;

(5) if an aircraft is unable to land immediately in response to the signals owing to stress of weather or other unavoidable cause, it shall make the following signals, namely :—

By day : show, from the place where they can be most clearly seen from below, a red triangular flag, together with two black balls superimposed vertically one above the other ;

By night : wave a white light, at the same time extinguishing the side lights ; and shall, as soon as possible, land at the nearest practicable spot in British India.

SAMPLES.

An Open General Licence has been issued which permits the free export of all bona-fide samples of prohibited goods to all destinations with which trade is now permitted. Samples exported under this licence may be used only for genuine sample purposes, i.e., for obtaining orders from foreign buyers, and may not be sold except with the written consent of the Export Licence Department, but such consent may be dispensed with when it is desired to sell the articles in the country of destination after they have fulfilled their purpose as samples. Exporters will be required to satisfy the Customs Authorities that the goods presented for export under this licence are bona-fide samples, and to make a declaration to that effect on the relative shipping documents.

This notice only applies to samples of goods which require licences for export to the particular destination concerned.

In addition, the consent of the Export Licence Department is not required for the sale of samples which, though within this scheme at the actual time they were exported, could be exported outside the scheme at the actual time of the proposed sale.

OPEN GENERAL LICENCE FOR COAL EXPORTS.

An Open General Licence has been issued, with effect from Thursday, 1st January, 1920, permitting the export of coal, coke and manufactured fuel to all destinations abroad except Russia, Germany, Hungary, Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria, subject always to the approval, previously obtained, of the Controller of Coal Mines or his duly authorised representative, and subject to shipment being made in a vessel approved by the Commissioners of Customs and Excise or their Officers.

The Customs Authorities will require pre-entry to be made in all cases; and at ports where there is a duly authorised local representative of the Controller of Coal Mines (see list below), the approval referred to above will be signified by his endorsement on the pre-entry form, which must be presented to him for the purpose before shipment.

Where shipment is proposed to be made from a port not included in the list given below it will be necessary for application for the Controller's approval to be made to the Export Branch of the Coal Mines Department in London. Shipments from all ports in the United Kingdom to the destinations excluded from the purview of the general licence must still be covered by an export licence from the Coal Mines Department.

The following are the ports shipments from which will be covered by the local representative's endorsement on pre-entry :—

District.	Controller's Representative.
All Scottish ports . . .	Mr. W. D. Fuller, 4, Dunlop Street, Glasgow.
From Amble to Middlesbrough inclusive.	Mr. W. R. Fisher, Guildhall Chambers, Quayside, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

United States of America.

South America.

Japan and Korea.

Asiatic Russia.

France, Belgium, Spain, Portugal, Greece, Italy, Serbia, Roumania, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, and Switzerland.

All destinations in Africa, with the exception of Algeria, Libya, and the Union of South Africa, are excepted from this Open General Licence, and will still require an export licence for all arms and ammunition.

OPEN GENERAL LICENCE FOR THE EXPORT OF AIRCRAFT, &c.

An Open General Licence has been issued for the export of the undermentioned goods to all destinations except Russia, Germany, Hungary, Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria. Applications are no longer to be made to the Export Licence Department in respect of the export of these goods to countries other than those mentioned :—" Aeroplane engines and their component parts. Aircraft, other than balloons of all kinds, and their component parts, together with accessories and articles suitable for use in connection with aircraft."

OPEN GENERAL LICENCE FOR THE EXPORT OF PARCELS CONTAINING MISCELLANEOUS FOODSTUFFS.

An Open General Licence has been issued for the export by parcel post of parcels containing miscellaneous foodstuffs (for the personal use of the addressee and not for trading purposes) to all destinations with which trading is allowed. Applications need, therefore, no longer be submitted to the Export Licence Department in respect of the export of such parcels by parcel post.

URGENT ORDERS.

The Board of Trade, Import and Export Section, announces that, in collaboration with the Department of Overseas Trade, an arrangement has been made whereby firms receiving orders which require immediate acceptance may telegraph details of any such order to the Department of Overseas Trade in order to ascertain whether a licence will be granted for the export of the goods if the order is accepted.

In the event of an applicant being promised a licence he will be enabled to deal with the order straightaway with the knowledge that upon application being made in the proper form to the Export Licence Department the licence will be granted.

The telegrams should be addressed to " Orders, c/o Advantage, Stock, London. " They should give in each case in addition to the name and postal or telegraphic address of the applicant the quantity and description of the goods comprised in the order and the name and address of the ultimate consignee if the goods are destined for a neutral country. In the case of orders from Allied or British Territory or from Territory in the occupation of troops of the Associated Governments, the consignee need not be stated; and it will be sufficient merely to give the country of destination. A reply of 24 words (1/8) must be prepaid.

Applicants are requested in their own interest to confine their enquiries to orders needing a very urgent decision, since the fewer the enquiries the more promptly can answers be given.

Any subsequent correspondence that is necessary in connection with the telegraphic enquiries should be addressed to the Comptroller General, Department of Overseas Trade (Export Facilities Section), 4, Queen Anne's Gate Buildings, Westminster, S.W. 1.

Bills introduced in the Indian Legislative Council, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council and Bills published under Rule 23.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Indian Legislative Council on the 30th January, 1920 :—

No. 1 OF 1920.

A Bill further to amend the Indian Steam-ships Act, 1884.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Steam-ships Act, 1884 (VII of 1884); It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Indian Steam-ships (Amendment) Act, 192 .

Repeal of section 6, Act VII of 1884.

2. Section 6 of the Indian Steam-ships Act, 1884 (VII of 1884), is hereby repealed.

Insertion of new section 14 in Act VII of 1884.

3. After section 13 of the Indian Steam-ships Act, 1884 (VII of 1884), the following section shall be inserted, namely :—

Penalty for carrying passengers in contravention of the Act.

"14. If a steam-ship on any voyage carries or attempts to carry passengers in contravention of section 4, or has on board or in any part thereof a number of passengers which is greater than the number set forth in the certificate of survey as the number of passengers which the steam-ship or the part thereof is, in the judgment of the surveyor, fit to carry on that voyage, the owner and the master shall each be punishable with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, and also with an additional fine not exceeding twenty rupees for every passenger above the number so set forth, or, if the fare of any passenger on board exceeds twenty rupees, not exceeding double the amount of the fares of all the passengers above the number so set forth, reckoned at the highest rate of fare payable by any passenger on board; and if the master or any other officer of any steam-ship which carries or attempts to carry passengers in contravention of section 4 is a licensed pilot, he shall be liable to have his license as a pilot suspended or cancelled for any period by the Local Government".

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Section 4 of the Indian Steam-ships Act, 1884 (VII of 1884), lays down that no steam-ship, as defined in section 3 (1), shall carry more than twelve passengers unless she has a certificate of survey granted under section 13. Section 13 provides that the certificate of survey shall specify, inter alia, the number of passengers which the steam-ship may carry. Section 6, as it stands at present, simply penalises the carrying by steam-ships of more than twelve passengers without a certificate of survey, and does not penalise the carrying of passengers in excess of the number specified in the certificate of survey. This lacuna in the Indian Steam-ships Act, 1884, has been found in practice to be inconvenient, and, with a view to correct it, it is proposed by this Bill to amend the Indian Steam-ships Act, 1884, so as to impose a penalty on the master and owner of a ship, which comes within the scope of the Act, for carrying passengers in excess of the number specified in the certificate of survey.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Indian Legislative Council on the 30th January, 1920:—

No. 2 OF 1920.

A Bill further to amend the Indian Army Act, 1911.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Army Act, 1911; It is hereby enacted as follows:— VIII of 1911.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Indian Army (Amendment) Act, 1920.

Amendment of section 116, Act VIII of 1911.

2. In section 116 of the Indian Army Act, 1911, after the words "becoming insane" the following shall be added, namely:— VIII of 1911.

"or, who, being on active service, is officially reported missing:

Provided that, in the case of a person so reported missing, no action shall be taken under sub-sections (2) to (5), inclusive, of the said section, until one year has elapsed from the date of such report."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Sections 114 to 116 of the Indian Army Act, 1911 (VIII of 1911), provide for the speedy disposal of the moveable property of persons subject to that Act, who die or desert or become insane. There is no similar provision in the case of persons who, when on active service, are reported "missing," and the absence of such provision has been the cause of great inconvenience both to the unit and to the relatives of the missing persons. The Bill is intended to supply this deficiency.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Indian Legislative Council on the 30th January, 1920 :—

No. 3 OF 1920.

A Bill to modify certain provisions of the United Provinces Town Improvement Act, 1919.

WHEREAS it is expedient to modify the provisions of the United Provinces Town Improvement Act, 1919, so as to provide in certain cases for an appeal to the High Court from the awards of the Tribunal constituted under that Act; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the United Provinces Town Improvement (Appeals) Act, 1920.

Definitions.

2. In this Act—

(1) "High Court" means in Agra the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad, and in Oudh, the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh; and

(2) "Tribunal" has the same meaning as in the United Provinces Town Improvement Act, 1919.

Appeals from awards of the Tribunal.

3. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the United Provinces Town Improvement Act, 1919, and subject to the provisions of sub-section (2), an appeal shall lie to the High Court in any of the following cases, namely:—

(a) where the decision is that of the President of the Tribunal sitting alone in pursuance of clause (b) of section 64 of the said Act;

(b) where the decision is that of the Tribunal, and—

(i) the President of the Tribunal grants a certificate that the case is a fit one for appeal, or

(ii) the High Court grants special leave to appeal:

Provided that the High Court shall not grant such special leave unless the President has refused to grant a certificate under sub-clause (i) and the amount in dispute is not less than five thousand rupees.

(2) An appeal under clause (b) of sub-section (1) shall only lie on one or more of the following grounds, namely:—

(i) the decision being contrary to law or to some usage having the force of law;

(ii) the decision having failed to determine some material issue of law or usage having the force of law;

(iii) a substantial error or defect in the procedure provided by the said Act which may possibly have produced error or defect in the decision of the case upon the merits.

Procedure in such appeals.

4. Subject to the provisions of section 3, the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, with respect to appeals from original decrees shall, so far as may be, apply to appeals under this Act. V of 1908.

Execution of orders of High Court.

5. Every order passed by the High Court on appeal under this Act shall be enforced, on application, by a Court of Small Causes within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the award or order appealed against was made, as if it were a decree of that Court.

Period of limitation for such appeals.

6. An appeal under section 3 shall be deemed to be an appeal under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, within the meaning of Article 156 of the First Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1908. V of 1908. IX of 1908.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE United Provinces Town Improvement Act, 1919 (VIII of 1919), constitutes a Tribunal for the purpose of performing the functions of "the Court" in reference to the compulsory acquisition of land for the Improvement Trusts to be created under the Act. When the draft Bill was under consideration, it was decided that there should be a limited appeal to the High Court from the award of the Tribunal, but as the local Legislature cannot confer appellate jurisdiction on the High Court, the present Bill has been prepared, at the request of the Government of the United Provinces, on the lines of the Calcutta Improvement (Appeals) Act, 1911 (XVIII of 1911).

The Report of the Calcutta University Commission, 1917—1919, Volumes I—V, and the Volumes of Evidence.

I.—The Calcutta University Commission and the object of the present Resolution.

The work of the Calcutta University Commission.

1. The Calcutta University Commission was appointed with a view to a full examination of the system of university teaching in Bengal and in order that the best advice might be obtained upon the method of co-ordinating the machinery of that institution and the instruction which it imparts more fully to the needs of modern life. With these ends in view the Commission was constituted with a strict regard to the necessity of invoking the highest available academic talent. The Report which it has produced will, it is believed, rank among the most important and authoritative of educational documents. The Government of India desire to take this opportunity of recording their high appreciation of the manner in which Sir Michael Sadler and his colleagues have performed their difficult and intricate functions.

The object of the Resolution.

2. The Commission interpreted (and rightly interpreted) its terms of reference in the widest possible sense. Its report travels over many subjects and many branches of education which are not confined to university instruction but have an important bearing thereon. The immediate object of the Commissioners' labours was the University of Calcutta and though they visited collectively or singly many places in India which are not within the jurisdiction of that University, the opinions which they have expressed and the recommendations which they have made have reference primarily to Bengal and to the University of Calcutta. The object of the present Resolution is two-fold. First, it is intended to acquaint the public in Bengal with the intentions of the Government of India as regards early legislation for the reconstitution of the University of Calcutta. Second, it is thought that an expression of views by the Government of India on certain points connected with the Report may not be without use in provinces other than Bengal. For, though it is fully recognised that conditions elsewhere differ widely from those in that Presidency and though the Government of India have naturally no desire to thrust upon other local Governments and other universities schemes which result from an investigation of affairs in Bengal and in Calcutta, nevertheless some of the recommendations made by the Commission are likely to be found valuable for wider application and it is understood that already in some other provinces movements are on foot for some reorganisation of the local systems.

II.—Criticisms made by the Commission.

The investigations of the Commission.

3. The Commissioners have laid emphasis upon those elements in the educational system of Bengal which have produced satisfactory results in the past and give promise of healthy development in the future. But they have also, as indeed their task demanded of them, sought out the weaker elements, analysed defects and suggested remedies. In the following paragraphs certain points are noted which formed the subject of the Commission's criticism and which appear to the Government of India to call for special and urgent treatment.

(i) The high schools

4. Sound instruction in the secondary stage is the foundation upon which both university and more strictly vocational education must necessarily rest But the Commission has recorded the fact that just when Bengal is more than ever eager for higher education, and when the economic needs and intellectual aspirations of the Presidency call for the best that can be given, the training which the high schools offer not only fails as a rule to provide for modern requirements in point of scientific and other knowledge but is actually deteriorating in quality. The schools are too narrowly concerned with preparing boys for matriculation—the goal to which almost all their teaching is designed to lead. Yet they are attended by large numbers of boys who have no special fitness for an academic training and who leave school without qualifying themselves for it; and preparation for the University is not the only purpose which the secondary schools have to serve in a modern State. Still more serious is their lack of influence upon the character of pupils. Some of the correspondents who answered the Commission's questionnaire regard the schools as failing in the formation of character and in conveying to the boy's mind a clear apprehension of an ideal of duty "Pressed further home", write the Commissioners, "the charge amounts to even more than this: it implies that the schools have no spiritual life which touches a boy's inner nature, no corporate unity which appeals to and can sustain his affectionate loyalty, no moral or intellectual flame which may kindle his emotions"; and, while admitting admirable exceptions, they state that it must be acknowledged that in these respects the work of the schools as a whole is bleak and barren.

(Chapter VIII, paragraph 20. Chapter VIII, paragraph 75.)

(ii) The matriculation examination.

5. The Commissioners were accordingly led to examine the two dominating factors which influence high school organisation in Bengal—the matriculation examination and the method of recognition. They found that the matriculation examination conducted by the University of Calcutta (which is the largest examination of its kind in the world) is far from enjoying general approval; that eleven out of every twelve of the witnesses who dealt with this point expressed dissatisfaction with it as a test even for entering the University; and that it allows a very considerable number of ill-educated candidates to pass. Furthermore, the schools are cramped by it. For they endeavour to perform what the rules of the examination prescribe; to enable their pupils to pass has become their dominant aim; and the pressure which forces them to concentrate upon this narrow purpose is great. The Commissioners comment upon the perverted and uninspiring view of higher education which is thus produced. They write, "at the very time when the instinct of the people is turning its hopes towards education the work actually done in the schools is suffering from a blight which spreads so quickly as to threaten public and private hopes with disappointment The desire for education, though it springs from needs which good schools alone can satisfy, is perverted into a demand for what a school must deteriorate in consenting to give. But the pressure is irresistible, and the schools in yielding to it are spoiled. Nor is this the whole of the loss. The profession of teaching becomes less and less attractive to able and generous minds because, as the generally accepted view of education grows meaner and narrower, a teacher has the less opportunity of realising in his work the purpose which alone lifts his calling from a despised trade to one of the noblest of professions".

(Chapter IX, paragraph 1. Chapter IX, paragraph 8. Chapter IX, paragraph 36. Chapter IX, paragraph 38. Chapter IX, paragraph 39.)

(iii) The recognition of schools.

6. The Commission refers to the Indian Universities Act of 1904, the Resolution of the Government of India, no. 600 of August 11, 1906, and the body of regulations thereby sanctioned. Under those regulations the recognition or non-recognition of a school is the act of the University and the functions of the Department of Public Instruction or the person nominated by the Syndicate to report on the claims of schools are limited to placing before the University the information requisite to enable that body to exercise its controlling authority. The Commission states that the University proceeded in right earnest to discharge this new and heavy responsibility But the powers of the University are far from being as efficacious in practice as they appear to be on paper; and, owing to adverse circumstances, "the plan devised in 1904 and zealously put into effect by the University during the more favourable conditions which at first prevailed, has evidently broken down".

Chapter X, paragraph 10.
Chapter X, paragraph 13.

(iv) The colleges.

7. Coming next to the colleges, the Commission observes that the majority of successful candidates at the matriculation examination proceed to university courses. Since the school course does not give a 'sound general education,' the colleges find imposed upon them the obligation of making good the deficiencies of the schools. "With about half of their students", says the Commission. "the colleges never get beyond the stage of school work. Many students drop out before they reach the end of the intermediate course". "There is probably no other country in the world" proceeds the Report, "in which it is the case that so large a proportion of those who enter upon a degree course in a university fail to proceed to its natural conclusion, but stop at a half-way house. This would seem to indicate, in the first place, that the relation between the matriculation and intermediate standards is ill-adjusted; but still more remarkable, it would seem to show that, in the view of the boys and their parents and the public, the first two years of the university course are regarded as forming a distinct stage by themselves, a supplement to the high school course, while the intermediate examination is regarded as a natural stopping-place". The Commission further remarks on the reduction at this stage of the choice of subjects, the absence of guidance to students regarding their choice, and the failure to provide for any introduction to vocational training such as is needed by that half of the students who will pass direct into various occupations after the intermediate stage. On turning to the methods of instruction, the Commission finds that the inadequacy of the system becomes still more patent. The classes are almost invariably far too large. The tradition of lecturing is deeply implanted. The methods suitable for university students are applied to those who have not yet undergone a satisfactory school course.

Chapter XII, paragraphs 4 and
Chapter XII, paragraph 6.
Chapter XII, paragraph 7.
Chapter XII, paragraphs 21—23.
Chapter XII, paragraph 25.
Chapter XII, paragraph 26.

In dealing with the undergraduate work of the colleges, the Commissioners state that the outstanding fact indicated in the replies to their questionnaire is that "dissatisfaction with the existing system is all but universal, and is in most cases both deep and poignant". They consider that one of the primary causes of the inefficiency of the colleges is their isolation. They are 'pocket universities,' compelled to provide the whole of the education which their students require and generally too poor to supply the equipment necessary for university work. The privately-managed colleges maintain one teacher for about every 40 students, and the poverty of the pay given in these institutions is all the more striking by reason of the contrast with the better paid professors of Government colleges. Instruction is through compulsory lectures; tutorial classes "are in general nothing more than additional coaching classes". Four of the privately-managed first-grade colleges in the university centre of Calcutta are described as "huge coaching establishments for examinations, wherein the human element in education is inevitably almost non-existent". Half of their students are in the intermediate stage. The proportion of teachers to students is such as to make any adequate attention to the needs of the latter impossible. The majority of their students come from distant parts of Bengal (especially Eastern Bengal) and nearly 4,000 of these are unprovided with hostels or attached messes.

Chapter XIII, paragraph 53.
Chapter XIII, paragraph 109.
Chapter XIII, paragraph 111.
Chapter XIII, paragraph 112.

(v) The concentration of students in Calcutta.

8. This concentration of students in Calcutta forms a very serious feature of the situation as regards the colleges of the metropolis. In the Arts and professional colleges of the city and in the post-graduate classes, the Commission found 15,674 students. Of those nearly 11,000 were reading in the local Arts colleges and about 1,500 in the post-graduate classes. Of those in Arts colleges, only 2,579 came from Calcutta itself, 1,479 from adjacent areas, and the remainder from other parts of Bengal or of India. Hostel accommodation was found to

Chapter XIII, paragraph 94.
Chapter XV, paragraph 44.
Chapter XIII, paragraph 94.

Chapter XXXIX, paragraph 9. Chapter XXXIX, paragraph 10.

exist for only 2,257; and, in addition, 2,556 students were residing in attached messes. Furthermore, the Commission observed that, though Government had recently made generous contributions towards new hostel accommodation, and though, out of 50 lakhs expended on hostels in Bengal, more than two-thirds had been spent in Calcutta, there were still in 1917 as many as 4,500 students living under unapproved conditions in the city.

Chapter XII, paragraph 56.

About two-thirds of the number of students who, though not residents of Calcutta, are studying in its Arts colleges, are in the intermediate stage, "whose needs", say the Commissioners, "could quite well be met, and ought to be met, nearer their homes. It is they who, in the main, produce the residential problem which forms so grave a difficulty in Calcutta; and the attempt to provide decent conditions of life for them involves an immense outlay which might be far more profitably expended in meeting their needs nearer to their homes". "It is impossible to exaggerate", they proceed, "the evils that are likely to result from this drift of boys from country districts, ill-trained and knowing nothing of the world, into the dangerous conditions of life in a great city, where they are lost in the crowd, and where it is impossible to provide for them any adequate supervision".

Chapter XII, paragraph 57.

(vi) Post-graduate teaching in the University.

9. Apart from the Law College, the University maintains from its own funds, endowments and grants the College of Science and the post-graduate classes. These were organised in 1917 under two boards of post-graduate studies and contained during the session of 1917-18 about 1,500 students and 188 professors and lecturers. The Commission, while admitting the advantages and the necessity of the system, point out that the activities of the teachers are in the minutest detail subject to criticism by the Syndicate and confirmation by the Senate, where the highest teachers are inadequately represented, with the result that conflict is possible; that the scheme is entirely separated from the arrangements for undergraduate teaching, and that this cleavage, if made permanent, may prove even more disastrous than the division of colleges into self-contained compartments; that it is apprehended that the organisation, developing apart from the colleges, may affect their status and permanently imperil their efficiency; and that the question of adequate post-graduate instruction in places outside Calcutta is left untouched.

Chapter XV, paragraphs 44 and 45. Chapter XV, paragraph 61. Chapter XV, paragraph 62. Chapter XV, paragraph 63. Chapter XV, paragraph 64.

(vii) The jurisdiction of the University.

10. The Commission points out that the populations of Bengal and of the United Kingdom are almost the same—about 45 millions; and that the numbers of students preparing for university degrees are also almost the same—about 26,000. But, behind this apparent similarity, the contrasts are great. Owing to the low percentage of literacy, the proportion of the educated classes in Bengal who are taking full-time university courses is almost ten times as great as in the United Kingdom. If regard is had to the paucity of women students and to other factors it becomes apparent that an enormously higher proportion of the educated male population of Bengal proceeds to university studies than is the case in the United Kingdom. At the same time a very much smaller proportion goes to the University for what is ordinarily described as vocational training. Again, the 26,000 students of the United Kingdom are divided among eighteen universities. The same number in Bengal are all brought under the control of a single university. They follow in each subject the same course of study, read the same books and undergo the same examinations. "It is a commonplace", says the Commission, "that a university, just because it is concerned with so individual a business as the training of the mind, can easily become too large". The University of Calcutta is the largest in the world; it "has to deal with 26,000 students scattered over an immense province wherein communications are very difficult; it is responsible also for the educational control of more than eight hundred schools, a function such as no university outside of India is called upon to perform; and under these conditions it is unreasonable to expect that its governing bodies should be able to deal with their immense and complex task in a wholly satisfactory way".

Chapter II, paragraph 2. Chapter II, paragraph 3. Chapter II, paragraph 4. Chapter II, paragraph 5.

(viii) The governing bodies of the University.

11 Over-vast as are the area under the University's jurisdiction, the number of institutions, of students and of examiners, for proper administration by any single organisation, the Commission found that the administrative organ charged with these heavy responsibilities is in itself defective.

The paramount body in the University is the Senate. But it is insufficiently representative, whether of the colleges as places of learning, of the general bodies of learned professions as such, of commercial, industrial and agricultural interests, of different communities, more especially the Muhammadans of the provinces included within the jurisdiction of the University and even of many parts of Bengal. The majority of its members are nominated. The Commission thinks, that, though nomination has been exercised with a keen desire to do justice to conflicting claims and to include on the Senate men of eminence and experience, nevertheless it is probably not the best method to adopt in a predominant degree for the constitution of a large body.

Chapter XXVII, paragraphs 15 to 21.
Chapter XXVII, paragraphs 22 and 24.

The executive functions of the Senate are wielded by the Syndicate. The Commission considers this to be the least satisfactory of all the university bodies. Its members are ordinarily limited to persons resident in or near Calcutta. For years the Musalmans have been unrepresented upon it. The amount and variety of work which falls upon it is intolerable. Yet the present system does not effectively concentrate responsibility in its hands, and the work of the so-called executive is that of discussion rather than of deliberate decision.

Chapter XXVII, paragraph 50.
Chapter XXVII, paragraphs 54 and 55.
Chapter XXVII, paragraph 59.

There is no provision for authoritative direction by any body of scholars. The Faculties and Boards of Studies possess only advisory functions and cannot at present be regarded as expert bodies.

Chapter XXVII, paragraph 64.

Thus the Governing Bodies are not merely ineffective in composition but also imperfectly articulated for the performance of their functions. The Senate is an unsatisfactory compromise between an expert academic body and a council of laymen experienced in practical affairs. The present arrangements for the conduct of business fail to secure responsibility in the hands of the Syndicate for the functions which it is supposed to perform. There is no effective academic body The Commission maintains that a university requires for its effective governance organs of three types—a body to keep it in touch with the varied requirements of the community; a body which will give statesmanlike guidance in the accommodation of means to ends and also in the provision of means and will mediate between the possible misconceptions of the public and the possibly too restricted outlook of the scholar; and thirdly a body of scholars to give authoritative direction to a corporation of learning.

Chapter XXVII, paragraph 34.
Chapter XXVII, paragraph 59.
Chapter XXVII, paragraph 84.

Finally, the Commission recommend that the Vice-Chancellor, who has hitherto been a part-time officer, ought now to be a whole-time and paid officer.

Chapter XXVII, paragraph 40.

(ix) The relations of the University with its affiliated colleges

12. The Commission comments upon the procedure laid down for the affiliation and disaffiliation of colleges. A college affiliated on the strength of a statement showing adequate staff may weaken that staff by the appointment of less satisfactory teachers. The disagreeable onus of initiating proceedings for disaffiliation rests on a single individual. The weapon of disaffiliation is at present too drastic for practical use and the Syndicate is not possessed of due powers for securing compliance with the recommendations made by its inspectors.

Chapter XXVII, paragraph 76.
Chapter XXVII, paragraph 81.

The University has been unable to secure reasonable conditions of salary and tenure for college teachers, or that the teachers appointed are competent. While its control has been ineffective in the vitally important function of securing efficient teaching, in other matters it is too rigid, its general influence over the work of the colleges is described as unhealthy and it has achieved a dead uniformity of curriculum unknown, the Commissioners believe, elsewhere in the world, certainly outside India.

Chapter XIII, paragraph 37.
Chapter XIII, paragraphs 38 and 39.

(x) The relations of the University with Government.

13. The Commission devoted much attention to the relations of the University with Government It considered that the continuance of the arrangement whereby the Government of India controls the University at a distance of 1,000 miles leads to inconveniences. But, while the control should be transferred to the Government of Bengal, the Government of India can continue to perform an invaluable function by defining the Chapter XXVIII, paragraph 15.

Chapter XXVIII, paragraph 27. aims of educational policy, by giving advice and assistance to local Governments and to universities, by acting as an impartial arbiter in cases of dispute, by protecting disregarded interests, by supplying organised information regarding local developments, by obtaining the service of scholars from other countries, by co-ordinating the work of various universities, and by guarding against needless duplication. The provincial Department of Public Instruction which would in future deal with the University is hampered by a narrow definition of its functions and by the character of its relations with the Secretariat and with the University itself. It is necessary to co-ordinate the activities of that Department with other Departments which deal with special spheres of education, to appoint the Director a Secretary to Government; and to recognise that on the Department rests primarily the responsibility for a sound system of school training—a responsibility which, owing to insufficiency of funds and division of functions with the University, it has no power to fulfil. The University in its turn should be responsible for the character of the training given to its students and for the efficient and economical expenditure of its resources. At the same time, here also, Government cannot abrogate its responsibilities, as trustees for the highest interests of the nation; for ensuring that the highest training grounds of the nation, its universities, are adequately fulfilling their functions and that the University is so organised as to be able to perform its proper functions; for regulating the conditions of admission to professions essential for the public welfare; and for providing that the youths of the country receive the kind of training needed to prepare them for the general needs of the country.

III.—Action proposed on the main recommendations of the Commission.

Reasons for the shortcomings discovered by the Commission

14. The brief summary of certain portions of the Report which has been made above is not to be taken as fully representing the present condition of affairs in Bengal, still less in India as a whole. The extraction of passages or opinions from a report of this nature is apt to be slightly misleading The Government of India desire it to be understood that, while they agree with the criticisms passed by the Commission, they are also fully in accord with that body in acknowledging the great services which the establishment of western education and the activities of the University of Calcutta have performed in the past. The affiliating and the examining university is now regarded by many high authorities as radically faulty. But it is difficult to see what other organisation could in the middle of the last century have been set up in Bengal or elsewhere in India for the expansion and co-ordination of higher learning. The legislation of 1904 recognised teaching as a proper function of the Indian universities. But it was difficult to devise a workable scheme for the performance of this function in face of the wide area affected, the competing claims of colleges and the necessity of safeguarding the interests of various institutions. The isolated and self-contained character of the colleges rendered impossible the exercise by the University of that control over teaching and the appointment of teachers which is requisite and forced the central body to use its influence through the promulgation of rigid rules and syllabuses which were calculated to stifle individual and original effort. These difficulties were enhanced as the number of colleges grew and in recent years have rapidly increased owing to the large number of students who have sought university instruction. Furthermore, the growing demand has called into existence a number of institutions markedly unequal in the matter of staffing, in the nature of instruction afforded, in equipment and in the supervision which they can exercise over students. It is little wonder that an institution which for many years usefully served the requirements of higher education in Bengal has under the rapid changes of recent times found difficulty in coping adequately with functions which have become unwieldy and in fulfilling demands made upon it by a new and swiftly changing order of things.

Scope of the Commission's Report.

15. Again the preceding section of this Resolution has dealt only with certain of the explorations made by the Commission, because a full comprehension of these points is necessary for the appreciation of the legislative changes which, in the opinion of the Commission, it is necessary to make in order that the University of Calcutta may more effectively fulfil its functions. The Report ranges over many subjects regarding which nothing has here been said. The education of women and girls; the special educational needs of Musalmans, of Europeans and Anglo-Indians, and of the backward classes; the medium of instruction; oriental studies; legal, medical, engineering and mining, agricultural and technological instruction; the training of teachers and other cognate matters are dealt with in the Report. The object of the succeeding paragraph is to concentrate attention upon those particular points of criticism which have direct bearing upon the University of Calcutta and with which any legislation affecting that institution will have to deal.

Main lessons of the Report.

16. The main lessons taught by this Report, the lessons on which the Government of India consider that the earliest attention may usefully be concentrated, are the following :—

(i) High schools lack proper supervision, and, intent on preparing their pupils for the matriculation examination, fail to give that breadth of training which the developments of the country and new avenues of employment demand.

(ii) The matriculation examination in Bengal provides an insufficient test of fitness to pursue university courses and by its rigidity and narrow scope reacts unwholesomely upon the instruction and the activities of the schools.

(iii) The intermediate section of university education attempts to deal by university methods with large bodies of ill-prepared students and should be frankly recognised as a part of school education, relegated to separate institutions, apart from the university organisation, and placed under a body duly co-related with the Department of Public Instruction.

(iv) The system of affiliated colleges, though defective according to modern requirements and modern ideals, will long remain a necessary part of university organisation in Bengal. But its inconveniences may be mitigated by the establishment of a strong central teaching body, the incorporation (as occasion arises) of unitary universities, such as that proposed for Dacca, a modification of the administrative machinery which will admit of fuller representation of local interests, and supervision of different classes of institutions by several appropriately constituted authorities.

(v) The administrative arrangements of the University of Calcutta call for alteration, notably in the direction of creating an academic body, appointing a whole-time Vice-Chancellor and transferring the interests of the University to the care of the Government of Bengal.

These points represent but a small part of the result of the Commission's investigations. But they are the matters which the Government of India regard themselves, the local Government and the universities most urgently called upon to consider.

Action proposed.

17. The Government of India therefore commend these matters to the consideration of local Governments and universities. They commend also the many suggestions which the Commission has made on the more strictly academic side of high school and university education. They leave it to the local Governments to take such action as they think fit regarding the most important recommendation of the Commission, namely, the separation of intermediate from collegiate education and the placing of it, together with secondary education, under some suitably constituted body on the lines of the Board of Secondary and Intermediate Education proposed in the Report—so constituted as to represent various interests and so related to the Departments of Public Instruction as to obviate any undue abrogation of the responsibility of Government for the adequacy of school training. They leave also to the consideration of local Governments such administrative questions as the changes suggested in the general organisation of teaching and inspecting staffs, the future control of government schools and colleges, etc. But it is necessary that the Government of India take early action regarding those recommendations which directly affect the University of Calcutta, since that University forms the immediate subject of the Commission's investigations and (until the measure, which the Government of India now propose, passes into law) remains the special care of the Governor-General in Council and of the Governor-General as Chancellor. Here also the administrative matters, including the future organisation of secondary and intermediate education in separation from the University, will appropriately be decided by the Government of Bengal. The concern of the Government of India is the passage of the legislative measures requisite for giving effect to the main recommendations of the Commission regarding the reconstitution of the University of Calcutta and the incorporation of the University of Dacca. The second of these proposals is intended to set up a new type of university in Bengal which may possibly be the precursor of other universities of a similar nature in that Presidency and elsewhere and to relieve the University of Calcutta of some small portion of the heavy burden which it now sustains. The legislation to that end has already been introduced in the Imperial Legislative Council. As regards the University of Calcutta it is the intention of the Government of India to publish and place before the Imperial Legislative Council a measure based on the lines indicated in the remaining portion of this Resolution. The Government of India propose to publish the text of the Bill as soon as possible. But they have decided to precede it by the present Resolution in order that no time may be lost in acquainting the public with the main features of the measure contemplated. The proposals set forth in the following section, which will form the basis of the Bill have been discussed with the Government of Bengal, who are in accord with the Government of India regarding the suitability of the action contemplated.

IV.—The Reconstitution of the University of Calcutta.

A Teaching University in Calcutta. (i) The problem.

18. The Commission first applied itself to the complex and difficult task of setting up a Teaching University in Calcutta, which should embrace those colleges of the city which are capable of providing true university instruction. Of the existing system of post-graduate instruction it remarked that it is unhealthy that any sharp line of division should be drawn between the higher and the lower teaching of a university and that it is equally disadvantageous that a system of more advanced instruction should be built up at the expense of undergraduate teaching, which is the foundation of nearly all advanced work. The problem would be almost insoluble were it not that, under the arrangement proposed for the intermediate classes, the number of students in Arts colleges will be reduced to about 4,000 and is unlikely to expand within a reasonable period beyond 6,000, to whom must be added the 1,500 post-graduate students. Even so, the problem is difficult enough and is complicated by the fact that the idea of instruction in colleges largely independent of the central body is deeply rooted and cannot be disregarded.

Chapter XXXIV, paragraph 5.

Chapter XXXIV, paragraph 6.

(ii) Various schemes rejected.

19. The Commission considered and rejected various schemes which were placed before it with a view to the foundation of a teaching organisation.

Incidentally (though this scheme had as its object the improvement of the conditions of student life almost more than that of teaching organisation) it may be mentioned that the Commission devotes a chapter to the question whether it is desirable to remove the University and its colleges to some place outside Calcutta where more spacious accommodation and improvement of the physical, moral and intellectual conditions under which the students live are possible. It is obvious that many difficulties which the Commission has discovered would be solved by some such action. This proposal found many warm supporters among the correspondents and witnesses. On the other hand, there were witnesses who urged the undesirability of academic seclusion, the healthiness of Calcutta, the difficulty which would be experienced by the poorer students in a fully residential university, the value of home influences, etc. The Commission observes that the aggregation of university buildings and colleges round College Square has already proceeded so far as to make that part of Calcutta a university quarter. The situation of this group is central and convenient for the city as a whole and, though there are some important exceptions, few of the existing institutions are so far removed from this group as to make inter-collegiate relations impossible. The Government of India fully appreciate the advantages which would be derived from the location of the University in a more open site. But, apart from the considerations put forward by the Commission in favour of the retention of present arrangements, it is felt that the expense of such removal, which would be infinitely greater than the mere re-erection of buildings, and the delays and difficulties involved probably render any such scheme full of great difficulties.

Chapter XX.

Chapter XX, paragraph 25.

Chapter XX, paragraphs 28-32.

Chapter XXXVII paragraphs 1—16.

(iii) The Synthesis.

20. It is admitted by the Commission in dealing with these various proposals that the unitary form of university is in the abstract the most advantageous form of university organisation. But the conditions appeared to dictate a multi-collegiate system. The Commissioners therefore advocate a teaching university of a new type, not exactly corresponding to any now existing, to be achieved through what they term a synthesis of the University and its colleges. Under this scheme the University will be really responsible for the character of the teaching given in its name. The prestige and importance of the colleges will be increased and only those colleges will be permitted to participate which can show an efficiency equal to the fulfilment of the conditions to be laid down. Those colleges in Calcutta which cannot fulfil such conditions will be treated as temporarily affiliated, but will not participate in the privileges of the Teaching University.

Chapter XXXIV, paragraph 21.
Chapter XXXIV, paragraph 24.
Chapter XXXIV, paragraph 20.

(iv) Incorporated and constituent colleges.

21. The colleges which participate in this scheme would be the incorporated colleges maintained by the University itself and the constituent colleges, i.e., such of the colleges in Calcutta as are able to take a part in university teaching. These institutions would have to fulfil certain conditions. They must free themselves from the incubus of intermediate classes at the earliest possible moment. Admissions must not be made beyond a maximum of 1,000 students. The proportion of college teachers to students should be one to twenty-five though it is admitted that a proportion of one to fifteen or twenty would be more reasonable. No whole-time teachers should be paid less than ₨125 a month, nor any head of a department of teaching less than ₨300. Suitable buildings for teaching and residential accommodation for students must be provided. Each college should be under a properly constituted governing body and should have a teachers' council.

Chapter XXXIV, paragraph 124.
Chapter XXXIV, paragraph 125.
Chapter XXXIV, paragraph 129.
Chapter XXXIV, paragraph 131.
Chapter XXXIV, paragraph 132.

(v) The functions of the University.

22. The University itself would not compete with its colleges but would supplement their resources, providing instruction in those subjects where the colleges cannot supply it and teachers of high distinction in the more ordinary subjects of undergraduate work, maintaining a central library, etc. It would appoint its own teachers and recognise college teachers for the imparting of instruction in its name. It would organise instruction so as to prevent overlapping. It would continue to exercise its present functions, but materially modified. For the definition of curricula would be mainly in the hands of teachers of the University and its colleges and the examination system would be less rigid and would follow rather than dictate the teaching. "In short", say the Commissioners, "under a new and happier system, the University ought not to stand merely in the relation of a task-master to its constituent colleges. It ought to assist and strengthen them. It can do this in part by giving guidance and advice, and by encouraging its best men to take a deeper interest in college work; in part by providing instruction, such as the colleges could not themselves provide, which can be used by their students; in part by giving recognition and emoluments to the best college teachers, and so helping the colleges to retain good men on their staffs".

(vi) Conditions of teaching.

23. Under these new arrangements, it is desirable that a student spend three years at colleges reading for the B. A. or B. Sc.—though it may be impossible to enforce this at once in the case of pass students; and graduates should proceed to the Master's degree after another one or two years according as they have taken an honours or a pass school. A radical departure is required from the system of instruction now in vogue. The excessive emphasis now laid upon attendance at lectures must cease, and the importance of tutorial guidance must be realised. Each undergraduate must be a member of a college and it will be the duty of each college to provide individual tutorial guidance for every student and such lectures as will supplement those organised by the university. The Report lays great stress on this individual guidance and comments strongly on the barrenness of an endless round of lectures and a university training almost wholly unrelated to the real thoughts and aspirations of the students' minds, whose emotions and aspirations require training into useful, instead of hazardous, channels.

Temporarily affiliated colleges.

24. The Commission recognised that many of the colleges in Calcutta, as they now are, will be quite unable to satisfy the conditions essential for participation in the teaching organisation of the University. "The colleges", says the Report, "now include some thousands of students, who are being given a kind of training quite unworthy of the name of university education". The needs of these students must be met. Hence such colleges must be retained. But they will be permitted to exist as institutions teaching up to a degree only on a basis of temporary affiliation for five years with a possible extension; they will form no part of the teaching organisation; and no new colleges will be thus recognised after the new system has once been brought into operation. Certain conditions are suggested, e.g., a minimum salary of R100 for teachers and of R250 for heads of departments. Temporarily affiliated colleges will become either constituent colleges or intermediate institutions.

Mufassal colleges.
(i) The problem.

25. It is physically impossible for the widely scattered colleges outside Calcutta to have any part in the Teaching University. Hence they require a different kind of treatment. Here also various schemes were suggested and rejected. An obvious solution would be the conversion of the leading mufassal colleges into universities established after the pattern of Dacca. But the Commissioners were regretfully driven to the conclusion that (apart from Dacca) there is no college which is yet ripe to be transformed into a university. "In the long run", says the Report, "the best thing for Bengal will be the establishment of a small number of efficiently organised universities in the mufassal, wherein a training can be given which will be not less valuable in quality, though possibly less wide in range, than that which will be offered by Calcutta and Dacca, the remainder of the colleges devoting themselves to the vitally important work of the intermediate stage. At the present moment, it is impossible to determine which colleges ought to be marked out for the former, and which for the latter, destiny. But it would be unjust that the existing colleges should be deprived of their present rights at an arbitrarily fixed date, or until even ampler provision than now exists has been made to meet the needs of the students whom these colleges at present train. At the same time it is important to find a means whereby the better colleges may be stimulated to strive towards a higher destiny, may be enabled to awaken the pride and win the financial support of their own districts, and may be allowed to enjoy, as they progress in strength, an increasing degree of freedom, such as will fit them for the responsibilities of independence".

apter XXXV, ragraph 16.
apter XXXV, ragraph 22.

(ii) The Mufassal Board.

26. The Commission accordingly concluded that the only immediate solution of the problem is to be found in some form of association between the mufassal colleges and the University of Calcutta. For this purpose it proposed the establishment of a Board of Mufassal Colleges which, while an integral part of the university organisation, should be representative of the colleges which it is destined to supervise. The Commissioners strongly felt, however, that this Board should be regarded not as a permanent but as a temporary organisation.

apter XXXV, ragraph 32.
apter XXXV, ragraph 33.

(iii) Proposed organisation of mufassal colleges.

27. The mufassal colleges would be classed as follows:—

(a) University colleges, which would be regarded as potential universities. These would be required to fulfil certain conditions, e.g.,

apter XXXV, ragraph 46

the provision of separate teaching for intermediate students, the maintenance of at least one teacher for every 20 students, the payment to them of salaries of not less than R125 a month and R300 for heads of departments, the submission of the principal teachers for approval or recognition by the University, etc.

(b) Other mufassal colleges, which would gradually assort themselves either as University colleges or as intermediate institutions.

Though no exact uniformity of content between the curricula of the mufassal colleges and those of the Teaching University would be demanded, the Commission considered it important that as far as possible there should be a general correspondence of standard. In order to secure this result a large element not exceeding half of the Board of Mufassal Colleges should consist of Calcutta teachers. Chapter XXXV, paragraph 40. Chapter XXXV, paragraph 41.

(iv) Colleges in Burma and Assam.

28. Some of the existing extra-Calcutta colleges are situated in provinces other than Bengal. The Commission cordially endorses the importance of establishing a university at Rangoon, while considering that the two colleges which would compose that university, if they could work out some scheme of co-operation, might find it convenient to retain for a time in a modified form their connection with Calcutta through the medium of the special panel of the Mufassal Board which would control University colleges. As regards the two colleges in Assam the Commission thought that the ablest students from Sylhet would probably continue to go to Calcutta and Dacca for higher education and that the most hopeful development in that area lay in a thoroughly efficient training at the intermediate stage. Gauhati, on the other hand, may rightly aim, and ought to aim, at becoming the seat of a university, but is at present not strong enough for independence and might well be placed under the special panel, though at the same time it should be equipped with the rudiments of a university system of government of its own. These suggestions will no doubt be considered by the Government of Burma and the Chief Commissioner of Assam. Chapter XXXV, paragraph 54. Chapter XXXV, paragraph 58. Chapter XXXV, paragraphs 59 and 60.

Summarised classification of colleges.

29. The proposals of the Commission therefore, as regards the University of Calcutta and its colleges, contemplate a teaching organisation, in which the central body and certain of the colleges will co-operate; a temporary arrangement for those colleges of Calcutta which are unable to fulfil the conditions required in constituent colleges; and an affiliating and examining organisation for mufassal colleges, which may retain their present status as a temporary measure and eventually become either University or intermediate colleges. Further, women's colleges, whether in Calcutta or in the mufassal, will be placed under a special board and made subject to special conditions.

The constitution of the University.

(i) The problem.

30. With a view to its performing these functions the Commission considered that the University must be equipped with a system of government more carefully devised for the purpose than that which it now possesses; a system which will combine a proper representation of public opinion and of all the interests concerned in the healthy development of the educational system, with the maintenance of a proper degree of influence and authority for the best expert opinion; while at the same time the supervisory authority of Government, and its deep concern in the matters with which the University has to deal, must be properly provided for, without imposing upon Government minute and detailed responsibilities which its officers cannot reasonably be expected to fulfil. Chapter XXXVII, paragraph 3.

(ii) The Visitor, the Chancellor, etc.

31. It is proposed by the Commission that the relation of special intimacy between the University and the Government of India should cease and that the Governor of Bengal should in future be the Chancellor; but that the Governor-General should hold the office of Visitor and that the Government of India should exercise fuller powers of supervision than at present not only over Calcutta but over all the universities of India. The Vice-Chancellor should be a whole-time officer appointed by the Chancellor. Chapter XXXVII, paragraph 5. Chapter XXXVII, paragraph 21.

32. Three principal governing bodies answering to those indicated in paragraph 11 of this Resolution are proposed—

(iii) The principal governing bodies.

Chapter XXXVII, paragraph 6.

(a) The Court would be a large representative body, whose assent would be required for fundamental legislative proposals but not for details of regulations and which would exercise a general supervision over the finances of the University, etc. For the discussion of more detailed matters the Court will have an elected committee of reference whose special duty it will be to discuss matters with the Executive Council.

Chapter XXXVII, paragraph 7

(b) The Executive Council would be a small body, entrusted with financial and administrative duties and with considerable legislative powers, but not concerned with the details of purely academic business.

Chapter XXXVII, paragraph 8.

(c) The Academic Council would be the supreme body in academic matters and the final authority for most of the ordinary academic business, and would consist mainly of university and college teachers.

Chapter XXXVII, paragraphs 9 and 10.

There would be other bodies, such as the Mufassal Board, the Board of Women's Education, the Muslim Advisory Committee and certain standing committees.

With a view to the initiation of the new order of things, a small Executive Commission, appointed by the Governor-General in Council, should be appointed immediately after the passing of the Act. It would make arrangements with colleges, draft the Statutes classifying the constituent and University colleges, appoint a provisional committee to deal with secondary and intermediate education, constitute a provisional Academic Council, consider financial arrangements and perform other important duties.

33. The Commission found that the existing legislation which governs the activities of the universities is unduly rigid. It accordingly proposed that, while an Act should be passed in the Imperial Legislative Council repealing the Act of 1857 and, so far as it concerns this University, the Act of 1904, and defining in very general terms the powers and the constitution of the University, the terms of this Act should be elaborated in a number of Statutes, Ordinances and Regulations. The first Statutes would be scheduled to the Act, but would be capable of amendment by the Court, subject to approval by the Governor of Bengal in Council. Among other things, the first conferment of any university privileges on any institution in Bengal should be through Statute. The Ordinances would govern the daily work of the University, would be made by the Executive Council, though initiated as regards purely academic matters by the Academic Council, and would be subject to the veto of the Chancellor. The Regulations would deal with minor matters and their framing would be entrusted to the various bodies of the University concerned with the matters with which they deal.

34. Such, generally expressed and exclusive of many matters which, though less essential for the carrying out of the scheme, are nevertheless of considerable importance, are the proposals of the Commission regarding the University of Calcutta. The Government of India accept them as probably embodying the most feasible scheme which is compatible with existing conditions and which at the same time gives promise of healthy development in the future. The legislative measure embodying the Commission's proposals, which it is intended to place before the Imperial Legislative Council, will, it is hoped, not depart in essential respects from the provisions set forth in the Report and only summarised in the broadest lines in this Resolution. The Government of India, however, observe that two members of the Commission were not in entire agreement regarding certain aspects of the proposals and that criticisms have been put forward in other quarters—some to the effect that the changes suggested are too radical, others to the effect that still more drastic alterations are required. It is, therefore, to be understood that, while the forthcoming legislation will embody the essential outlines of the Commission's scheme, there may be room for differences in detail, dictated by administrative considerations or by public criticism.

Views of the Government of India on the classification of colleges.

35. In particular, the Government of India consider that the treatment proposed for temporarily affiliated colleges may, in practice, lead to difficulty. If the new organisation in Calcutta is really to assume the functions of an efficient teaching organisation, it will be hazardous to permit the continued existence in Calcutta of a class of institutions insufficiently equipped for participation in the Teaching University and calculated by their proximity to depress the standards which such a University should maintain. If on full consideration these apprehensions are found to be well based, it will be necessary to devise means for dealing with such colleges in a more expeditious manner than that contemplated by the Commission and it will probably prove most satisfactory if the Executive Commission is instructed at an early date to class those colleges which hold out no prospect of fulfilling the conditions of constituent colleges as intermediate institutions which would be definitely separated from the University and placed under the Board of Secondary and Intermediate Education.

The case is different with the mufassal colleges, which serve a useful purpose by providing higher education near to the homes of many students and by preventing those students from further augmenting the already overcrowded state of Calcutta colleges. It is, therefore, suggested that provision should be made for renewing the affiliation on present lines of those mufassal colleges which cannot immediately be classed either as University or as intermediate colleges.

The Commission apparently contemplated that the separation of intermediate from college classes, which forms the main pivot of their proposals, should not take immediate effect in temporarily affiliated and mufassal colleges. The case of the former kind of college has already been treated. But, as regards mufassal colleges, while the degree courses continue to be allowed for some time even in those institutions which cannot definitely be classed as University colleges, it appears to the Government of India to be important that they should rid themselves from the commencement of the presence of intermediate students—a condition which should apply to all institutions connected with the University save women's colleges.

Suggested deviations from the Commission's recommendations.

36. The following points indicate the manner in which the questions mentioned in the preceding paragraph may, in the opinion of the Government of India, suitably be treated. They also indicate certain other deviations from the detailed proposals of the Commission which it may be found desirable to include in the Bill.

(i) Powers of the Chancellor.—The Chancellor may in some cases be substituted for the Government of Bengal as a sanctioning authority, e.g., as the sanctioning authority as regards Statutes. This change, as in the Dacca Bill, would be made in order to emphasise the personal relation of the Chancellor with the University.

The Chancellor may also be given, as in the Dacca Bill, the power of suspension of operation of an Ordinance which he deems likely to be cancelled by the Court or disallowed by himself.

(ii) The Court.—The number of members of the Court may be slightly changed by specifying the number of members to be nominated by the Chancellor, by allowing the Chief Commissioner of Assam to appoint members to represent Assam, by including the Chairmen of the Board of Secondary and Intermediate Education and the Muslim Advisory Committee, by reducing the number of Vice-Chancellors of other universities and the number of representatives assigned to associations contributing not less than R5,000, by omitting the representatives of faculties, of governing bodies of colleges and temporarily (until those institutions take fuller shape) of intermediate colleges and secondary schools, and by confining the membership of donors of R10,000 to five years. These changes would slightly reduce the size of the Court, prevent overlapping in its membership and add a few desirable elements.

(iii) The Executive Council.—The constitution of the Executive Council may be slightly modified, mainly by the substitution of two Deans of Faculties elected by the Academic Council and two appointed teachers elected by the same body for the three university teachers who, the Commission proposed, should be elected by the Academic Council.

Power may be given to the Executive Council in all financial matters within the limits of the budget, also supervisory control subject to certain safeguards over the framing, etc., of new Regulations.

(iv) The Academic Council.—The constitution of the Academic Council may be slightly modified, mainly by some reduction in the representation of recognised teachers and the Board of Secondary and Intermediate Education and by leaving indefinite the number of representatives of vocational faculties.

It is suggested that it may be empowered to constitute sub-committees or, if it thinks fit, an Executive Committee, and to appoint external, as well as internal, examiners, subject perhaps to the retention by the Executive Council of the duty of appointing committees, in consultation with the Academic Council, to moderate examination questions and to report results to the Executive Council.

(v) Faculties.—It is suggested that the membership of these bodies be limited. The Deans should probably be the Chairmen.

(vi) Temporarily affiliated colleges.—These should be mentioned only in the transitory provisions and it should be the duty of the Executive Commission, before its dissolution, to class them either as incorporated or constituent colleges, or as intermediate colleges.

(vii) Conditions of recognition for temporarily affiliated and mufassal colleges.—The prescription of conditions may be left to the Executive Commission. But, save in the case of women's colleges, the continuance of intermediate and of degree classes in one and the same institution should not be permitted after the date on which the Act comes into force.

(viii) Appointments.—The appointment of the teaching staff will be the work partly of selection committees of the University sitting in India and partly that of some organisation which will be able to arrange for recruiting in the United Kingdom. Two departures from the Commission's Report are proposed :—

(a) The nominations of the selection committees may be sent direct to the Executive Council and not confidentially through the Academic Council, since to do so would be to court undesirable discussion and possibly personal intrigue.

(b) Cases may arise where a selection committee in England will not prove either the best or a necessary instrument for nomination, and where the Secretary of State could select without the aid of a Committee. But this course should not be adopted unless the Chancellor reports to the Secretary of State that exceptional circumstances exist justifying it.

(ix) Admission.—Provision should be made as in the Dacca Bill requiring the approval of the Government of India to the acceptance of other examinations as equivalent to the intermediate and degree examinations or to any other tests which are to be recognised as the minimum qualification admitting to the courses of the University. This seems to be desirable because such examinations will not be confined to Bengal and because the whole question of admission to universities must be dealt with by some central authority if confusion and undue competition are to be avoided. Moreover, lack of uniformity in these matters is liable to prove embarrassing to Indian students proceeding to England.

(x) Territorial jurisdiction.—It is desirable that the Bill should contain a clause generally similar to section 27 of the Indian Universities Act, VIII of 1904. The limits of the teaching organisation should also be laid down; and it is proposed to express them as co-terminous with municipal Calcutta as defined in the Calcutta Municipal Act, III of 1899.

(xi) Extinction of privileges.—It seems necessary to provide for the extinction of all privileges conferred under the existing Act with a view to their re-conferment at the discretion of the Executive Commission.

(xii) The Executive Commission.—The Executive Commission will be limited to seven members so as to become a more workable body; and the representation of the Government of Bengal will be fixed at two members.

Certain other deviations are suggested These are generally of minor importance They refer mainly to the procedure following an inquiry by the Visitor or appeals from aggrieved communities, the position of the Treasurer, the provision for certain teachers to appear as private candidates, the inclusion of a new body called the Board of Co-ordination to make the most effective use of the teaching facilities and accommodation. provision for permitting a women's college to attain the rank of a constituent college. Some other unimportant changes will probably figure in the Bill; and it may be found desirable to express in the Bill itself the proportion and method of Muhammadan representation in the larger bodies, viz., the Court, the Executive Council and the Academic Council.

Action contemplated.

37. The Government of India propose to place before the Imperial Legislative Council a Bill embodying the main proposals of the Commission with the deviations indicated above. They do not at the present stage commit themselves as regards these deviations or the detailed provisions of the measure. They trust that the Senate of the University of Calcutta and such other bodies as are closely concerned with the questions at issue will forward their opinions at a very early stage through His Excellency the Rector or the Government of Bengal, as the case may be, in such time as to permit of the publication of the Bill by the end of April 1920.

V.—Conclusion.

Need for co-operation.

38. The Government of India are well aware that the proposals of the Commission may excite apprehensions in the minds of some. Vested interests may suspect that they are threatened, the sentiments which have grown round the University as it exists may feel themselves touched. But the scheme which the Commission has framed shows due consideration in all these matters. It is necessary to recognise the task of public instruction in all its branches as an important trust laid upon Government and upon the nation, in which, while violence to personal interests should where possible be avoided, the greatest good of the majority must prevail. The traditions and the affections which cling round a time-honoured institution will only be strengthened by its development; for progress with the times must now, more than ever, be the watchword in education and the Commission has amply shown that the system in Bengal calls for re-adjustment to suit changing circumstances. It is not pretended that the realisation of the Commission's proposals will be an easy matter. Funds will be required, high administrative ability will have to be called into play, apprehensions will have to be allayed and the claims of conflicting interests adjudicated. The Government of India are assured that there is at the present moment in Bengal a strong and genuine aspiration for improved methods in the higher branches of instruction. They feel therefore that they can confidently look for the assistance and co-operation of the educated classes in carrying out the high and difficult enterprise on which the Commission has invited them to embark. They believe that these changes, if successfully achieved, will lead to a better order of things, remove any taint of inefficiency and furnish Bengal with a body of educated youth competent to further her interests in intellectual, administrative and industrial activities.

REPORT ON THE COTTON CLOTH OPERATIONS BY THE CONTROLLER OF COTTON CLOTH.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

Report on the Cotton Cloth operations by the Controller of Cotton Cloth.

In March 1918 the Government of India appointed an informal committee, composed mainly of persons employed in the cotton trade, to consider what steps could be taken to relieve the distress caused to the poorer classes in India by the high price of cotton cloth. The Committee were asked in particular to advise (a) whether it would be possible to introduce a scale of mills' charges for cotton cloth and, if such a scale was possible, what it should be; and (b) whether it would be necessary for this purpose to control in any way the price of, or operations in, raw cotton and, if so, what steps were practicable in this direction.

2. This Committee sat in Bombay from the 28th March to the 3rd April 1918, and the Resolutions passed by it were published in August 1918. The Committee held the view, inter alia, that the price of cloth manufactured in India should not rise above a point justified by the price of raw cotton and other costs of manufacture, allowing for a reasonable profit to the manufacturer, dealer and retailer. They were also of the opinion that it would be difficult to regulate the price of all varieties of cloth, and to ensure that the consumer would get the benefit of the prices so prescribed, but they considered that a fair measure of control would be practicable if a limited number of varieties of cloth were standardized or manufactured and sold under regulation. After a careful consideration of the Committee's recommendations, the Government of India decided to accept their proposals for the standardisation of certain varieties of cloth; and in order to give effect to this decision the Cotton Cloth Act was passed in the Imperial Legislative Council in September 1918.

3. Mr. F. Noyce, I.C.S., was appointed Controller of Cotton Cloth, and an Advisory Committee was constituted to assist him in accordance with the provisions of the Act. Mr. Noyce held charge of the office of Controller until the recent decision of the Government to place the control of cotton cloth in abeyance. The report which the Controller has submitted is now published for general information.

4. The report gives a clear and interesting account of the operations, and the Government of India consider it unnecessary to comment on it. They desire, however, to take this opportunity to express their acknowledgments of the valuable services rendered by Mr. Noyce, to whom, to a very large extent, the success of the scheme was due, and to Mr. Engel, Chief Inspector of Factories, Bombay, who was appointed Assistant Controller, and on whom fell the bulk of the work of inspecting the standard cloth manufactured. The special thanks of Government are due to Mr. Stones, whose expert knowledge and whose ready assistance were of the greatest value; to the other members of the Advisory Committee, who were good enough to place their services at the Controller's disposal; and to Messrs. N. N. Wadia and Sons, Managing Agents of the Bombay Dyeing and Manufacturing Company, to whom the Controller was under special obligations. The Government of India also wish to endorse Mr. Noyce's commendations of the other firms and gentlemen named in the Report.

ORDERED that a copy of the resolution, with a copy of the report, be forwarded to all Local Governments and Administrations, to the Railway Department (Railway Board), to F. Noyce, Esquire, I.C.S., lately Controller of Cotton Cloth, to all the Members of the Advisory Committee, to Messrs. N. N. Wadia and Sons, to the Director General of Commercial Intelligence and to the Director of Statistics.

ORDERED also that the resolution, as well as the report, be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

A. H. LEY,
Secretary to the Government of India.

No. 5817, dated Bombay, the 28th November 1919.

From—F. NOYCE, Esq., I.C.S., Controller of Cotton Cloth,

To--The Secretary to the Government of India, DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY.

I HAVE the honour to submit the following report on the Cloth Control operations.

2. As I submit a chart to which frequent reference will be made throughout the Report, I would explain at the outset that this chart shows :—

(1) The wholesale price in Bombay of the shirting turned out by the Century Mill, a first class Bombay Mill. This price will be adopted as the basis for comparison throughout in dealing with the price of standard cloth, though it should be mentioned that it ranges at from one to two annas higher than the price of cloth turned out by the average Bombay mills.

(2) The price of Fari grey shirting, one of the best known line of imported piece-goods.

(3) The price of M. G Broach cotton "Fully good".

(4) The fluctuations in exchange. and

(5) The price of bar silver "Spot" London.

The chart covers the period from August 1st, 1918 to October 26th, 1919 when I left Bombay to join the Indian Sugar Committee.

3. The circumstances which led to the passing of the Cloth Control Act of 1918, are so well known that they need not be repeated here. It is perhaps sufficient to say that the price of cloth in Bombay reached the unprecedented height of R2-14-0 per pound in August 1918, and that the high price of cloth was causing acute distress all over India, more especially in Bengal where it led to somewhat serious riots and in Bihar and Orissa. On August 20th, I was placed on special duty in order to work out the details of the scheme for the manufacture of standard cloth. After making preliminary enquiries in Bombay, a Conference was convened which met on September 18th. 27 gentlemen were present at this Conference, 15 of whom were officials and 12 non-officials. Official representatives were present from the following provinces and Native States :—Bombay, Madras, the Punjab, Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, Assam, the United Provinces, the Central Provinces, Baluchistan, Central India, Baroda and Indore, in addition to representatives of the mill industry and the piece-goods trade of Bombay, Calcutta, Ahmedabad, Cawnpore and Indore. Much ground was covered at this Conference, and the discussion proved of great service in subsequently working out the details of the scheme. At this Conference, a sample of cloth, which appeared suitable for standardization, was produced. This cloth, which was kindly manufactured for me by the Bombay Dyeing and Manufacturing Company at their Textile Mills, was 20s warp and 20s. weft, 32 reed and 32 picks, and the price at controlled rates, on the basis of the prevailing rate for cotton which on the date of the Conference stood at R800 per khandi, was estimated at 5½ annas per square yard or Re. 1-12-6 per pound. It should be explained that the reed and pick of the cloth were somewhat lower than that of the bulk of the cloth turned out by the mills. This meant that the cloth was less closely woven and more open in appearance than their ordinary cloth. This was unavoidable as the cloth was intended for the poorest classes only and it was, therefore, necessary that it should be manufactured as cheaply as possible. This cloth met with the hearty approval of all the provincial representatives present, more especially those from Bengal, Bihar and Orissa and Assam, but it was pointed out that it could not be manufactured by the Cawnpore mills, and that a coarser cloth would have also to be standardized in order to permit of their being brought under the scheme. Samples of this cloth were produced at the meeting of the Imperial Legislative Council, at which the Act was passed, and it is worthy of mention that it also received the approval of the non-official representatives of Bengal on the Council.

4. The Cloth Control Act became law on September 26th 1918 and I was immediately appointed Controller of Cotton Cloth under its provisions. The following gentlemen were nominated as my Advisory Committee :—

Mr. R. H. Brooke.
Mr. N. B. Saklatwala.
Mr. Ambalal Sarabhai.
Sir Clement Simpson.
The Honourable Mr. T. Smith.
Mr. F. Stones.
The Honourable Mr. Purshottamdas Thakurdas, C.I.E., M.B.E.
Mr. Devidas Madhowji Thackersey.
Sir Vithaldas Thackersey.
Mr. C. N. Wadia, C.I.E.
Mr. G. Wiles, I.C.S.

Sir Vithaldas Thackersey and Mr. Brooke subsequently resigned on leaving Bombay, Sir Clement Simpson on leaving Madras and Mr. Stones for business reasons. Mr. J. D. F. Engel, Chief Inspector of Factories, Bombay, was appointed to the Committee on assuming charge of his duties as Assistant Controller on the 15th February 1919. He had previously attended meetings of the Committee in an informal capacity. Eleven meetings of the Committee were held in all.

5. The first meeting of the Advisory Committee was held on October 15th. On that date I had received an indent for cloth for 19 million yards of cloth monthly from Bihar and Orissa, and 2¼ million yards from Assam. The United Provinces requirements were put at not less than 4 million yards monthly, whilst those from Bengal remained at the figure given at the Preliminary Conference, viz., 4 million yards monthly, a total of 29 million yards. In view of the fall in the price of cloth, which had occurred since the passing of the Act, it was, however, decided to commence the manufacture of standard cloth from November 1st, but to take up the monthly output of five per cent. of the looms in the first instance. It was estimated that this would mean about 8¾ million yards of standard cloth. It was decided at this meeting that the cloth to be standardised should be that approved at the Preliminary Conference but that dhoties and saris should be standardised as well as shirting. It was also decided that, in order to meet the case of up-country mills, which were only able to weave cloth of coarser counts, and also to provide a somewhat thicker cloth for the colder climates of the Punjab, Baluchistan, the North-West Frontier Province and Sind, a coarser cloth should be standardised for those provinces. This cloth, subsequently known as A.12, was 16*s*. warp and 14*s*. weft, 48*s*. reed and 44 picks. This decision was very fully justified by results as the success achieved by this cloth has been the outstanding feature of the operations.

6. Circumstances compelled the decision to commence the manufacture of standard cloth to be reconsidered at the next meeting of the Advisory Committee held on October 25th. The fall in the price of ordinary cloth, which had commenced immediately the intention of Government in regard to Cloth Control were made public, had been accentuated by other factors, the announcement that a tax would be levied on excess profits, the fall in the price of raw cotton, the prospects of peace and the diminished purchasing power of the people resulting from the influenza epidemic and the unfavourable agricultural conditions in various parts of the country. The armistice was signed on November 11th, and in the third week of November the price of cloth touched the lowest point it has reached since the Cloth Control operations commenced. As will be seen from the chart, the price of the Century mill's cloth was Re. 1-6-0 per pound. At the third meeting of the Advisory Committee held on November 9th, it was, therefore decided that it would be advisable to postpone the manufacture of standard cloth indefinitely, a decision which was approved by the Government of India.

7. I took advantage of the decision to postpone the manufacture of standard cloth to visit Lucknow and Bankipore in order to confer with the Local Governments. In both cases, the view taken, which subsequent events showed to be entirely correct, was that the price of cloth had reached its lowest level for the time being. The Government of Bihar and Orissa consulted me as to the advisability of making large purchases of imported piece-goods in Calcutta, and I cordially concurred in their decision to adopt this course. The Government of the United Provinces requested me to obtain for them five bales of standard cloth for each of the 48 districts of the province. This I succeeded in doing. 165 of these bales were manufactured by the Bombay Dyeing and Manufacturing Company, 45 by the Standard Mills and 30 at the Western India and Hongkong Mills. For these, I was indebted to Messrs. N. N. Wadia and Sons, Mr. Saklatwala and Sir Vithaldas Thackersey.

8. From the third week in November onwards, the price of cloth again rose steadily. In these circumstances, Mr. J. Reid, I.C.S., Controller of Cloth, Bihar and Orissa requested me to supplement his purchases of Manchester cloth by furnishing him with 600 bales of standard cloth. This I was able to obtain from the Anglo-French Mills, Pondicherry (300 bales), thanks to Sir Gordon Fraser, the Mofussil Mills, Broach (80 bales), thanks to the Honourable Mr. Purshottamdas Thakurdas, the Lakshmi and Vishnu Mills, Sholapur (50 bales), thanks to Mr. R. H. Brooke, the Crescent and Fazulbhoy and Pearl Mills, Bombay (50 bales), thanks to Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy, Jubilee Mills, Ahmedabad (40 bales), thanks to Mr. Ambalal Sarabhai, the Khandesh Mills, Jalgaon (25 bales), thanks to Mr. Lalji Narainji, the Standard Mills, Bombay (15 bales), thanks to Mr. Saklatwala and the Textile Mills, Bombay (5 bales), thanks to Messrs. N. N. Wadia and Sons. The price charged for this as well as for the sample bales supplied to the United Provinces was Re. 1-7-0 per pound for shirting, Re. 1-7-6 for dhoties and Re. 1 8-0 for saris. It may be convenient if I mention here that before the provisions of the Act were formally put into operation, arrangements were made to supply Bihar and Orissa and the Central Provinces with a certain amount of cloth other than standard cloth. This cloth was obtained from the following firms at favourable rates in each case :—

Currimbhoy Mills and Fazulbhoy Mills	53
Hindustan Mills	53
Ahmedabad Manufacturing and Calico Printing Company	20
Mofussil Mills	77
Century Mills	10
Bombay United Mills	16
Bengal Nagpur Cotton Mills	60

Five sample bales of cloth manufactured by the Century Mills were supplied to Baluchistan, and five sample bales from the Textile Mills were supplied to Bengal and Bihar and Orissa, and four bales to Bombay and the Punjab. The total amount of standard and other cloth arranged for, though not in all cases supplied, before the provisions of the Act were formally put into operation is thus as shown in the following statement :—

Name of Province.	Standard cloth.	Other cloth.	TOTAL.
Bihar and Orissa	570	229	799

9. In the third week of December, the price of cloth reached Re. 1-15-0 per pound. As will be seen from the chart, the increase was not justified by a corresponding increase in the price of cotton. It then fell to Re. 1-13-0 per pound, but by January 17th had again risen to Re 1-14-0 per pound. This increase of prices had been reflected in the provinces. The Controller of Cloth, Bihar and Orissa reported that his experience had shown the necessity of supplementing his supply of Manchester cloth with a supply of standard cloth and, therefore, indented for a supply of 1,600 bales of standard cloth monthly for three months. The United Provinces submitted an indent for 2,500 bales and the Punjab asked for 2,200 bales of A.-12. It was, therefore, decided to make an immediate commencement with the manufacture of standard cloth and to take up the output of five per cent of the looms monthly in the first instance. It was estimated that this would produce 5,244 bales of cloth, of which 1,600 would be allotted to Bihar and Orissa, 2,408 to the United Provinces and 1,236 to the Punjab It had been decided at previous meetings of the Advisory Committee that the price of standard cloth should be based on the price of cotton on the day on which orders were issued to the mills. At a meeting of the Committee held on January the 30th, it was decided that R630 per khandi of 784 pounds should be adopted as the price of a suitable mixing for the manufacture of standard cloth. On this basis the price of shirting was fixed at Re. 1-7-6 per pound, of dhoties at Re. 1-8-0 and of saris at Re. 1-8-6. The price of the cloth (A.-12) it had been decided to standardize for the Punjab—was fixed at Re. 1-5-6 It was agreed that these prices should apply to all mills. Orders to the mills on this basis issued the same day.

10. As regards the price fixed for standard cloth, it may be here explained that the Members of the Advisory Committee with technical experience worked this out in different ways and arrived at a unanimous conclusion with which I saw no reason to differ. The reasonable margin of profit contemplated by the Act was placed at 10 per cent, and the calculations were based on the circumstances of a mill working with average efficiency. It may be thought that the profit allowed leaned on the side of liberality but it has to be remembered that the same price was fixed for all mills, as it was quite impossible to take the circumstances of individual mills into account. A rate had, therefore, to be fixed which would prevent mills with low efficiency from working at a loss. It may be mentioned, however, that several of them alleged subsequently that they had done so. The mills were also expected to place the cloth free on rail, to purchase stamps and provide samples and also to wait three weeks for their money. As events proved, this period was greatly exceeded in most cases.

11. The details of the cloth actually standardized are shown in statement A appended

12. Before giving details of the cloth manufactured by the mills as a result of the first orders placed with them, it will be convenient if I deal briefly with subsequent events. The second indent received from the United Provinces stood at practically the same figure as the first. Most unfortunately, as things turned out, the Punjab authorities decided to await the receipt of the cloth first indented for before ordering any further large quantities of standard cloth. They, therefore, submitted a second indent for 300 bales only of A.-12. Experience showed that at least another 1,000 bales of this cloth could easily have been absorbed at that date by the Punjab and adjacent provinces and, if this had been taken, nearly all the difficulties, which eventually occurred would have been obviated In these circumstances, there was nothing to be done but to allot the balance remaining after supplying the United Provinces, amounting to about 2,400 bales, to Bihar and Orissa which had indented for 4,800 bales in all. Fortunately a considerable demand for standard cloth sprang up from Assam and the Central Provinces. The Punjab was also able to relieve the United Provinces of 110 bales of ordinary cloth and with this and smaller requisitions from other provinces, in addition to rejections, the amount of standard cloth sent to the United Provinces and Bihar and Orissa was, as shown below, much less than the quantity actually indented for. At the ninth meeting of the Advisory Committee held on March 3rd 1919, the price of the second allocation was fixed at Re. 1-5-6 for shirting Re. 1-6-0 for dhoties and Re. 1-6-6 for saris. That for A.-12 cloth was fixed at, Re. 1-3-6. These prices were fixed on the basis of cotton at R530 per Khandi. Orders to the mills issued at once.

13. From the end of December to the third week in April, as the chart shows, the price of cloth fell steadily, partly as a result of the fall in the price of cotton and partly also, there can be no doubt, as a result of the presence of standard cloth on the market. The chart furnishes convincing evidence that not since the end of December has there been the wide disparity between the price of cloth and that of cotton which there was both in that month and at the time the Act was passed and, as the reports from the provinces show, one of the main factors in steadying prices has been standard cloth. In the third week in April, cloth reached the lowest price it had touched till recently. The Century Mill's cloth was then quoted at Re 1-8-0 per pound, that from other mills in Bombay being from one to two annas lower. This meant that at that stage ordinary cloth was obtainable at wholesale rates at less than the price of standard cloth of the first allocation and at very little above that of the price of the second allocation. It need hardly be said, however, that the full effect of this fall in prices had not reached the provinces and that standard cloth was then, as it has remained, appreciably the cheapest cloth and considerably the best in value on the market. In the circumstances, however, it was not surprising that no further indents were received from the United Provinces and Bihar and Orissa and that the latter province asked to be relieved of the balance of its third indent. The Punjab had by this time discovered the advantages of A.-12 cloth and was willing to take further large quantities of it. There was obviously no justification for manufacturing cloth for one province only and it was, therefore, decided at the tenth meeting of the Advisory Committee held on April 16th to place no further orders with the mills.

14. As regards the particulars of the cloth manufactured by the mills as a result of the orders placed with them, it may be mentioned that there are 145 weaving mills in British territory which came under the provisions of the Act. Of these, two mills were not working and four very small mills with less than 100 looms and with no spindles were exempted. Ten mills made arrangements with other mills to take over their allocations, arrangements in which, in the majority of cases, I did my best to assist them and which gave a great deal of trouble to accomplish successfully. Messrs. Best and Company, Managing Agents of the Anglo-French Textile Mills, Pondicherry kindly agreed that their mills should be treated as if in British territory. 129 mills in all, therefore, manufactured standard cloth, of which 55 were situated in Bombay, 35 in Ahmedabad and 39 in up-country stations. The total amount of cloth actually accepted from the mills of the first allocation amounted to 5,053 bales, of which 2,270 were despatched to the United Provinces, 1,534 to Bihar and Orissa, 1,178 to the Punjab, 37 to Bombay, 29 to the Central Provinces and 5 to the North-West Frontier Province. The Hubli Mills, the Managing Agents of which are Messrs. Forbes, Forbes Campbell and Company, offered to assist me by manufacturing 25 bales in excess of their allocation under the Act, and, as this offer enabled me to meet demands from the Central Provinces, it was gratefully accepted. The cloth from six mills, amounting to 106 bales, was entirely rejected. The total amount of cloth actually accepted from the mills of the second allocation amounted to 4,598 bales of which 1,760 were sent to the United Provinces, 1,572 to Bihar and Orissa, 479 to the Punjab, 407 to Assam, 251 to the Central Provinces, 25 to Bombay, 37 to Bengal, 29 to the North-West Frontier Province, 36 to Baluchistan, 1 to Delhi and 1 to Madras. The cloth from 18 mills, amounting to 522 bales, was entirely rejected. Under the Act, I had power to require mills to replace this with cloth of the requisite quality but this course was not adopted. As the cloth was not required in the provinces, no object would have been served by doing so.

15. Before passing on to describe the arrangements made for the examination and despatch of the cloth, it will be convenient to give details of other cloth obtained subsequent to the second allocation. As will be seen from the chart, the price of cloth, having reached its lowest point in April, rose steadily until August when it commenced to fall. The rise in prices stimulated the demand for A.-12 cloth in the Punjab and the adjacent provinces, a demand which the fall in prices did not affect so far as the Punjab is concerned. No more standard cloth was being manufactured under the Act, but I was able to obtain a fairly large quantity both of A.-12 and ordinary cloth at favourable rates through the kind assistance of some of the leading Bombay firms. 135 bales of A.-12 were obtained at Re. 1-3-6 per pound, the price fixed for the second allocation, from the following mills and firms :—

	Bales.
Century Mills Company	51
Messrs. Currimbhoy Ebrahim and Company	12
Messrs. Tata Sons and Company	17
The Bombay Dyeing and Manufacturing Company	12
Messrs. Finlay and Company	10
Messrs. Killick, Nixon and Company	11
The E. D. Sassoon United Mills Company	12
Colaba Land and Mills Company	10

Of this cloth 72 bales were despatched to the Punjab, 35 bales to Sind, 15 bales to Baluchistan and 13 bales to the North-West Frontier Province. 15 bales of A.-12 were also obtained from Messrs. Killick, Nixon and Company, at Re. 1-6-6 per pound, 5 of which were despatched to Baluchistan and 10 to the Punjab. The Sholapur Spinning and Weaving Company also supplied me with 30 bales of cloth A.-12 quality, 36 inches wide instead of 31 inches at Re 1-6-6 per pound. Of this, 18 bales were supplied to the Punjab, 10 to the North-West Frontier Province and 2 to Sind. 50 bales of ordinary cloth were also obtained from the Century Mills Company at favourable rates 41 of these were supplied to the Punjab and 9 to Sind. I have further arranged with the Century Mills Company for the supply of 65 bales of A.-12 at Re. 1-6-0 per pound to the Director of Civil Supplies, Punjab and 12 bales at Re. 1-8-0 per pound to the Registrar of Co-operative Societies, Punjab and with Messrs. Currimbhoy Ebrahim and Sons for the supply of 100 bales to the Registrar, Co-operative Societies, Pubjab at Re. 1-6-0 per pound. These are in process of manufacture. The popularity of A.-12 cloth in the Punjab has been so great that the Registrar of Co-operative Societies in that province is anxious to arrange for a permanent supply of this cloth to Co-operative Societies in that Province He has recently visited Bombay and I have been able to assist him in making arrangements which will, I trust, secure this result. Messrs. Currimbhoy Ebrahim and Sons have generously offered to supply at once 260 bales at Re. 1-8-0 per pound, a very favourable rate in present circumstances. 100 bales have been accepted at this rate, and I have little doubt that the whole quantity will be taken up. In order to prevent a recrudescence of profiteering during the Pooja holidays, the Government of Bengal requested me to arrange for a supply of ordinary cloth which could be placed on the market should any tendency to profiteer become manifest or be disposed of suitably should that contingency not arise. I succeeded in obtaining 119 bales for them at favourable rates from the following firms :—

	Bales.
The Bombay Dyeing and Manufacturing Company	48
Messrs Currimbhoy Ebrahim and Sons	49
Messrs. Killick, Nixon and Company	22

300 bales of cloth were also obtained at ordinary rates from the Century Manufacturing Company. 10 bales of cotton blankets obtained from the Bombay Dyeing and Manufacturing Company at favourable rates have been supplied to Assam and 4 bales to the United Provinces.

16. In all, therefore, the total figure of standard and other cloth supplied by me to the various provinces, including cloth in process of manufacture and the 100 bales from Messrs. Currimbhoy Ebrahim and Sons mentioned in the last paragraph, amounts to 11,708 bales made up as follows :—

This represents nearly 22¼ million yards of cloth.

17. A word should now be said about the examination and despatch of the cloth. Each mill was required to submit two one yard samples of the cloth it had been directed to make. These samples were carefully examined both in my office and by Mr. Stones at the Textile Mills and, if they were approved, the mill was directed to proceed with the manufacture of its allocation. If they were not approved, the mill was directed to submit a fresh sample. This was, as a rule, sufficient though in a few cases more than one fresh sample had to be called for. At the outset, the cloth was inspected by the Assistant Controller or myself whilst it was in process of manufature and if the quality was satisfactory, despatching instructions were issued in regard to it. It was, however, soon found that this method of inspection did not prevent unsatisfactory cloth being sent out and a different system was adopted. The cloth was not inspected until the whole of it had been completed and baled. A proportion of the bales were then opened and examined. If any defects were found in these, the mill was required to reopen the bales and to select satisfactory cloth. If this proved impossible, the whole consignment was rejected. It will be observed that the rejections were much larger in the case of the second allocation than of the first. This was partly due to the fact that, in consequence of complaints received in regard to the first allocation, a somewhat higher standard was insisted on in the case of the second allocation, partly to the fact that owing to the slackening of the demand for standard cloth, more detailed inspection was possible in the case of the second allocation than of the first and partly to the fact that some mills were undoubtedly more careless about their second allocation than about the first as they were then aware that no more orders were being placed with them. That no undue leniency was shown in passing the cloths is, I think, shown by the prices mills were able to obtain for rejected cloth. I heard of some cases in which this was appreciably above the controlled price. This means that some mills gained by turning out defective cloth. It is to be regretted that this should have been possible, but, as already explained, no useful purpose would have been served by requiring them to replace it by cloth of correct quality. I may here mention that in only one case was my decision questioned and an appeal made to my Advisory Committee. In that case, the mill was given an opportunity of selecting its cloth and of providing as many bales as possible of a quality equal to the best sample I had been able to find on inspection of its cloth. It proved unable to do so. The complaints made in regard to the quality of the cloth are dealt with in paragraph 21 below.

18. The arrangements made to secure quick transit of the cloth were as follows. In the case of the United Provinces, the cloth was despatched in whole waggon loads to Cawnpore, Lucknow or Allahabad. In the case of other provinces which had no such convenient distributing centres, arrangements were made with the authorities of the Great Indian Peninsula and Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railways to despatch all the cloth sent off from Bombay, Ahmedabad and Sholapur in whole waggon loads to the furthest possible point, e.g., in the case of Assam to Calcutta or in that of the Punjab to Lahore and so on. These arrangements worked admirably and undoubtedly saved much time in transit. In this connexion, I am especially indebted to Mr. D. S Burn, Deputy Traffic Manager, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, Mr. J. D. Flynn, C.I.E., Goods Superintendent, Wadi Bunder, and Mr. J. Counsell, Goods Superintendent, Carnac Bunder, on whom and whose staff the detailed working out of the scheme entailed much labour.

19. The arrangements for financing the purchase of the cloth which were contemplated at the preliminary Conference held in September were that the Local Government should keep me in funds in order to enable me to pay for the cloth immediately on receipt of the signed railway receipt from the Station Master of the despatching station. Government were, however, unable to approve this proposal as the financing of the very large purchases of standard cloth which then appeared probable would have involved somewhat serious interference with their financial arrangements. Eventually the price of standard cloth was fixed on the assumption that it would be paid for within three weeks of delivery. At that time it was contemplated that the cloth would be mainly disposed of by wholesale and retail dealers who would pay for it on receipt of the railway receipt. The system of disposing of the cloth through wholesale and retail dealers did not prove successful and other expedients had to be adopted which are described in detail in paragraph 22. In the United Provinces, the procedure followed at the outset was that the Collector of the district recovered the amount of the invoices from the dealers and remitted it to me by remittance transfer receipt. This system soon broke down owing to the refusal of some dealers to take delivery of the cloth indented for and the inability of others to dispose of what they had. This meant that payment could not be made until other agencies had been organized. In Bihar and Orissa, the incapacity of the dealers was very quickly recognized and arrangements were made to dispose of the cloth through the agency of the Provincial Controller's own staff and that of District Officers. This meant, however, that the Provincial Controller could not remit the money due for the cloth until it had actually been sold. In the case of both these provinces, therefore, which took the bulk of the ordinary standard cloth, the prompt payment, which had been hoped for, was not forthcoming and it was not until the Local Governments advanced the whole of the funds required to meet the outstanding invoices that my difficulties in this respect were overcome. I have to express my appreciation of the forbearance shown by the majority of the mills in Bombay and of some of those up-country in this matter. The three weeks period was seldom exceeded in the case of the consignments of cloth sent to the Punjab, to which a more readily saleable cloth had been supplied and where it was disposed of almost entirely through the agency of Co-operative Societies, or in that of the other provinces which took cloth on a small scale. A few Municipalities and District Boards in the Central Provinces were somewhat dilatory in payment. The total amount paid to the mills was R63,13,555-10-3 made up as follows :—

	R	A.	P.
United Provinces	22,66,420	6	7
Bihar and Orissa	21,02,005	14	7
Punjab	10,81,992	2	10
Bengal	3,45,683	4	3
Assam	2,13,553	12	6
Central Provinces	1,86,406	8	7
Bombay	59,377	15	4
Baluchistan	29,730	0	9
North-West Frontier Province	27,772	15	7
Delhi	487	1	9

Total	63,13,555	10	3

20. Before proceeding to give details of the agencies by which the cloth was sold and the effect upon the prices of ordinary cloth in the different provinces, a few remarks upon the general question of the saleability of standard cloth seem called for. If, as has been stated in the course of this report, the price of standard cloth has been throughout lower than the price of ordinary cloth of the same or even of inferior quality it is only natural that the question should be asked why it did not sell more readily in the United Provinces and Bihar and Orissa and why there was not a greater demand for it in other Provinces. For this there were several reasons. It must be emphasized that the intention of Government in providing for the manufacture of standard cloth was not to provide a popular cloth but a cloth which would relieve the distress of the poorest classes. To get such a cloth to the poorest classes needs organization to an extent which was not realized at the outset. As will be shown, when dealing with conditions in each province, an organization has now been evolved in the United Provinces and Bihar and Orissa which is disposing of standard cloth with what may be regarded as satisfactory rapidity and there can be little doubt that, if this organization had been in existence throughout, nearly all the standard cloth sent to these provinces would have been disposed of by this time. As the operations progressed, it became clear that the poorest classes for whom alone standard cloth was intended would buy if it were sent out to them but that it was difficult to get them to come to public offices for it either because they could not spare the time, were reluctant to leave their homes or were exceedingly ignorant and careless of their own interests Another point which militated against the sale of standard cloth was the fact that it could not be sold on credit. In July last, Mr. Reid reported that, in the Bhabua Sub-Division of the Shahabad District, hundreds of people came to purchase standard cloth but were unable to buy as they had no money. They were willing to take the whole supply on credit. Mr. Reid further pointed out that his experience had shown that the statistics usually accepted in regard to the demand for cloth in rural tracts were entirely fallacious and that when prices were as high as they have been in war conditions the poorer people buy very little cloth indeed. Instead of the normal two pairs a year, they are content to buy a single cloth and in the jungle tracts many of the aboriginal tribes do with even less. Another obstacle was the inherent conservatism even of the poor which led them to prefer a dearer cloth to which they were used to a cheaper cloth to which they were not accustomed. Both from the United Provinces and Bihar and Orissa, it was reported that standard cloth would have found a readier sale if it had been more heavily sized. The amount of size on standard cloth was 40 per cent. on warp whereas very much of the cloth usually purchased by the poorer classes is sized to the extent of 80 or 100 per cent. In other words, these classes are so negligent of their real interests that they prefer a cloth which is composed in very large measure of size rather than yarn merely because it looks more attractive in the first instance though it loses its appearance as soon as it is washed and is obviously much less durable than standard cloth. A curious obstacle to the ready sale of standard saris (A 15) in Bihar and Orissa, which could not have been foreseen, was the existence of the coloured centre runner. Everyone consulted on this point expressed the opinion that this centre runner was an indispensable feature of saris and that they would never sell without it. Mr. Reid, however, found that it was considered too "fashionable" by the classes for which it was intended and has considerable difficulties in disposing of the saris in consequence. This was specially unfortunate as a slight reduction in cost would have been possible if it had been omitted. Punjab experience shows that the poorer classes were quite willing to pay more for a more closely woven cloth and, if the cloth operations are resumed at any time, this tendency must undoubtedly be taken into account

21. I have already referred to the complaints which were received of the inferiority of the cloth supplied by some mills. I regret to be compelled to admit that, in many cases, these were entirely justified. At the same time, they were inseparable from the character of the scheme. It was absolutely impossible to ensure that every mill should turn out exactly the same cloth from the same specifications. It was out of the question to lay down what cotton should be used for the manufacture of standard cloth and I may say at once that I am satisfied that the use of inferior cotton was not the cause of the trouble. I received a complaint in regard to the cloth turned out by a mill which had, I found on enquiry, paid R1,000 a khandi for the cotton it had used for its standard cloth. The real cause of the difference in the quality of the standard cloth turned out by different mills lay in the character of the machinery and management, more especially the former. The older the machinery, the greater the twist which has to be given to the yarn and the more open and less attractive the appearance of the cloth. Put shortly, the same quality of cloth could not be expected from an up to date Bombay mill with the latest machinery, with highly trained and highly paid European mill managers obtained from Lancashire and with mill agents who make a practice of visiting their mills daily and from small upcountry mills with very old machinery, badly paid subordinates and mill agents who are often non-resident. It was unfortunate from this point of view that the sample bales which were supplied to the provinces were supplied by the Textile Mill which is one of the very best mills in India. This justified the complaint that much of the standard cloth supplied subsequently was not as good as the sample bales but the Textile Mill was the only one willing to give me assistance on the scale required as the manufacture of standard cloth at that stage involved the mill in a heavy loss on the prices then obtainable for ordinary cloth. I may mention that small samples of standard cloth manufactured by upcountry mills were despatched to the Provincial Controllers who were warned that this represented more nearly the average quality of cloth which might be expected. The warning was perhaps not quite sufficiently taken to heart. No complaints were received of the quality of the thicker A 12 cloth and the complaints in regard to the quality of the standard cloth turned out by the Bombay mills were very few indeed. Almost all the majority of the complaints were in regard to the quality of cloth turned out by mills in Ahmedabad and by some of the smaller upcountry mills and the cloth rejected was mainly from these mills. The difference in the quality of the cloth that might be expected from the average Bombay mill and the average mill in Ahmedabad or the small upcountry mill was perhaps hardly appreciated by myself or my Advisory Committee, nearly all the representatives of the mill industry on which were gentlemen connected with highly efficient mills. If it had been, a somewhat different procedure might have been adopted though the question of prescribing a different cloth for mills of different degrees of efficiency appeared at that stage to present insuperable obstacles. I have given much thought to it during the last few months, in view of a possible resumption of the standard cloth operations, and consider that the only way in which the difficulty could be overcome would be to standardize a more closely woven cloth for all mills and in the case of mills in regard to whose cloth justifiable complaints have been received, to prescribe a higher reed and pick in order to ensure that no more complaints of inferior quality should be received. This would enable the Ahmedabad Mills to manufacture a cloth of 20s. warp and 30s. weft to which they are much more accustomed than to one of 20s. warp and 20s. weft. I am entirely satisfied that in no case did any mill attempt in any way to evade responsibilities under the Act, and that the inferiority of the cloth was due to the causes enumerated. That standard cloth in all cases represented good value for money is shown by the fact already mentioned that, in several cases, rejected cloth was sold at a higher price than would have been paid for it by me. I may mention that no complaints in regard to quality were received from provinces which took standard cloth in small quantities and that it would thus appear that it was only in Bihar and Orissa and the United Provinces that the presence of cloth from good and inferior mills gave rise to difficulties.

22. A brief summary of the reports received from the provinces in regard to the agencies through which standard cloth was sold and its effect upon the prices of ordinary cloth will now be given. A statement showing the rates at which the cloth was sold in the different provinces is appended (Statement B).

United Provinces.—The announcement of the intention of Government in regard to the control of cloth contributed in some degree to the large fall in bazaar prices which occurred in these provinces at the end of October. As it was not considered that this would be permanent, the demand for standard cloth was tested by placing five bales of cloth on the market in each of the 48 districts in the provinces. These sold sufficiently well to justify the conclusion that the manufacture of standard cloth on a considerable scale would be of real benefit to the poorer classes and two indents for March and April were accordingly submitted. By the time these reached the provinces, the price of bazaar cloth had fallen considerably and the difference between it and that of standard cloth was no longer so considerable. Under the scheme originally worked out, it was intended that the cloth should be disposed of by regular dealers in cloth who were selected in each district by the District Officers. Their remuneration was fixed at 3½ per cent. for wholesale dealers and 5 per cent for retail dealers. This proved insufficiently attractive and the Provincial Controller reports that where it was a choice between the sale of standard and bazaar cloth many dealers undoubtedly pressed the latter on their customers as it gave them a better profit. The undoubted inferiority of much of the standard cloth to the sample bales supplied them with an excuse for backing out of a bargain which they realized was not going to be as profitable as they had anticipated. It was further alleged that the cloth had arrived too late to be of use, a ground of complaint which was justified in so far that the cold weather is a better season for the sale of cloth than the hot. It was further alleged that the rates for standard cloth did not compare favourably with the market prices for other cloth. That this complaint was entirely without justification and that, in spite of the fall in the prices of ordinary cloth to which the presence of standard cloth had contributed, there was still a sufficient margin to make it well worth while for customers to purchase the latter is clear from the Statement C appended which shows the difference at Cawnpore in April. This difference would, of course, be appreciably greater in the case of the rural tracts.

In a few districts such as Gorakhpur, where dealers with a genuine interest in the scheme spread the news that standard cloth was available, sales proceeded rapidly but the indifference generally displayed by them made it imperative that another selling agency should be devised. The Provincial Controller of Cloth therefore submitted proposals to the Local Government that the cloth should be taken over by District Boards. These proposals were finally sanctioned at the end of June and many Boards are now selling the cloth through teachers and poundkeepers. Wherever the Boards have refused to take over the cloth, District Officers have instructed their Gazetted Officers and Tahsildars to take a supply of cloth with them whenever they go on tour. The reports so far received of the results of the new arrangements are very encouraging. The Secretaries of some District Boards, notably those at Cawnpore, Lucknow and Allahabad, are devoting a great deal of time and energy to the task with the result that in those places large quantity of cloth have recently been disposed of. The District Board at Muttra disposed of 17 bales of standard cloth in a month though the wholesale dealer had failed to sell a single piece in the four previous months. In Basti the difficulty is to keep the selling agents supplied as they dispose of the cloth as soon as it is received. Officers who have so far taken the cloth on tour have found many ready customers. In Muzaffarnagar, three Sub-Divisional Officers and one Tahsildar disposed of Rs. 2,540 worth of cloth (about five bales) during a brief monsoon tour of 10 or 12 days. Help is being given in a few instances by Co-operative Credit Societies and Managers of the Court of Wards. Where teachers and poundkeepers are giving their services, they are being allowed a small commission though this amounts to much less than that which was previously sanctioned for dealers.

In June market prices for shirting in the United Provinces rose slightly by about two annas a pound and remained firm till the middle of September. They then dropped by about six annas a pound and the price at the beginning of October was Re. 1-8-6 wholesale. The price of dhoties and saris has steadily declined since February. The average prices in June and October as compared with the price of the second allocation of standard cloth are shown in Statement D appended.

For purposes of comparison, the cloths in the Cawnpore market, which bear the closest resemblance to standard cloth, have been taken. The difference between the price of standard cloth of the second allocation and the wholesale market rate is slightly in favour of the former; but the advantage is increased considerably when the comparison is extended to retail rates. The Provincial Controller adds that the fall in bazaar prices has for the present been checked by large outstation purchases for Hindu festivals and that it is generally thought the lowest level for the time being has now been reached.

As regards the effect of the manufacture of standard cloth in the price of ordinary cloth, the Controller of Cloth (Mr. J. H. Darwin, I.C.S.) is of opinion that there is no doubt that it has been instrumental in keeping prices low, but that it is difficult to say exactly how far it has operated in this direction in view of the other important factors which have been at work such as the heavy fall in the price of cotton and the rise in the rate of exchange. He considers that the great benefit which standard cloth has brought about has been in the steadying influence it has exercised on the market. Since it was introduced, there have been no sudden fluctuations and its diffusion in all districts has kept prices much the same throughout the provinces. I may mention that enquiries I made during my recent tour in the United Provinces with the Indian Sugar Committee have shown that standard cloth has been of the greatest service in some of the eastern districts of the provinces. I was informed that in the north of the Gorakhpur district, where communications are bad and ordinary cloth expensive and difficult to obtain in consequence, many of the poorer people would have been practically unclad had it not been for standard cloth.

Mr. Darwin further points out that until the end of May the staff employed in connexion with standard cloth in the United Provinces consisted of one supervising officer and one clerk. It was not until the end of June that a special officer was appointed to tour the province and infuse more vigour in the selling arrangements. He considers that if a staff of Inspectors had been employed in the provinces from the start, the result would have been different. He is unable to state exactly how much standard cloth has been sold, but states that at the end of the first week in November there were 864 bales still undespatched to districts from the distributing centres at Cawnpore and Allahabad. Considerably more than half of this consists of dhoties (A.-16) which are much less popular than the shirting. It is surprising that this should be so as their average quality was markedly higher. In view of the fall in bazaar prices and to facilitate the disposal of such cloth as remained of the first allocation, its prices were reduced to those of the second. The difference will be paid by the Local Government which has made budget provision for the purpose. It is hoped that the loss will not exceed one lakh.

Bihar and Orissa.—The Provincial Controller (Mr. J. Reid, I.C.S.) reports that the agency originally adopted for the sale of standard cloth, as well as of the Manchester cloth purchased by him in Calcutta, was that of agents and retailers appointed on commission. These men, who were selected by district officers, proved to possess very little experience of trade or of any business requiring close organization. They sold large quantities of the cloth purchased at low prices by Mr. Reid in the Calcutta market during the collapse in prices which followed the armistice, but when their prices rose to a level approaching the local market rates they failed completely to make any headway and have all been displaced. The plea put forward by them to justify their failure was, as in the United Provinces, that the cloth supplied to them was dearer than the cloth sold in the local market by the local dealers, a plea which was supported by several local officers and sub-divisional officers. This plea was completely demolished by the large sales effected by the special staff subsequently organized at all the larger centres in competition with the local dealers competition which was generally invited. Individual dealers occasionally sold particular kinds of ordinary cloth at rates below its purchase price in order to create the impression that ordinary cloth was cheaper than standard cloth and the agents and retailers, who were unable to make any headway for quite different reasons, eagerly adopted the theory to explain their own inefficiency. It, therefore, became necessary to appoint a special agency working directly under the Provincial Controller. Experiments were first tried in the Patna District and were completely successful as soon as the cloth was placed in the mofussil markets. The scheme has since been fully developed and there are now 40 Inspectors and Sub-Inspectors engaged in the sale of cloth. Cloth is also being sold through post offices. What can be accomplished by agencies of this character is shown by the fact that in the Chapra Sub-Division Rs. 25,000 worth of cloth (nearly 50 bales) were sold in August. Sales in Bihar are now satisfactory. This is not the case in Chota Nagpur and Orissa, but even there, in individual tracts in Chota Nagpur and throughout Orissa, they are improving owing to the advertisement which has been given to the cloth through the efforts of the special staff. About the middle of October, Mr. Reid estimated that he still had standard and other cloth on hand to the value of about Rs 13 lakhs. He has been unable to supply me with any later figures of value, but since then the sale of standard cloth has progressed steadily and a further 100 bales have been transferred to Assam. The saleability of the balance will depend on the pitch of prices in the local market, but should the heavy demand, which is expected, materialize during the cold weather it will disappear very rapidly. The disposal of the cloth will be facilitated by the arrangements which have been made to supply 100 bales per mensem to Assam as long as possible.

Mr. Reid reports that, in addition to the difficulty arising from the difference in the quality of the cloth supplied by different mills which has been dealt with above and which both he and Mr. Darwin state was much less apparent in the case of cloth of the second than that of the first consignment as a result of the action taken by me, the tenuity of the cloth militated against its popularity and that it was found that the poorer classes were prepared to pay one or two annas a yard more for better material if placed side by side with standard cloth for sale. I have also already dealt with this point. Mr. Reid states that standard cloth has, with a few exceptions, proved durable, and it has certainly conferred a great benefit on the poorer classes in Bihar and Orissa who were quite unable to purchase Manchester cloth or the cloth supplied by local dealers at the high level of prices which they sought to maintain. Its influence in reducing the level of prices has not been such an important factor as the Manchester cloth purchased in the Calcutta market, as a result of which the prices of the local dealers fell as much as 20 per cent. before standard cloth was placed on the market. No loss has so far been incurred as a result of the standard cloth operations.

Punjab.—The Director of Civil Supplies (The Hon'ble Mr. C. A. H. Townsend, I.C.S.) reports that by far the greater part of the cloth supplied to the Punjab was distributed to the public through the agency of Co-operative Societies, rural and urban, which sold the cloth equally to members, and non-members, Municipalities and Cantonment Committees. During the period of martial law in Lahore about 130 bales were sold in that city by selected shopkeepers who were allowed a profit on the sale but, even so, retailed the cloth to the public at rates well below the maximum rates fixed by Government.

The standard cloth A.-12, which formed the bulk of the cloth taken by the Punjab, was exceedingly popular and could hardly have been a greater success than it was. Ten times the amount received could have been disposed of without difficulty. It was well suited to the requirements of the average Punjabi. The ordinary standard cloth was by no means so popular and some difficulty was experienced in disposing of it.

The prices at which the cloth was sold in the Punjab, which are shown in the statement appended (Statement B), were regarded as maximum prices and the distributing agencies were instructed to retail the cloth to the public at such rates below these as would allow them neither profit nor loss on the transaction. It was found impossible to fix one retail rate for standard cloth for the whole of the province owing to the difference in the cost of freight to such stations as Rohtak in the south-east of the province and Isakhel, a remote Trans-Indus Municipality. In no case were the maximum rates exceeded. The bulk of the first allocation of A.-12 cloth was retailed at either annas 6-9 or annas 7 per yard: that of the second at annas 6-6 per yard. The A.-12 of the first allocation, sold under martial law at Lahore, was sold at annas 6-9 per yard.

Mr. Townsend states that the political effect of the manufacture and sale of the cloth was exceedingly good and that he has received reports to this effect from all over the province. It brought home to the poorer, and indeed to all classes, that Government really had their interests at heart and wanted to do what it could to help them. The testimony on the strength of which he has reported to this effect is far from being all official. One missionary lady of Lahore, in particular, who has been there for many years and is in intimate touch with the poorer city women of all religions, assured him that the political effect of the sale of standard cloth under martial law was very great and entirely good. When A.-12 first appeared in the province in March, it was about 25 per cent. cheaper than ordinary bazaar cloth of similar quality. As a result of its appearance, the latter fell in price between 5 and 10 per cent. all over the province. This fall in price has continued, generally speaking until recently, owing to ordinary trade conditions. At the end of October, the difference in price between A.-12 and similar ordinary bazaar cloth was about 10 per cent. Mr. Townsend confirms the anticipation I expressed at the outset that A.-12 would have been even more popular had it been 36 inches wide instead of 31 inches. He sums up by saying that standard cloth in the Punjab has been a very great success and of great political value.

Assam.—At first only small quantities of standard cloth were indented for from Assam, but for some months past the indent has been for 100 bales monthly. As already mentioned, arrangements have now been made to supply this quantity from the surplus stocks held by the Controller, Bihar and Orissa. It is reported that the shirtings and dhoties are in demand everywhere, but that the saris are not liked by the general public owing to the presence of the coloured centre runner. Their sale is, therefore, confined to the coolie women of the tea gardens. The price of the ordinary lines of cotton cloth of the same sizes and quality are considerably higher than those of standard cloth, and the sale of standard cloth has not influenced them to any great extent as the market prices in Assam depend on those in Calcutta, the stocks of cloth held in the province being small. Local dealers are, however, getting smaller quantities of coarse cloth for sale in Assam. The agencies employed for the distribution of the cloth were Deputy Collectors in charge of circles, mouzadars (Revenue Collectors), Municipalities, Local Boards, Co-operative Societies and Managers of tea gardens, both Indian and European. The manufacture of standard cloth has undoubtedly proved a great benefit to the poorer classes in Assam.

Central Provinces.—The Director of Civil Supplies (Mr. C. G. Leftwich, C.B.E., I.C.S.) states that, generally speaking, standard cloth was not popular in the Central Provinces. Hoshangabad was the only district from which any considerable orders were placed. The poorer classes considered it rough and not durable, a view which, as I have already pointed out, was probably due to the fact that the cloth was not so heavily sized as that to which they are accustomed. One local body subsequently reported that experience had shown that the cloth was quite as durable as could be expected at the price.

In most cases, the unpopularity of the cloth was due to its variation from the style generally used. Mr. Leftwich holds that it was very wise not to try to meet the wishes of the people altogether, and that had this been attempted, the difficulties would have been greatly increased. As it was, the price of standard cloth in most places—the exceptions being the districts of Raipur, Bilaspur and Drug where similar cheap cloth was available from the Bengal Nagpur Mills at Rajnandgaon—was below that of similar lines available in the market and the presence of standard cloth undoubtedly had a good steadying effect on the market generally. In some places, middle class people would have been glad to avail themselves of the cloth, being less rigid in their customs than the labouring classes, but sales were generally restricted to the latter only. In most places the selling agency was a local body such as a Municipality, Local Board or Co-operative Bank. Sometimes the local bodies appointed a sub-committee and in a few cases employed selected dealers, who sold under their control.

Mr. Leftwich considers that it may be claimed that the cloth operations in the Central Provinces were beneficial and served a useful purpose in keeping the markets steady. One Indian officer, in reporting upon its effect, expressed the view that standard cloth had once again convinced the people that their "Sarkar" is mindful of their interests and ever ready to help them in times of distress.

Sind.—From Sind it is reported that A.-12 cloth was much more popular than the ordinary standard cloth and that large quantities of it could have been sold if it had been available. The work of distributing the standard cloth in Karachi and despatching it up-country was undertaken by Mr. Jamshed N. N. Mehta without remuneration. The cloth was sold by two agents and also at four Government cloth shops in Karachi. That sent up-country was sold by dealers approved and at prices fixed by the Collectors. The price of A.-12 cloth was considerably below that of ordinary cloth of similar quality, but the quantity available was insufficient to have any great effect on the price of ordinary lines of cloth. Standard cloth has been of great benefit to a limited class of poor people.

Bengal.—Standard cloth was supplied to and sold from only two centres in the Bengal Presidency, Bankura and Brahmanbaria. A few bales only were sold and the rest was distributed free. It is reported that the cloth was popular amongst the people who got it. It was sold through official agency and the prices compared favourably with that of ordinary lines of cloth. The ordinary cloth recently obtained through me has been distributed for relief purposes in the area affected by the cyclone of September 26th. The Registrar of Co-operative Societies, Mr. J. T. Donovan, I.C.S., adds that the quantity of standard cloth sold was insufficient to affect the market rates of other cloth, but the fact that standard cloth could be counted on had a salutary effect on potential profiteers.

Baluchistan.—From Baluchistan it is reported that standard cloth A.-12 has been most popular amongst the local population and found a ready market. It was sold at annas 6-3 to annas 6-6 per yard, whilst the cost of similar cloth supplied by Bombay and Karachi firms was annas 8 to annas 9 per yard. The preference for the cloth was so great that, had there been any more cloth forthcoming, it would have been welcomed.

North-West Frontier Province.—Mr. S. E. Pears, C.I.E., the Director of Civil Supplies, reports that standard cloth A.-12 was distinctly popular, although its appearance was not considered attractive. It was sold by reliable dealers at a low profit. As it was unlike the cloth usually sold in the province, comparison between its price and that of ordinary cloth of similar quality is not possible, but it was recognized as being good value. Owing to the small quantity supplied the influence which it exercised on the prices of ordinary cloth was negligible as the fluctuations in the latter were brought about by more powerful factors.

23. During the last few weeks the position in Bombay has altered considerably. The price of the Century Mill's cloth, which six or seven weeks ago stood at Re. 1-7-6 per pound, is now Re. 1-14-0 per pound. This rise in price has been brought about by several factors, the most important of which are the great revival in demand as a result of favourable monsoon conditions, and the prohibition by Japan of the export of yarn under 20s. counts which has resulted in the price of yarn at the time of writing being higher in some cases than the price of the cloth manufactured from it. The large stocks of standard cloth held in the United Provinces and Bihar and Orissa and the arrangements I have been able to make in regard to further supplies of A.-12 cloth to the Punjab and for transferring cloth from Bihar and Orissa to Assam enable the situation to be regarded with equanimity, but at the same time a resumption of the standard cloth operations cannot be regarded an altogether remote possibility.

24. In viewing the standard cloth operations as a whole, their effect must not, I venture to think, be gauged entirely by the quantity of cloth supplied, large as this was and great as was the benefit it undoubtedly conferred on the poorer classes. The indirect effects of the presence of standard cloth in stabilising prices and in checking any tendency to profiteer have been equally important. The political effect in one important province has also to be placed to the credit of the operations. It is hardly necessary to point out that had the war continued, standard cloth would have been more necessary and its sale much quicker than has proved to be the case. It can, I venture to think, be claimed that the operations have been carried out with the minimum of dislocation to the trade.

25. If the operations are resumed at any time, which, I trust, will not prove necesary, a few changes in the scheme will be called for. It will, as I have already pointed out, be advisable to standardize a somewhat thicker cloth and to differentiate between mills of different grades of efficiency. It will also be necessary to make arrangements under which the cloth will be paid for more promptly than has been possible on this occasion. It is unnecessary to discuss a possibility which may not arise, and I need only point out that the organization which the provinces have now evolved for disposing of standard cloth will make it much more easy for the provincial authorities to meet the mills' invoices at once.

26. I have already expressed my obligations to various firms and gentlemen connected with them for the assistance given me in procuring standard cloth on a voluntary basis and ordinary cloth at favourable rates. The extent of these obligations will be evident from the figures given in the preceding paragraphs. As will be seen, those members of my Advisory Committee, who were connected with mills, have been especially helpful in this respect. For this and for the advice and assistance in other ways which were at all times freely given by them, I would express my grateful thanks.

To the firm of Messrs. N. N. Wadia and Sons, the Managing Agents of the Bombay Dyeing and Manufacturing Company, I am under special obligations. Not only did they supply me with a very large quantity of standard cloth on a voluntary basis and of other cloth at favourable rates, but they were good enough at the outset to furnish samples of all the cloth which it was proposed to standardize to all provinces without charge. The value of these samples amounted to at least Rs. 1,500. All the samples of cloth received from the various mills were tested either at the Textile or Spring Mills, a task which entailed much time and trouble. They also permitted Mr. F. Stones, the Manager of their mills, to serve on my Advisory Committee. It is impossible for me to express in sufficiently warm terms my appreciation of the help given me by Mr. Stones throughout. The value of his expert knowledge to me in working out all the details of the scheme was inestimable, and it is largely due to it that an organization was evolved which worked with so little friction and could at any time have been expanded to meet a very much greater demand. I venture to bring his services to the special notice of the Government of India.

Five bales of cloth sent off by the Sassoon Spinning and Weaving Mills to a destination in the Central Provinces were destroyed by fire en route. The cloth had been inadvertently sent off at owner's risk instead of at railway risk. The Great Indian Peninsula Railway authorities were good enough to allow

Rs. 948 compensation although no responsibility rested with them. The Sassoon Spinning and Weaving Company generously replaced the bales at their own expense less the amount received from the Railway Company as compensation and the small amount realized by the sale of the damaged bales. The Bombay Company were also good enough to replace a bale of cloth sent off by them before orders issued that all cloth should be sent off at "railway risk" and stolen in transit.

The bulk of the work of inspecting the cloth fell on Mr. J. D. F. Engel, my Assistant Controller. This difficult, and at times not alogether pleasant, duty involved incessant travelling all over India from February till August. Mr. Engel deserves great credit for the successful way in which he carried it out.

In order to ensure the prompt despatch of all cloth and the prompt payment of all money received, my office staff had for several months to work long hours and to do without holidays. Their work has been entirely satisfactory and Mr. F. de Ga, my Head Clerk, in particular, has been of the greatest assistance to me.

27. All the accounts for standard cloth have been finally adjusted with the exception of those for A.-12 cloth either in process of manufacture or to be manufactured for the Punjab. I have arranged that the Director of Civil Supplies and the Registrar of Co-operative Societies should deal direct with the mills concerned in regard to this.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY.

MINERAL RESOURCES.

Delhi, the 28th January 1920.

APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO DEVISE MEANS FOR REDUCING LARGE AVOIDABLE WASTE OF COAL AT THE RANIGANJ AND JHARIA COALFIELDS.

RESOLUTION.

THE Government of India have for some time had under consideration the question of devising means for reducing the large avoidable waste of coal known to occur at the Raniganj and Jharia coalfields, and due mainly to deficient methods of extraction, resulting in the total loss of a large amount of coal, to inefficiency in the generation and use of power, and to extravagant methods of coke-making. After consultation with the Governments of Bengal and Bihar and Orissa, the Indian Mining Association and the Indian Mining Federation, the Government of India decided as a preliminary measure to engage the services of a recognised authority on modern methods of extraction with instructions to visit the coalfields and advise on the best means of securing greater economy in the production and consumption of coal, and to submit a report which might be placed before a Committee to be appointed in this country for consideration. For this purpose the Government of India secured the services of Mr. R. I. Treharne Rees, a partner in the well-known firm of Messrs. Forster Brown and Rees of London and Cardiff. Mr. Rees visited the Raniganj and Jharia fields and prepared a report which reached the Government of India in August last.

The principal recommendations of Mr. Treharne Rees relate to the appointment of an inspecting and controlling authority for the supervision of the terms of leases, more efficient methods of coal extraction, including rotation of working and hydraulic stowage, the improvement of the conditions of colliery labour, the more economic use of power and more general employment of electricity, the improvement of methods of coke-making, the introduction of coal mixing, the handling and despatch of coal, more extended employment of screening, and the possibilities of the manufacture of briquettes.

The Government of India have now appointed the following Committee to consider Mr. Rees' report :—

Chairman.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. Foley, I.C.S., Commissioner of the Chota Nagpur Division.

Members.

Raja Ban Bihari Kapoor Bahadur, C.S.I., Zamindar of Burdwan.

Mr. G. F. Adams, O.B.E., M.I.C.E., Chief Inspector of Mines in India.

Mr. R. G. M. Bathgate of Messrs. Jardine Skinner and Company.

Mr. R. W. Church, Mining Engineer to the Railway Board.

Mr. H. H. Hayden, C.S.I., D.Sc., F.R.S., Director, Geological Survey of India.

The Hon'ble Mr. J. H. Pattinson, nominated by the Indian Mining Association.

Mr. N. C. Sircar, nominated by the Indian Mining Federation.

Secretary.

Mr. L. B. Burrows, Deputy Collector, Bengal.

The terms of reference are:—

To consider the recommendations, relating to the Raniganj and Jharia coalfields, made in Mr. Treharne Rees' report, to report the action which it is possible and expedient to take in connection therewith, and if legislation is involved, to consider the lines on which such legislation should be framed.

ORDERED that a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to the Governments of Bengal and Bihar and Orissa, the Chairman, Members and Secretary of the Committee, the Indian Mining Association, the Indian Mining Federation and the Railway Board.

Ordered also that the Resolution be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India for general information.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY.

CIVIL AVIATION.

Delhi, the 29th January 1920.

GRANT OF CERTAIN POWERS TO SECRETARY, AIR BOARD, COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY DEPARTMENT.

RESOLUTION.

In connexion with the promulgation of the Indian Aircraft Rules, 1920, published with the Notification of the Government of India in the Department of Commerce and Industry, No. 66-C. A , dated the 31st January 1920, His Excellency the Governor-General in Council is pleased to announce that the Secretary, Air Board, Commerce and Industry Department, Government of India, has been empowered—

(1) to grant certificates of approval under rule (2) (1) in respect of aerodromes other than Government or Royal Air Force aerodromes;

(2) to grant exemptions, under the proviso to rule 5, from the rules as to licensing of personnel, to personnel under instruction or to give orders for the grant of such exemptions;

(3) to appoint approved aerodromes for the use of passenger and goods aircraft under rule 12 (2);

(4) to approve persons for the periodical inspection and overhaul of passenger aircraft and engines and for the examination before each flight of such aircraft and engines under rules 29 (1) and 31 (2).

The Secretary, Air Board, will exercise these powers as follows:—

I. Certificates of Approval of Aerodromes.

(1) There will be three classes of aerodromes other than Royal Air Force aerodromes and Civil aerodromes under the control of the Governor-General in Council, viz.:—

Class A.—Private aerodromes.

Class B.—Tuition aerodromes.

Class C.—Passenger and goods aerodromes.

(2) Applications for certificates should be made to the Secretary, Air Board.

(3) Certificates will not ordinarily be granted unless the proprietor of the aerodrome is a British subject.

(4) Application forms will be supplied on demand.

(5) Class A.—Private aerodromes.—A certificate of approval in Class A for a private aerodrome may be granted to the proprietor of a suitable area in respect of such area if such proprietor shall agree to the following conditions:—

(1) To produce his certificate of approval and allow entry and access to the aerodrome at any time to any person authorised to demand the production of licenses or certificates under the Indian Aircraft Rules, 1920 rule 14), and to any officer of Customs;

(2) To charge dues for landing and accommodation of aircraft which shall not exceed the dues specified in paragraph II below.

(3) To keep exhibited a tariff of such charges;

(4) To keep prominently on the aerodrome by day, viz., between sunrise and sunset, a suitable wind indicator, viz., tubular streamer at least 10 feet long and 2 feet in diameter or Tee at least 15 feet long and 15 feet wide;

(5) To keep, as in rule 50, a circuit flag of blue or red colour at least 10 feet long and 5 feet wide;

(6) To observe and cause to be observed the general rules for aircraft using aerodromes as given in Indian Aircraft Rules, 1920, rule 50;

(7) To cause suitable markings to be placed upon all obstacles dangerous to flying within the aerodrome;

(8) When specially requested by any person mentioned in Indian Aircraft Rules, 1920, rule 14, or by the proprietor of any aerodrome, to make on the aerodrome the circuit light and also the minimum night landing signals as given in Indian Aircraft Rules, 1920, rule 50 (10) (b). The payment for this service, to be made by the person requesting it, is to be ten rupees for each night.

(9) To make the report required from the proprietor of an aerodrome by Indian Aircraft Rules, 1920, rule 61;

(10) To make and keep on the aerodrome suitable ground marks as directed by the Secretary, Air Board;

(11) To make no claim whatever in the event of the cancellation of the certificate of approval.

(6) Class B.—Tuition aerodromes.—A certificate of approval in Class B for a tuition aerodrome may be granted if the proprietor shall agree to the above conditions as for a private aerodrome and also to the following conditions:—

(12) To give no written permission of exemption from the requirements of Indian Aircraft Rules, 1920, rule 5, as to licensing except to a person actually under the tuition of such proprietor at the time the written permission of exemption is granted. Such written permission shall specify the name of person under tuition to whom exemption is granted and shall be valid for one day only and shall specify the date of the day for which exemption is granted;

(13) To give no written permission of exemption as above to any person under his tuition who is not in possession of the certificate of nationality and suitability required to be sent with such person's application for license as a pilot;

(14) To send to the Secretary, Air Board, by registered letter, notification of each such exemption granted by him giving a copy of such permit of exemption and certificate of nationality and suitability;

When applying for a certificate of approval of a tuition aerodrome the proprietor thereof must furnish to the Secretary, Air Board, documentary proof:

(1) of his nationality and suitability signed by a District Magistrate;

(2) that he is by character and experience a person to whom the power of granting exemptions should be delegated.

(7) Class C.—Passenger and goods aerodromes.—A certificate of appointment for the use of passenger aircraft may be granted to the proprietor of any approved aerodrome in class A or B in respect of such aerodrome if the proprietor shall agree to the above conditions Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 9, 10 and 11 as for a private aerodrome and also to the following conditions:—

(11) To make and keep each night on the aerodrome between sunset and sunrise the circuit light and also the minimum night landing signals as given in Indian Aircraft Rules, Schedule VII, rule 39 (b), and when specially requested by any person mentioned in Indian Aircraft rules, 1920, rule 14, or by the proprietor of any aerodrome, to make on the aerodrome the night landing signals given in paragraph (a) of the aforesaid rule;

(12) To cause suitable markings to be placed upon obstacles dangerous to flying within 300 yards of the boundary of the aerodrome

II.—CHARGES AT APPROVED AERODROMES

The dues to be charged at any approved aerodrome are not to exceed the following:—

A.—Accommodation for flying machines.

	8 hours or less.			Up to 24 hours.
	Rs.	A.	P.	Rs.	A.	P.
Small Type, less than 900 square feet floor space	3	0	0	5	0	0
Medium Type, and exceeding 1,800 square feet floor space.	5	0	0	10	0	0
Larger Type, over 1,800 square feet floor space	20	0	0	20	0	0

Floor space is to be taken as the product of span and overall length. With folder flying machines the span (if folded) to be taken as the overall breadth when folded.

The charges for accommodation are to be made only when shed accommodation is provided.

B.—Landing fees for flying machines.

	FOR A SINGLE LANDING
	Without attendance.			With attendance.
	Rs.	A.	P.	Rs	A.	P.

Attendance will include ordinary attendance, e.g., guiding machines, starting propellers, refuelling, etc.

No extra landing fee will be charged in respect of three test flights not lasting more than thirty minutes in all, before departure.

Landing fees include the right to remain on the aerodrome for four hours without extra fee.

C.—Dues for the accommodation and landing of air-ships may be fixed by agreement.

III.—PERSONS APPROVED TO UNDERTAKE PERIODICAL INSPECTION AND OVERHAUL AND EXAMINATION BEFORE EACH FLIGHT OF AIRCRAFT.

1. With reference to Indian Aircraft Rules, 1920, Rules 29 and 31, the following is the procedure for any person desirous of being certified as an approved person, hereinafter referred to as "ground engineer," to undertake the periodical inspection and overhaul of aircraft and engines required to be certified as airworthy, or as an approved person to examine such aircraft and engines before each flight.

2. Applications for certificates should be made to the Secretary, Air Board.

3. Application forms will be supplied on demand.

4. Subsequent to the forwarding to the Secretary, Air Board, of an application form for a ground engineer's certificate, the candidate will be requested to report to a local representative of the Secretary, Air Board, for examination. At this examination the candidate will be required to submit proof—

(a) That he is not less than 21 years of age.

(b) That he has served as a mechanic or engineer on internal combustion engines, or on flying machine or airship construction or maintenance, or on joint engine and aircraft construction or maintenance

5. A candidate may apply to be certified as a ground engineer for the periodical inspection and overhaul of either flying machines, airships or engines and for their examination each day before flight; or may apply for a certificate limited to the inspection of any named type or types of flying machine, airship or engine.

6. Candidates will be required to submit proof of knowledge :—

(a) For Flying Machines:—The general principles of construction, rigging, trueing-up and adjustment of flying machines, a detailed knowledge of construction, adjustments, maintenance and final inspection of the flying machine's components and the capacity to supervise, or inspect running repairs, and the overhaul of specified types of flying machines.

(b) For Airships.—Aerostatics (Density of gases, Laws of Mariotte and Gay Lussac, Barometric pressure, Achimedes Principle, Confinement of gases), physical and chemical properties of gases, General theory of airships, Dynamic properties of moving bodies in air. The general principles of construction, rigging and adjustments of airships, physical and chemical properties of materials used in airships. A detailed knowledge of the construction, adjustments, maintenance and final inspection of airship components and the capacity to supervise or inspect repairs and the overhaul of specified types of airships.

(c) For Engines.—The general principles of internal combustion engine applied to aircraft, including the general principles of ignition carburation, lubrication and cooling. The inspection, testing and adjustments necessary for the installation and functioning of the complete power unit in the aircraft and the capacity to supervise or inspect running repairs and overhaul of particular engines.

7. The examination may be in part written and in part oral. Candidates may be required to give practical proof of knowledge and skill.

8. Ground engineers, certifying flying machines, airships or engines as airworthy after overhaul, must be in a position to certify that all the conditions required for the inspection of subsequent aircraft during construction that apply to the overhaul have been carried out.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of the above Resolution be forwarded to all Local Governments and Administrations, the Home, Foreign and Political and Army Departments of the Government of India, the Private Secretary to His Excellency the Viceroy and the Secretary, Air Board, for information.

Ordered, also, that the Resolution be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 29th January 1920, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. The western disturbance, which passed into the extreme north of India about the end of the previous week, gave between the 22nd and 25th widespread rain or snow in Kashmir and the North-West Frontier Province, and local rain or snow in the north Punjab, with a few falls in northeast Baluchistan. Another disturbance from the west crossed the northwest frontier on the 27th and caused local falls of snow in Kashmir on the 28th. Conditions were unsettled in the Bay between the 22nd and 27th, and during this period rain fell almost daily in the Andamans and at a few stations on the east Madras coast. There was also widespread rain in Upper Burma, with local or isolated falls in Assam, Mysore, south Hyderabad and Malabar towards the end of the week.

2. Burma.—In Upper Burma rainfall was local on the 27th and occurred at a few stations on one other day.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Local rain fell in east Assam on the 27th; over the rest of the division there was no rain.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—Weather was dry except for a moderate fall of rain at Jagdalpur.

Northwest India.—In Kashmir snowfall was nearly general on the 22nd and 23rd, and occurred locally or at a few stations on three other days. In the North-West Frontier Province rain or snow was nearly general on the 23rd and local on two other days. There were a few falls of rain in Baluchistan on the 23rd and in the east and north Punjab on the 24th and 25th. In Gujarat, Sind and Rajputana the week was rainless.

The Peninsula.—Local rain fell on the north Madras coast on the 23rd and 26th, and there were individual falls there on two other days. Over the rest of the division Raichur, Chitaldrug, Calicut, Madras and Ootacamund were the only stations that reported rain during the week.

3. The chief amounts of rainfall reported were as follows :—

January 22nd. Murree 0·20", Srinagar 0·61", Sonamarg 1·70", Dras 0·80", Parachinar 0·22" and Nellore 0·63".

„ 23rd. Murree 0·24", Srinagar 0·27", Sonamarg 2·16", Dras 0·95", Skardu 0·22", Gilgit 0·20," Peshawar 1·03", Parachinar 0·45", Cherat 1·29", Drosh 0·75", and Fort Sandeman 0·40".

„ 24th. Port Blair 2·53", Rawalpindi 0·80", Murree 0·34", Srinagar 0·70", Peshawar 0·90", Cherat 0·85", Parachinar 0·35", Madras 0·48" and Nellore 0·37".

„ 25th. Jagdalpur 0·36" and Rawalpindi 0·30".

„ 26th Bhamo 0·20", Raichur 0·28", Chitaldrug 0·39", Masulipatam 0·80" and Calingapatam 0·24".

„ 27th. Port Blair 1·00", Yamethin 0·85", Mandalay 0·39", Lashio 0·42", Sibsagar 0·55" and Calicut 1·07".

4. The week's rainfall was 20 per cent or more in excess in the Bay Islands, Upper Burma, Kashmir, the North-West Frontier Province, Hyderabad South, Mysore, Malabar and the Madras Coast North; and was 20 per cent or more in defect in Lower Burma, Assam, Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, the United Provinces, the Punjab, Baluchistan, Sind, Rajputana, Central India East, the Central Provinces West and Madras Southeast. It was normal in the Central Provinces East. No rain usually falls at this time of year in Gujarat, Central India West, Berar, the Konkan, the Bombay Deccan, Hyderabad North and the Madras Deccan.

The rainfall from the 28th November to date is 20 per cent or more in defect in Assam, Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, the United Provinces, Sind, Rajputana West, Central India East and the Central Provinces East; and is 20 per cent or more in excess in the Bay Islands, Burma, the Punjab Southwest, the North-West Frontier Province, Rajputana East, Gujarat, Central India West, Berar, the Central Provinces West, the Konkan, the Bombay Deccan, Hyderabad, Mysore and the Madras Presidency. It differs from the normal by less than 20 per cent in the remaining divisions.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 24th January 1920.

Burma.—The week was rainless. Harvesting of winter rice has been completed in most districts. Threshing and winnowing are progressing normally in Upper Burma. Cultivation of island crops and transplanting of spring rice are proceeding. Reaping of miscellaneous winter crops and late sesamum continues. Island crops are promising. Cattle are generally healthy. In the Amherst district the number of persons on relief works has fallen to 2,450 and the number of persons receiving gratuitous relief was dropped to 13. The price of unhusked rice in Rangoon remains stationary at Rs. 179 which is much above normal and Re. 1 below the control price. The market for white rice is steady at Rs. 447 per hundred baskets for specials.

Assam.—During the week the weather was seasonable and favourable. Harvesting of winter rice and plucking of cotton have been practically finished. Pressing of sugarcane, harvesting of mustard and pulses, pruning of tea, transplanting of spring rice in Sylhet, ploughing for autumn rice and jute, preparation of lands for jhuming are in progress. The outturn of winter rice, pulses and mustard is fair to good and that of sugarcane and cotton is good. Prospects of standing crops are fair. Cattle disease is reported from three districts. The price of common rice is practically stationary.

Bengal.—The week was rainless. Transplanting of summer paddy, harvesting of sugarcane, potatoes and early oil-seeds are proceeding. Preparation for tillage of jute and autumn paddy continues in Eastern Bengal. Prospects of standing crops are fair to good. The average price of common rice has risen by 2·2 per cent. compared with that of the preceding week.

Bihar and Orissa.—There was no rain during the week. Threshing of paddy and pressing of sugarcane continue. Standing crops are, on the whole, doing well. More rain is wanted in parts of Tirhut, Bhagalpur, the Santal Parganas and Palamau. The price of common rice has risen in two districts, fallen in eight and remained stationary in the remaining districts. The average price of local common rice at headquarters was 6·43 seers a rupee against 6·31 seers in the preceding week and that of maize was 7·26 seers against 7·32 seers in the preceding week. Cattle disease is reported from seven districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa and Chota Nagpur is good.

United Provinces.—During the week no rain fell. Preparation of lands for sugarcane and extra crops and sowings of extra crops are going on. Irrigation of spring crops and poppy and pressing of sugarcane continue. Standing crops are doing well. Prospects are favourable. The condition of agricultural stock is satisfactory. Fodder, water and market supplies are sufficient. Prices are generally stationary.

Punjab.—During the week light rain fell in nearly all the reporting districts except in parts of the southeast and west. It was useful for standing crops but more rain is wanted in some districts. The condition of irrigated wheat and other spring crops is generally good and of unirrigated crops average. Toria is being harvested with yield normal. Pressing of sugarcane is in progress. The yield was generally normal to good. Cattle are healthy and fodder and water are generally sufficient. Prices are generally stationary, and above scarcity rates. Prices of wheat:—Rawalpindi 5¾, Ferozepore 6⅛, Ambala 6¼, Lyallpur 6½, and Lahore 6¾ seers per rupee.

North-West Frontier Province.—During the week good rain fell throughout the province. Harvesting of sugarcane is in progress with outturn average. The condition of standing crops is average. The price of wheat in Peshawar was $7\frac{3}{16}$ and in Dera Ismail Khan 6¼ seers per rupee.

Jammu.—During the week slight rain fell. There was no marked fall in prices. Fodder is sufficient.

Kashmir.—The week was cloudy and cold. Fodder is sufficient. Prices are fluctuating.

Rajputana.—During the week the weather was cool and clear. Crops are being irrigated and are in good condition. Prospects are good. Fodder and water are ample. The condition of agricultural stock is good except in two districts of Kotah. Prices are generally stationary.

Central India.—The rainfall during the week was partial in Gwalior, Jobat and Barwani. Rain is required in Bundelkhand Harvesting of autumn crops continues in Indore, Malwa and the Southern States and has been completed in Bundelkhand and Baghelkhand. Pressing of sugarcane continues in Gwalior. Standing crops with their probable outturn are fair to good but are uncertain in Bundelkhand. Agricultural stock is generally good except for cattle disease in Indore, Baghelkhand and the Southern States. Prices are high. Opium is being weeded in Gwalior, Indore and Dhar.

Central Provinces.—During the week the weather continues to be cool with occasional clouds. Threshing and winnowing of autumn crops and picking of cotton are nearing completion. Spring crops are in excellent condition and prospects are favourable. Agricultural stock is generally good. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient. Prices of food-grains remained fairly steady.

Feudatory States:—Spring crops are in good condition.

Bombay.—Rain fell during the week in parts of the Deccan and the Southern Maratha Country States. Juari crops have been slightly damaged by insects in parts of Sholapur and spring crops in parts of Bijapur and they are also withering in parts of Poona. Harvesting of autumn crops continues. Cotton picking continues in parts of Hyderabad, Nawabshah, Ahmedabad, the Panch Mahals and Broach. The supply of fodder and water is generally adequate. Agricultural stock is generally sufficient. Cattle are in good condition. Prices of food-grains have risen slightly in two districts, fallen in one and are generally steady elsewhere.

Hyderabad.—During the week scattered falls were received over the dominions. The chief amounts recorded were 1·85 inches in Asthi, 1·46 in Hingoli. The average fall in the dominions was 0·26 inches. Picking of autumn cotton continues only in parts of the Aurangabad district. Spring crops are in fair to good condition. Damage is reported from the Gulbarga, Mahbubnagar, Nalgonda and Warangal districts. Spring harvest has been commenced in parts of the Nalgonda, Warangal and Adilabad districts. Late rice crop is fair to good. Sowings are nearing completion. Fodder and water supply are sufficient. Cattle disease is reported in the Mahbubnagar, Nalgonda, Warangal, Karimnagar and Adilabad districts. Prices of grains continue to be high. Juar is selling at 4 seers per rupee in the Adilabad and Mahbubnagar districts.

The weekly report on famine is as follows:—There was no marked improvement in the situation. Distress is acute in some places. The number of persons on relief works is almost stationary. Prices of grains show an upward tendency. Juar is selling at 6½ and rice at 3¾ seers per rupee. Numbers relieved in thousands:—works 6 and gratuitous relief 2.

Mysore.—The week was rainless. Standing crops are in good condition. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available. Prices of food-grains are high but falling in parts. Prospects of the season are good. Harvesting of rice, ragi and sugarcane is proceeding with outturn fair to good.

Coorg.—During the week the weather was cloudy. Harvesting of paddy and picking of coffee continue. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder for cattle are available. The public health is fair. Prices of food-grains are high. Large exports to Malabar of paddy are probable.

Madras.—The week was generally rainless. Standing crops are in fair condition generally. The outturn of harvested paddy and dry crops is generally fair. Fresh sowings of paddy and dry crops are progressing. The condition of cattle is generally good. Water is generally sufficient. Pasture and fodder are sufficient generally. Prices are generally steady. Prospects are fair generally.

PAPER CURRENCY.

Delhi, the 2nd February 1920.

No. 369-F.—The following announcement by the Secretary of State regarding the recommendations of the Indian Currency Committee, is published for general information :—

" The Secretary of State for India has considered in consultation with the Government of India the majority and minority reports received from the Committee appointed by him under the Chairmanship of Sir Henry Babington Smith to advise on the subject of Indian exchange and currency. The majority report, which is signed by the Chairman and all members of Committee except Mr. D. M. Dalal, states as its object the restoration of a stable and automatic system and the maintenance of the convertibility of the note issue.

2. The fundamental recommendations of report are as follows :—

(a) that the present rupee, unchanged in weight and fineness, should remain unlimited legal tender ;

(b) that the rupee should have a fixed exchanged value and that this exchange value should be expressed in terms of gold at the rate of one rupee for 11·30016 grains of fine gold, that is, one-tenth of the gold contents of the sovereign ;

(c) that the sovereign which is now rated by law at rupees 15 should be made legal tender in India at the revised ratio of rupees ten to one sovereign ;

(d) that the import and export of gold to and from India should be free from Government control as soon as the change in the statutory ratio has been effected, and that the gold mint at Bombay should be open for the coinage into sovereigns of gold tendered by public ;

(e) that the notification of Government undertaking to give rupees for sovereigns should be withdrawn ;

(f) that the prohibition on the private import and export of silver should be removed in due course and that the import duty on silver should be repealed unless the fiscal position demands its retention.

3. These recommendations develop with the necessary modifications required by altered circumstances the principles on which the Indian currency system was established before the war, and are accepted by the Secretary of State in Council as expressing the goal towards which Indian administration, following the previous policy, should now be directed.

4. Under the conditions existing prior to the war sterling and gold were identical standards. The existing disparity has made a choice between these standards necessary, and the Committee's recommendation is in favour of placing the rupee on a gold basis.

5. In recommending a rate, namely that above mentioned, for the exchange value of the rupee the Chairman and majority have taken account of the high range of silver prices and of the importance of safeguarding the convertibility of the Indian note issue by providing so far as possible that the token character of the rupee shall be restored and maintained, i.e., that the Indian Government may be in a position to buy silver for coinage into rupees without loss. They were also impressed by the serious economic and political risks attendant on a further expansion of Indian prices such as must be anticipated from the adoption of a low rate.

6. The arguments advanced in favour of a gold basis and of a high rate of exchange appear to the Secretary of State in Council to be conclusive, and he has decided to take the necessary steps to give immediate effect to the recommendations on these points. Accordingly, the Government of India have to-day announced that the rate which they will pay for gold tendered to them under the Gold Import Act by private importers will henceforth be fixed at one rupee for 11·30016 grains of fine gold, i.e., Rs. 10 for the gold contents of the sovereign. The consequential changes in the regulations relating to the sale of Council drafts by the Secretary of State in Council and of reverse drafts by the Government of India will be notified separately.

7. The question of the internal ratio presents special difficulties. The Committee recommend the maintenance of gold on a legal tender footing especially in view of possible difficulties in obtaining adequate supplies of silver. A fixed ratio must, therefore, be established between the rupee and gold, as used in the internal circulation, either one sovereign for R15 as at present or one sovereign for R10 in correspondence with new exchange ratio. The former alternative would give the sovereign the status of an over-valued token coin, necessitating permanent control over the import of sovereigns and making an open gold mint impossible. The Secretary of State in Council agrees with the Committee that such conditions ought not to be contemplated as a permanent arrangement. On the other hand, the lower ratio cannot be effectively introduced while a great disparity continues to exist between the commercial price of gold in India and the intended Indian mint par of one sovereign for R10.

8. Present conditions are a product of the war and in some sense artificial. They cannot be immediately remedied without the risk of shock to the economic and monetary system in India, and of reaction elsewhere to which India cannot in her own interests be indifferent: a gradual process of rectification and of adjustment to new conditions is required. For some time past action has been taken in India to reduce the premium on gold by regular Government sales of bullion to the public, and this measure will be further developed. It may be expected that in that way a natural adjustment may be effected until the path to legislation is cleared.

9. The Secretary of State has decided, therefore, first, that the import of gold shall continue for the present to be controlled by license under the Gold Import Act, with a fixed acquisition rate as mentioned above; second, that meanwhile, periodical sales of gold bullion to the public shall continue; and third, that as a provisional measure during the transition period sovereigns shall remain legal tender at the present ratio of R15.

10. In arriving at these decisions the Secretary of State in Council has not failed to give careful consideration to the minority report signed by Mr. D. M. Dalal. Mr. Dalal's main object is the effective restoration and maintenance of the ratio of 15 rupees to a sovereign as a measure both of exchange and of the circulating value of the rupee. In order to secure this he relies upon freedom for the melting and export of rupees and correspondingly to freedom for the import of gold. To meet the possible result in shortage of silver coins he recommends that as long as the New York price of silver remains above 92 cents Government should coin two rupee silver coins of reduced fineness, the coinage of rupees of the present weight and fineness being meanwhile suspended, and only resumed when the price of silver falls to the figure named. He also recommends that sterling drafts on the Secretary of State should be sold only at 1s. 3 $\frac{29}{32}$d.

11. The Secretary of State in Council is satisfied that this programme could not be adopted without untoward consequences. The heavy exports of silver coin to be anticipated under the scheme must threaten not only the whole silver circulation but also the Government reserves of silver coin, and entail the gravest risk of inconvertibility of the Government note issue. The demand for the gold required continually to make this deficiency good must greatly aggravate any strain there may be on the gold stock of world when the freedom of import is restored. Nor is it safe to assume that these difficulties could be met by issuing new silver coins of inferior fineness; the evidence against the acceptability of an inferior substitute for the present rupee has impressed the majority, and their recommendation on this head is accepted by the Secretary of State as decisive. Mr. Dalal's recommendation in regard to the rate for sterling drafts, if adopted, must produce an immediate crash in exchange bringing unmerited disaster to those who have reasonably relied on some continuity of policy. The only cover which his scheme affords is the export of the country's circulating currency. In any case, even if a return to the pre-war level of exchange could be accomplished without a shock to trade or risk to the Currency system, it would lay India open to a further serious inflation of prices, while the majority's recommendation would tend towards a reduction of general price levels in India.

12. Both during and since the war Indian currency and exchange have presented problems previously unanticipated and more perplexing than any encountered since the decision to close the mints in 1893. But the Secretary of State in Council is satisfied that decisions reached promise an eventual solution, and he desires to express his acknowledgments to the Committee and their Chairman for the ability and thoroughness with which they have explored the issues and have framed their recommendations."

MINT

The 2nd February 1920.

No. 324-F.—In pursuance of sub-section 2 of section 3 of the Gold (Import) Act, 1917, the Governor General in Council is pleased to prescribe the following rates at which payment shall be made for gold taken possession of under the provisions of the said Act :—

Class of gold.	Rate.
(1) Gold coins coined at His Majesty's Royal Mint in England or at any mint established in pursuance of a Proclamation of His Majesty as a branch of His Majesty's Royal Mint. Provided that such coins have not been called in by any Proclamation made in pursuance of the Coinage Act, 1870, or have not lost weight so as to be of less weight than that for the time being prescribed for like coins by or under the said statute as the least current weight.	Rs. 10 per sovereign.
(2) All other gold not included in entry No. 1 . . .	Re. 1 for every 11·30016 grains troy of fine gold.

2. The notification by the Government of India in the Finance Department, No. 3157-F., dated the 12th December 1919, is hereby cancelled.

Note.—Gold shipped to India on a through bill of lading before the 2nd February 1920 will be paid for at the rates hitherto in force.

No. 370-F.—The Governor General in Council notifies for public information that the notifications of the Government of India in the Finance Department No. 4071, dated the 11th September 1897, regarding the issue of rupees at the Reserve Treasuries in Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, in exchange for sovereigns and half sovereigns, and No. 6908-A., dated the 11th October 1906, regarding the receipt of sovereigns and half sovereigns at the Calcutta and Bombay Mints, are hereby cancelled.

No. 371-F.—In pursuance of section 2 of the Defence of India (Criminal Law Amendment) Act, 1915 (IV of 1915), the Governor General in Council is pleased to cancel rules 21-A and 21-C of the Defence of India (Consolidation) Rules, 1915, as subsequently amended.

No. 372-F.—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 3 of the Import and Export of Goods Act, 1916 (XI of 1916), the Governor General in Council is pleased to cancel the notification of the Government of India in the Finance Department, No. 1571-F., dated the 11th July 1917, prohibiting the import of silver coin and silver bullion.

BOOKS.

The 3rd February 1920.

No. 20.—The following order of His Majesty in Council for giving effect to ratification by Sweden of the revised Berne Copyright Convention of 1908, published in the London Gazette of the 25th November 1919, is republished for general information :—

AT THE COURT AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

The 25th day of November 1919.

PRESENT:

THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

Archbishop of Canterbury. Sir Frederick Ponsonby.
Lord President. Lord Justice Younger.
Lord Steward. Sir J. Tudor Walters.
Sir Charles Eliot.

Whereas His Majesty, by virtue of the authority conferred on Him by the Copyright Act, 1911, and having regard to the provisions of the revised Berne Copyright Convention of 1908, was pleased to make an Order in Council, dated the 24th day of June, 1912 (hereinafter called the Principal Order) extending the protection of the said Act to certain classes of works to which protection is guaranteed by the said Convention :

And whereas the Kingdom of Sweden has ratified the said Convention subject to the reservation mentioned in the Schedule attached to this Order:

Now, therefore, His Majesty, by and with the advice of His Privy Council, and by virtue of the authority conferred upon Him by the Copyright Act, 1911, is pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows :—

(1) The provisions of Article (2), Proviso (i), Article (2), Proviso (iii) (c), Article (2), Proviso (iii) (d), and Article (2), Proviso (iii) (e) of the Principal Order are hereby revoked so far as they relate to works of which the country of origin is Sweden, and the authors of all such works shall enjoy the same rights as if the said provisions had never related thereto.

(2) In the application of the provisions of Article (3) of the Principal Order to works of which the country of origin is Sweden, the commencement of this Order shall be substituted for the commencement of the Act and for the commencement of the Principal Order.

(3) In the application to works of which the country of origin is Sweden of Sections 1 (2) (d) and 19 of the Copyright Act, 1911, the commencement of this Order shall be substituted for the commencement of the Act and for the passing of the Act in Sections 19 (7) and 19 (8) wherever those expressions occur.

(4) Where any person has, before the commencement of this Order, taken any action whereby he has incurred any expenditure or liability in connection with the reproduction or performance of any work in a manner which at the time was lawful, or for the purpose of or with a view to the reproduction or performance of a work at a time when such reproduction or performance would, but for the making of this Order, have been lawful, nothing in this Order shall diminish or prejudice any rights or interest arising from, or in connection with, such action which are subsisting or valuable at the said date unless the person who, by virtue of this Order, becomes entitled to restrain such reproduction or performance agrees to pay such compensation as failing agreement, may be determined in accordance with the provisions of the Copyright Act, 1911.

(5) This Order shall come into operation on the 1st day of January, 1920, which date is in this Order referred to as the commencement of the Order.

And the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury are to give the necessary orders accordingly.

Almeric FitzRoy.

RESOLUTION.

On the departure from India of the Units of the Territorial Force which have garrisoned the country during the past five years, the Governor-General in Council desires to place on record his high appreciation of the services which these Units have rendered to the Empire since the commencement of the Great War.

Previous to the outbreak of hostilities in 1914, many of the officers, non-commissioned officers and soldiers of these Units had, by joining the Territorial Force, given proof of that patriotism and public spirit which has earned for its members the gratitude and esteem of their fellow countrymen.

On the declaration of war, the ranks of the Force were quickly filled by eager volunteers. When called upon to undertake the further obligation of service overseas, the response of all ranks was immediate and unanimous, thereby setting free for service in the main theatres of war a large number of Regular Units whose presence in Europe was urgently required.

The Governor-General sympathises in the disappointment of the officers, non-commissioned officers and soldiers of those Units of the Territorial Force whose lot it has been to serve in India during the war and who have thus been denied the opportunity of meeting the enemy on the battlefields of Europe. He is glad, however, that many of these Units have earned distinction in other fields, some in Mesopotamia, Egypt and Palestine, others at Aden and on the North-West Frontier, while others again, less fortunate, have, in the faithful performance of garrison duties, rendered no less valuable service to the Empire by the maintenance of internal security, thereby enabling India to devote her resources to the successful prosecution of the war.

In carrying out these various duties, all ranks have displayed soldierly qualities of the highest order and, by their efficiency, discipline and exemplary conduct, have won the respect and gratitude not only of their comrades of the Regular Army, both British and Indian, but of the people of India as a whole.

After the signing of the armistice in 1918 and the cessation of hostilities on the principal fronts, all ranks of the Territorial Force serving overseas looked forward to their early repatriation and release from military service. Owing to the uncertainty of the situation and the difficulty of providing reliefs, due to the reorganisation of the Regular Army and reversion to a voluntary system of recruitment, the progress of demobilisation was unavoidably delayed. These delays were prolonged in consequence of the shortage of shipping and the unexpected situation created in the spring of 1919 by the sudden incursion of Afghan troops into British Territory, concurrently with the outbreak of internal disturbances, which, for the moment, made it impossible to reduce the strength of the British troops in India.

The patience with which these disappointments were borne was highly creditable to all concerned and showed how readily they appreciated the difficulties with which the Government of India were faced.

The Governor-General in Council desires to express to all ranks of the (here enter name of unit) the thanks of the Government of India for their patriotic services, which will long be remembered and will serve as a noble and enduring example of good citizenship to future generations.

ORDER.

Ordered that a copy of the foregoing Resolution be communicated to every Unit of the Territorial Force which served in India during the period of the Great War, 1914-19. Ordered also, that the Resolution be published in the Gazette of India.

PART V.

Bills introduced in the Indian Legislative Council, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council and Bills published under Rule 23.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Indian Legislative Council on Wednesday, the 4th February, 1920:—

No. 4 of 1920.

A Bill to amend the Inland Steam-vessels Act, 1917.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Inland Steam-vessels Act, 1917; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Inland Steam-vessels (Amendment) Act, 1920.

Insertion of new section 22-A in Act I of 1917.

2. After section 22 of the Inland Steam-vessels Act, 1917 (hereinafter referred to as the said Act), the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

Licenses.

"22-A. (1) The Local Government may also, in its discretion, grant—

(a) to a person who is in possession of a second-class master's certificate granted under section 21 or section 22, and has, by virtue of such certificate, acted as master of an inland steam-vessel having engines of forty or more nominal horse-power for a period of not less than five years, or

(b) to a person who is in possession of a first-class engine-driver's certificate granted under section 21 or section 22, or an engine-driver's certificate granted under the Indian Steam-ships Act, 1884, and has, by virtue of such certificate, served as an engine-driver of an inland steam-vessel having engines of not less than seventy nominal horse-power for five years, for not less than two and a half years of which period he has been the engine-driver of such vessel within the meaning of section 26, a licence authorising such person to act as master or engineer, as the case may be, of any inland steam-vessel having engines of one hundred and seventy nominal horse-power or of such less nominal horse-power as to such Government may deem fit.

(2) Any such licence shall remain in force only for such time as the person holding the same is in possession of and entitled to a master's or an engine-driver's certificate, as the case may be, of the nature referred to in sub-section (1):

Provided that the Local Government may, in its discretion, suspend, cancel or vary the conditions of any such licence."

Amendment of section 23, Act I of 1917.

3. In section 23 of the said Act, after the word "service" the words "and every licence" shall be inserted, and after the words "entitled to the certificate" the words "or licence" shall be inserted.

Amendment of section 24, Act I of 1917.

4. In section 24 of the said Act, after the word "certificate" in each place where it occurs the words "or licence" shall be inserted.

Amendment of section 25, Act I of 1917.

5. In section 25 of the said Act—

(1) for the word "eighty" the words "one hundred" shall be substituted.

(2) In clause (a), after the words and figures "Merchant Shipping Act, 1894", the following words shall be inserted, namely:—

"or a master's licence granted under section 22-A and applicable to such vessel and voyage."

(3) At the end of clause (b), the following words shall be added, namely:—

"or an engine-driver's licence granted under section 22-A and applicable to such vessel and voyage."

Amendment of section 26, Act I of 1917.

6. In section 26 of the said Act, for the word "thirty" the word "forty," and for the word "eighty" the words "one hundred," shall be substituted.

Amendment of section 27, Act I of 1917.

7. In section 27 of the said Act, for the word "thirty" the word "forty" shall be substituted.

Insertion of new section 30-A in Act I of 1917.

8. After section 30 of the said Act the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

Power for Local Government to make rules as to grant of licences.

"30-A. The Local Government may also make rules to regulate the granting of licences under section 22-A, and may by such rules prescribe in particular—

(a) the fees (if any) to be paid for such licences, and

(b) the forms in which such licences are to be framed and the authority by whom and the manner in which copies are to be kept and recorded under section 23."

Amendment of section 31, Act I of 1917.

9. (1) In section 31 of the said Act, after the word "service" where it first occurs the words "and licences" shall be inserted.

(2) In clause (ii) of the said section, after the word "serang" the words "and a licence" shall be inserted.

(3) In the provisos to the said section, after the word "certificate" in each place where it occurs, the words "or licence" shall be inserted.

Amendment of section 59, Act I of 1917.

10. (1) In clause (a) of section 59 of the said Act, after the words "engine driver's certificate" the words "or a master's or engine-driver's licence" shall be inserted.

(2) In clause (b) of the said section, after the words "such certificate" the words "or licence" shall be added.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Board of Trade have introduced a new formula for determining the nominal horse-power of marine engines. This formula expresses the power of such engines with more accuracy than the old formula, and the Government of India wish to make it applicable to inland steam-vessels in India. The general effect of the new formula, however, is to raise the nominal horse-power of existing vessels. It is consequently necessary to amend the figures of nominal horse-power given in sections 25, 26 and 27 of the Inland Steam-vessels Act, 1917 (I of 1917), as otherwise masters and engineers, who have held charge of these vessels for years and are fully competent to do so, would be precluded from doing so any longer. It is at the same time considered desirable to give Local Governments power to relax to some extent the stringency of the conditions laid down in the Act so as to enable persons holding second-class masters' certificates or first-class engine-drivers' certificates granted under the Inland Steam-vessels Act, or engine-drivers' certificates granted under the Indian Steam-ships Act, 1884 (VII of 1884), to be licensed, in certain circumstances, as masters or engineers of vessels having engines of a somewhat higher nominal horse-power than the existing law allows. The conditions under which such licences should be granted are stated in clause 2 of the Bill.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE INDIAN LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL ASSEMBLED UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT, 1915.
(5 & 6 Geo. V, Ch. 61.)

The Council met at the Council Chamber, Imperial Secretariat, Delhi, on Friday, the 30th January, 1920.

PRESENT:

His Excellency BARON CHELMSFORD, P.C., G.M.S.I., G.M.I.E., G.C.M.G., G.C.B.E., Viceroy and Governor General, presiding, and 58 Members, of whom 51 were Additional Members.

OATH OF OFFICE.

" Mr. Arthur Edward Nelson, O.B.E.

[The President.] [30TH JANUARY, 1920.]

HIS EXCELLENCY THE PRESIDENT'S OPENING SPEECH.

11-9 A.M. "Hon'ble Members will notice that the Flag and Shield, which I formally received a few minutes ago, have now been affixed to the walls of the Chamber.

"I am confident that they will always be treasured as honoured heirlooms embodying the history of heroic deeds.

"Let me now welcome Hon'ble Members to another Session. We have before us an immense amount of important work to do, but I am hopeful that it will be of an uncontroversial kind, though I recognise that there must necessarily be differences of opinion among Members in an assembly of this size and character.

"The outstanding fact which we have to record is the passing by Parliament of the Reforms legislation, and I am sure that Hon'ble Members would wish me to express our great indebtedness to the Secretary of State in this matter. We, who have been associated with Mr. Montagu in this policy, know how much we owe to his great ability, to his fertile resourcefulness and to the enthusiasm which he has displayed in this cause. Tribute has been paid to him in England for the tactical skill and the persuasiveness with which he has handled the Bill in Parliament. We can only know this through hearsay and not of our own knowledge. But from the fact that he has piloted his Bill through Parliament, we may not unfairly infer that that tribute was well founded. I think I shall be only echoing what is in the minds of Hon'ble Members when I congratulate him and tender him our thanks for the conspicuous service which he has rendered.

"But I do not wish to stop here. It would have been impossible for Mr. Montagu to have accomplished what he has if it had not been for the loyal and devoted manner in which the spade work of Reforms has been performed. I doubt whether many Hon'ble Members realise to the full what work is involved in the passage of a great Bill through Parliament, especially when the Bill has, as in this case, to run the gauntlet of examination and criticism in a Select Committee. I know what this work has been, and I am sure Hon'ble Members would wish me to express our gratitude to those who have worked so zealously, so loyally and so devotedly in this field. It is needless for me to say that there have been many others besides those whose names I propose to mention. In a work of this immensity the circles of labour radiate out far and wide. But there are three whose conspicuous labours I should like to mention. My colleagues in the Government will, I am sure, understand why my reference must necessarily be to those who are not members of the Government. The first name is that of Lord Meston, and I am sure you will wish me to congratulate him on the well-merited distinction which His Majesty has been pleased to confer upon him. Lord Meston has been in the thick of the Reforms from the very beginning and no one has done more, by masterly philosophical analysis of the problems, to elucidate and straighten out the difficult questions with which we were faced. As Lieutenant-Governor, as Member of Council carrying on his shoulders the double burden of Finance and Reforms, and now as the vir pietate gravis commissioned to carry out the thorny task of settling the Financial Relations between the Central and Provincial Governments he has earned and will earn our gratitude. I trust that he is not putting too great a strain on himself, and that when he has accomplished his present task, he will have many years during which he may help India, the land he has loved, from his seat in the House of Lords.

"My relations with Sir William Marris have been so intimate that I feel some difficulty in placing before you the character and extent of his service. Prior to Mr. Montagu's arrival I appointed him on special duty in connection with Reforms and ever since, whether on duty here or in England, he has brought to the cause his great intellectual powers, his unrivalled industry and his mastery of the pen. He is now working specially under me to perfect the machinery which is required to set the new constitution in motion. He will greatly dislike my mention of him, but his displeasure is a risk which I have no hesitation in taking.

"Constitutions may be projected in men's minds, may float in unsubstantial form as dreams, but at some time or other they must take shape in hard, clear cut legal form. To Mr. Muddiman we are indebted in large measure for the work which has been done in this respect. As one who in his time practised Parliamentary drafting, I know the difficulties and the thanklessness of the task. The draftsman is not his own master. He is not left to himself to turn out his work teres atque rotundus, completely finished and rounded off. He has to fit in amendments, perhaps thrown at him at the last moment, at variance and inconsistent with the main principles of his structure, and subsequently the critic will point the finger of scorn at lacunæ and inconsistencies. But I am confident that Mr. Muddiman has met these crosses with smiling imperturbability. I am sure Hon'ble Members will be in accord with me when I thank him for his work.

" Over the bodies of these three gentlemen there has been for the past two years a friendly tussle with the Secretary of State. We have each of us appraised their worth and have clung to their possession. It reminds me of some struggle depicted in Homer over the body of a dead hero. Now he, now I have had the mastery.

" But I cannot stop here. There is a vast multitude of public servants throughout India, whose services have been requisitioned in order that this thing might be accomplished. To them, the vast majority of them unknown to me, I would tender my thanks. The inquiries which have taken place have necessitated demands for information which meant hard, painstaking and accurate work. This has been given loyally and ungrudgingly. What happier augury could there be for the working of our great experiment! Indian ministers will find a running machine composed of human parts of finest temper and quality ready to their hand. The work which has been done is an earnest of what will yet be done. I am confident that nothing will be lacking in the loyalty and efficient working of the machine of Government.

" And now what of the work which lies ahead of us?

" We have still the best part of a year's strenuous labour before the new Councils can come into being. To deal with the press of work involved a new office has been created in the Government of India under a Reforms Commissioner working in direct relation with myself, assisted by a Secretary, Under Secretary and the necessary establishment; and all Local Governments have similarly placed officers on special duty to deal with local problems. We have discussed in conference with Heads of Provinces all preliminary points which presented any obstacles to immediate progress. It is our aim to take public opinion freely into our confidence, and I will take this opportunity of stating our intentions upon points of wider interest. We contemplate a lowering of the franchise in Madras and the Punjab which will result (so far as our rough estimates indicate) in an increase of something over six hundred thousand voters in the two provinces taken together. We shall provide for some increase in the rural seats which the Joint Committee wish us to attain, without a reduction of the urban seats. We shall similarly provide for some better representation of the depressed classes. The special case of the urban wage-earner is also being provided for in Calcutta and Bombay where the class is numerous and important. I hope that under the sympathetic and capable guidance of Lord Willingdon and Sir George Lloyd the difficulties about non-Brahmans in Madras and Mahrattas in Bombay are in a fair way to settlement.

" The process of making the electoral rolls has begun or is beginning, and with it will proceed also the shaping of the election rules. Another matter of immediate urgency is the drafting of the rules of legislative and other business for the several Provincial Councils and for the Indian legislature. On all these points it is the aim of my Government and Local Governments freely to consult Indian opinion and so far as may be to carry it with us, and we, as our proposals mature, shall take every opportunity of laying them before non-official advisers and considering their suggestions. Our proposals for the distribution of seats in the Indian legislature have now been for some weeks made known, and no criticism of substance has yet reached the Government of India from any quarter.

"The scheme of Reforms also entails some important legislation. Council will have noticed the recommendation of the Joint Committee that it should enact legislation of a stringent character dealing with corrupt practices at elections. In due course a Bill will be laid before the Council. Not only is the subject new to Indian legislation, but it bristles with inherent difficulties, in dealing with which the Government will be greatly assisted by Hon'ble Members' knowledge of what is expedient and possible in the conditions of India.

"At a later stage we propose to introduce also measures providing for the devolution upon Local Governments of many powers now vested in the Government of India, and for the rights and duties of the public services. But these are not yet sufficiently advanced for any definite statement about them to be made.

"I may say that we intend, at the earliest possible moment, to publish for information and convenience of reference the Government of India Act, 1915, as amended by the recent Act passed by Parliament, but Hon'ble Members will of course understand that the old law continues in force until the new one is brought into force by notification. Regarding the lifetime of existing Councils we have asked the Secretary of State to sanction an amendment of the regulations which will enable us to continue in existence such of the present Councils as would otherwise expire, until the date on which the new Councils come into existence. I think you will gather from what I have said that nothing is being left undone to carry into operation the great Reform which has just passed through Parliament. We shall want your whole-hearted co-operation in our labours. To me the one thing that matters is to get the work done and to get it well done. Anything else is of supreme unimportance.

"The heavy demand which necessary legislation will make upon the time of Council makes it necessary to limit the time to be set apart for the discussion of other matters of public interest. I propose to allot six days for the discussion of resolutions during February, and Hon'ble Members will be informed shortly of the exact dates; but the pressure of legislation and the Budget will make it impossible for us to find time for the discussion of Resolutions during the month of March.

"Before I turn to other matters of current interest I might briefly allude to a small matter which has been brought to my attention by Mr. Bhupendranath Basu, whom we are all glad to see again in India and who is conversant with the facts. He tells me that the appointment of Sir Sankaran Nair to the Council of the Secretary of State has been construed as a direct snub to me and my Government. If this concerned me alone I should not touch the question, but this interpretation of the appointment conveys an imputation on the Secretary of State, with whom I have the honour to work, which I cannot pass by. The facts of the case simply stated will dispose of this imputation.

"I put forward the name of Sir Sankaran Nair myself for the Council of the Secretary of State, and his appointment to the specific vacancy, which he was chosen to fill, was made after consultation with me and with my cordial concurrence.

"I turn now to other questions which are of interest to Hon'ble Members.

"When I last addressed this Council in September, the grip of famine was upon the land. Fortunately that grip has now been relaxed, and, though the high prices still cause considerable hardship, the necessity for measures of famine relief has almost entirely passed away. The pendulum of the weather has swung back in a more favourable direction, and after experiencing in 1918 a failure of the monsoon which was almost unprecedented in geographical extent, we were favoured in 1919 with exceptionally good rains which was unusually well distributed. Good kharif crops have been garnered in most provinces, and the prospects of the rabi crops are generally good. Though the effects of last year's drought are still reflected in depleted stocks of food-grains and inflated prices, the situation is immensely improved. Those of you who have perused the interesting report by Mr. Innes, published in November last, on the Operations of the Indian Food-stuffs Commissioner, will realise how serious was the economic crisis through which we passed last year: and how much cause we have for thankfulness that we have come through it, not indeed unscathed, but without shipwreck. We still have to guard against a drain on our food supplies, and though it is the policy of my Government to withdraw restrictions on the export of food-grains as soon as we can do so with safety, we think it necessary to maintain those restrictions until the stocks in the hands of the people have been replenished and easier prices indicate that the normal course of trade can be resumed.

"Hon'ble Members may or may not have read my speech at the Calcutta University Convocation. In that I outlined the course which the Government of India propose to take on the monumental document known as the Sadler Report. Our resolution on the subject is on the point of issuing, and towards the end of April I hope that a draft Bill may be published for general information. Last week I had the advantage of meeting the Heads of Provinces, and I was glad to learn that in all the provinces the proposals of the Sadler Commission are being considered from the point of view of their applicability to the University position in the several provinces.

"You have doubtless seen the Communiqué about the reorganisation of the Indian and Provincial Educational Services. You will observe that the Secretary of State has accepted our recommendation that the Indian element in the Indian Educational Service should be largely increased up to 50 per cent. of the cadre.

"At the opening of the last Session of the Council, I described to you the steps taken to obtain the views of the Local Governments on the recommendations of the Industrial Commission and thereafter to obtain the decision of the Secretary of State regarding those cardinal points of principle that had to be established before we take the first practical step forward in organisation. From the papers published in November last Hon'ble Members will have seen that the Secretary of State accepted the two fundamental principles underlying the recommendations of the Commission; namely, that in future Government should play an active part in the industrial development of the country and should, consequently, be provided with adequate administrative equipment and be forearmed with reliable scientific and technical advice.

"But in order that there should be no undue delay in pushing ahead with practical schemes, we did not rest with the discussion of fundamental principles: we proposed three specific measures for the purpose of dealing with the questions that were obviously most urgent. These, we considered, were—

Firstly, the creation of an interim central authority for the purpose of designing the new official machinery and establishing a system of co-operation with the Provincial Governments;

Secondly, the formulation of conditions for the establishment of the necessary scientific services; and Thirdly, the institution of a system for the local purchase of Government stores.

"All three proposals having been sanctioned by the Secretary of State, a Committee was appointed at once to advise on the best lines of organising the chemical services, which are the most urgently required of those necessary to deal with our neglected raw materials. We have been fortunate in obtaining as the Chairman of this Committee, Professor Jocelyn Thorpe, the distinguished Professor of Organic Chemistry at the Imperial College of Science and Technology in London, and it is hoped that the proposals of this Committee will be ready by the end of April.

"The local purchase of Government and railway stores is probably the most important among the practical proposals made by the Industrial Commission. The principle that Government stores should be purchased, whenever possible, in India has long been accepted; but, in the absence of an institution for the amalgamation of indents and for technical inspection during manufacture, we have been caught in a vicious circle. Manufacturing industries obviously could not be started without a sufficient and continuous market, while orders could not be placed in India so long as there existed here no adequate means of manufacture. Demands have thus continued to be made on England for many articles and materials which might very well be manufactured in this country if we had had the machinery for bringing Government buyers into effective touch with local manufacturers. On receipt of the Secretary of State's sanction, a Committee was appointed in December last under the Chairmanship of Sir Francis Couchman of the Railway Board to design the organisation of a new department for scrutinising Government indents, with a view to their being executed in an increasing degree in India; to consider the ways in which the duty of purchasing stores can be shared by the Central and Local Governments; and to examine the possibility also of assisting in this way Railway Companies and other public bodies. The Report of this Committee will be ready, I hope, before June next.

"Meanwhile, formalities are being completed for the purpose of re-constituting the Munitions Board which, while carrying on the work of securing local stores (undertaken as a necessity during the war), will work out, for the sanction of the Secretary of State, those of the Industrial Commission's specific proposals which still remain. The Board will thus lay the foundations and will design the structure of the new Department of Industries, which the Secretary of State agrees with us in regarding as important enough to require a special Membership of Council.

"Since the Secretary of State dealt with our proposals in September last, the Joint Committee has reported and the new Government of India Bill has become law. In compliance with the recommendations of the Joint Committee the administration of industrial activities in the Provinces will become one of the functions of the elected Ministers. The proposal of the Industrial Commission (that the functions of the Central Department of Industries should be mainly advisory) thus becomes a definite statutory prescription, while the responsibility for local executive action will rest with the representatives of the people.

"I need not say that the object of the Ministers in developing the material resources of India, with the help of her own young men, will have our cordial support. The new Central Department will place its resources freely at the disposal of the Provincial Ministers, will assist them, when required, with technical advice in dealing with specific industrial schemes, in the development of industrial education, in the exploitation of extra-provincial markets, in the collection and distribution of industrial intelligence, and in the recruitment of staff. But it will be the duty of the Ministers to initiate and administer local operations for the purpose of developing provincial resources.

"Since we met last September, our anxieties regarding the future of our Indian fellow-subjects in South Africa have increased rather than diminished. As you have read in the papers, a recent decision of the Transvaal Provincial Court endangers rights which we hoped had been secured beyond dispute by the Act of last summer. I would, however, renew most earnestly my plea for calmness. In a few weeks, probably, South Africa will be in the throes of a general election. It will only injure those whom we desire to help, if agitation here forces the Indian question to the front as an election issue.

"Already, I think, by steady and moderate representations we have done much to ensure a friendly hearing for our case. We have now been informed that the long-awaited Commission will probably assemble about the end of February. The personnel of the Commission and the terms of reference, have not yet been announced. But we understand that the Chairman will be a high judicial officer, and that the inquiry will be limited to the right to trade and to own fixed property in the four provinces of the Union. Sir Benjamin Robertson sailed yesterday for South Africa to represent our case before the Commission, and we earnestly hope that his skill and experience will avail to effect an honourable settlement.

"Meanwhile, fresh difficulties are arising in the British East African Protectorate. As yet we know no more than what has appeared in the press regarding the report of the East Africa Economic Commission, but I need not assure you that my Government will do everything in its power to defend Indian interests against this new attack. I may remind you, however, that this Report, as Colonel Amery, has already declared in the House of Commons, must not be regarded as representing the views of the Government of East Africa, still less of the Imperial Government, with whom the final decision will lie. British East Africa is not a self-governing Dominion; and the position of the Government of India is, and always will be, that there is no justification in a Crown Colony or Protectorate for assigning to British Indians a status in any way inferior to that of any other class of His Majesty's subjects. With the support of the Secretary of State we have steadily pressed this view on the Colonial Office; and we have asked the Secretary of State to see to it that Indian interests are fully represented at the forthcoming discussions in London between Lord Milner and the Governor of East Africa.

"While in some parts of the Empire we have these difficulties, other parts are eager to attract Indian settlers. There are now two deputations in India, one from British Guiana and one from Fiji, who have come here to persuade us to re-open emigration to those Colonies on a new basis. The British Guiana deputation have put forward a scheme of free emigration, with State assistance, which deserves, I think, our careful consideration. The Fiji Government have also given proof of their desire to enter on new and happier relations with this country by cancelling unconditionally all the outstanding indentures, and by declaring their intention of introducing at an early date measures to provide for the representation of the Indian community in the Legislative Council of Fiji on an elective basis.

"I wish, however, to make it clear that the position, which was taken up by Lord Hardinge's Government, still holds good. It is not the duty of India to provide labour for British Colonies. But if the Colonies offer Indians a wider and more prosperous career than that which they can look for in their own homes, then we should not stand in the way. Our duty then will be to protect the ignorant Indian emigrant against misrepresentation, and to see that such guarantees are given as will safeguard his interests as a free settler in the country to which he goes. We propose that a Committee of this Council should meet the deputations, discuss with them the conditions on which it would be possible to re-open emigration, and report their conclusions to the Government. Sir George Barnes will move a Resolution to this effect. I would suggest that the Committee should be in a large measure, if not entirely, composed of unofficial Indian Members, for the question is one which concerns Indians alone, and we intend to be guided by the findings of the Committee. I think Hon'ble Members would wish me to express our appreciation of the success which Sir George Barnes has achieved by his untiring efforts in this matter of Indentured Labour.

"I was very glad to have an opportunity of referring to the subject of Imperial Preference when I was recently invited to address the inaugural meeting of the Association of Chambers of Commerce of India and Ceylon. I said then, and I repeat it now, that I want to see the subject freely discussed and carefully examined. I said then, and I repeat it now, that it is not the Government of India's intention to adopt a policy of preference throughout the Empire as a general policy without full discussion and support from enlightened public opinion. It was with this object that, as Sir George Barnes told the Indian Merchants' Chamber and Bureau in November last the Government of India intend to move for the appointment of a Committee of the Council to discuss the question and to examine the statistical records relating to the various commodities of our export and import trade. I need hardly say that a preliminary examination, at any rate, of the statistical position, has already been made in the Department of Commerce and Industry. It is my intention that this preliminary examination should be placed before the Committee in order that they may study the figures for themselves, and I hope it may be possible for them to come to some general conclusion on the question whether the adoption of a system of preferential tariffs is or is not likely to be to the advantage of the country as a whole. The question is one of course of great complexity and difficulty. Part of the difficulty perhaps arises from the fact that most of us have some kind of pre-conceived ideas on the subject of tariffs, perhaps not always based on a critical examination of the facts I think that it will be of advantage if the members of the Committee could approach their task by divesting themselves, as far as possible, of all their previous notions and trying to look at the question as if it were an entirely new one, to be examined in the cold light of commonsense and statistical figures.

"Now I will turn to the position of affairs on and beyond our Frontiers.

"The situation in the Middle East has been recently painted in startling and lurid colours by the European Press. It has been said that the Bolshevists flushed by their successes are about to join hands with the discontented elements for an overwhelming attack on the Allied Powers and especially on the British Empire; that the East is in ferment and that a time of acute peril lies before us especially in India. Now I do not wish to minimise the dangers threatening us, and indeed threatening the civilised world, as a result of the upheaval of the last five years. Men's minds are troubled and excited, as perhaps never before by the spectacle of the foundering of Empires, the decay of conventions and the loosening of religious restraint; while starvation and distress have goaded whole peoples to desperation. At the same time also the Allied States, who alone have the power or organisation needed for the repair of the world, are tired of war, and eager to disband their armies and concentrate their energies on the problems of their own reconstruction. But I am confident that things are not so bad as they have been represented to be. Germany and Austria have now finally ratified the Peace terms presented to them, and the horrible prospect of a renewal of war in the West has disappeared. Trade is being opened with our former enemies; so that we may expect that prosperity will gradually return to them, and that, with prosperity, internal commotion will subside. The real disturbing factor in the world is the ebb and flow of the uncontrolled forces let loose by the collapse of the Russian Empire The forces fighting against the Bolshevists have, it is true, been badly defeated, but the Bolshevists themselves are extremely disorganised. Disillusioned and sated by more than two years of hideous excesses, massacre and rapine, there seems now some prospect that the Bolshevist rulers may adopt a more moderate policy; and if this proves to be the case, they may become a less active menace to the outside world. But they still preach the necessity of the disruption of the whole fabric of society, the destruction of property and the domination of mankind by its lowest and most ignorant elements; and, where they cannot penetrate by arms, they seek to penetrate by propaganda and secret agitation. It is to the dangers of such penetration rather than to those of actual invasion that the Middle East is, according to my information, chiefly exposed. We are watching this development most carefully, and we have set up a special staff to deal with it.

"Turning now from the region of surmise and conjecture, important though it is, to the actual position on our Frontier, the Amir of Afghanistan has since the signature of the Treaty of Peace at Rawalpindi expressed uniformly friendly sentiments in his communications with us; but, as is known to you, he has allowed a Bolshevist Mission to visit his capital and has sent an Afghan deputation to Moscow An attitude such as this makes it difficult for us to enter into closer relations straightaway. Our position vis-a-vis Afghanistan remains as it was last September. We wish to live on terms of friendship with her, but it is idle to enter into a treaty of friendship, until she has given us by her conduct proof that the treaty of friendship will not be a mere piece of paper, but a document based on the proved fact of friendliness.

"Our border tribes have not yet recovered from the unrest caused by the Afghan war. To the north of the Khyber we have had peace; but the younger and more excitable men of the Afridis have, in spite of the strength of our grip on the Khyber and of the efforts of their elders to restrain them, indulged in constant raids. We have announced to them comparatively lenient terms of submission; and I hope that they will before long realise the futility of their conduct, and that the former confidence between these tribesmen and our frontier officers will be restored. The tribes of Waziristan, the Mahsuds in the centre and the Wazirs of the Tochi in the North and of Wano in the South, had committed themselves deeply against us during the Afghan war; and after the conclusion of peace they continued their intolerable depredations on the peaceful population of Bannu and Dera Ismail Khan. At the beginning of November a strong field force was assembled, and the terms of their submission were announced to the Mahsuds and Tochi Wazirs. The Mahsuds rejected our terms, but the Tochi Wazirs accepted them, being deterred by our display of force in the Tochi and by the advance of our troops in imposing strength to Datta Khel. In the meanwhile the Mahsuds, after being given time to remove their women and children, were severely bombed from the air; but though they were much shaken by the bombing and though many individuals were anxious to submit, the tribe as a whole remained recalcitrant, and an advance of our troops in force became necessary. On the 18th December the Derajat column advanced from Jandola and was strongly opposed by the Mahsuds and Wano Wazirs, who now possess plenty of modern rifles and ammunition, and large numbers of whom have been trained in our Militias in the most recent methods of warfare. In this fighting, while I regret to say that our casualties were numerous, heavy losses are known to have been suffered by the enemy, and on the 29th December the Mahsud jirgah came in and accepted our terms in full. But the disintegration of the tribe is so great that the hundreds of petty headmen have little authority and about a third of the tribe have continued to oppose our advance. This will now be maintained until the tribesmen have shown the reality of their submission by the payment of their fines and of the rifles which have been demanded of them. The Wano Wazirs will then remain to be dealt with; but they are not expected to prove so stubborn as the Mahsuds, and we hope that before long these troublesome but inevitable operations will be brought to a successful issue. Our forces have had a hard time of it in difficult country under the severe conditions which winter imposes in that region, and I would express my warm appreciation of the grit and gallantry they have displayed in their advance against determined opposition into the heart of the enemy's country. I should like to say in passing that General Climo has been kept fully supplied with reinforcements throughout his campaign; that the air force consists of the most up-to-date machines, of which a full reserve is kept with the force; and that the latest pattern of heavy mountain howitzer has been employed throughout the campaign. We shall now proceed, by a greater concentration of our forces at strategic points and by a vigorous extension of roads fitted for mechanical transport, to secure our more effective future domination of this portion of the frontier and protection of our border tracts.

"Further south the Sheranni tribe including both the sections under the North-West Frontier Province and Baluchistan have submitted, and the tribes of the Zhob Valley have given no trouble.

"To sum up then:

"The position in our Frontier, complicated and difficult though it is, is being gradually straightened out.

"I do not minimise the dangers arising out of the turmoil of the disintegrated Russian Empire, but I rest my confidence on the peoples of India. They will never, I believe, open their hearts to the abhorrent doctrines of murder, anarchy and atheism

"The present is indeed a critical time in the world's history when every nation which hopes to maintain or advance its position in the community of civilised

[The President; Sir George Barnes.] [30TH JANUARY, 1920.]

States must stand firm by its traditions and set up bulwarks of sanity and moderation against the forces of disorder and destruction. In India I see no grounds for pessimism. There may be clouds in our sky, but the shadows they cast are relieved by much that is bright. In his deep concern for India's welfare in these days of stress and change His Majesty the King-Emperor has issued to the Indian people a gracious Proclamation. The Royal Message full of inspiration and hope has been acclaimed throughout India, and you will have an opportunity of acknowledging it when Mr. Sinha's Resolution comes before you. The Proclamation ends:

'It is my intention to send my dear son, the Prince of Wales, to India next winter to inaugurate on my behalf the new Chamber of Princes and the new Constitutions in British India.

'May he find material good-will and confidence prevailing among those on whom will rest the future service of the country, so that success may crown their labours and progressive enlightenment attend their administration. And with all my people I pray to Almighty God that by His wisdom and under His guidance India may be led to greater prosperity and contentment and may grow to the fulness of political freedom.'

To this we will answer Amen.

"It remains for me only to express what I know is the great satisfaction of all Hon'ble Members that the task of opening the new Indian Legislature of the future will be performed by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. The extraordinary success which has attended the Prince's visit to other parts of the Empire will, I know, be equalled by the reception which this great country will give him.

"By his gracious presence in our midst he will forge anew the links of Empire. Let us prepare to welcome the Prince in Shakespeare's words:

'Now is the winter of our discontent.

'Made glorious summer by this sun of York.'

STATEMENT LAID ON THE TABLE.

11-54 A.M. The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes:—"On the 15th September last, in reply to a question asked by the Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma, I promised that an endeavour would be made to supply information, so far as it is obtainable, of quantities and values of materials supplied to the United Kingdom and the Allies during the war at controlled prices. A* statement has accordingly been prepared and is placed on the table for the Hon'ble Member's information. As, however, the term 'controlled prices' is rather an ambiguous one, I take this opportunity of explaining that the producers, exporters, etc., of the various articles included in the statement were in no case compelled to sell their goods to Government at a fixed price. In most cases Government named a maximum rate at which they were prepared to buy; and it remained open to sellers to supply the required goods at these rates or to dispose of their stocks to other buyers if they wished to do so. In regard to shellac and raw jute, special arrangements were made. In the case of shellac an agreement was reached with the trade whereby all shippers of this article guaranteed a certain quantity to Government at a rate considerably below the existing market price, but the shippers recouped themselves by obtaining correspondingly higher prices for non-Government exports This of course was only possible because India possessed a monopoly of that commodity. In the case of raw jute, an arrangement was made in 1916 with certain firms for the supply of this article to the War Office at cost price plus out-of-pocket expenses. This agreement was, however, a voluntary one, and was in fact suggested by the firms concerned. Similarly, in the case of jute manufactures, agreements were made with the Jute Mills for the supply of fixed quantities of sandbags at prices below the market rates. These agreements, however, were also on a voluntary basis."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda asked :— 11-56 A.M.

Abolition of the system of control of traffic and priority certificates.

1. "When is the system of control of traffic and issue of priority certificates to be abolished?"

The Hon'ble Sir Arthur Anderson replied :—

"The system of controlling traffic by means of certificates giving priority of wagon supply or despatch ended on 30th November 1919 except in the case of food-grains to the North-West Frontier Province and Baluchistan. Owing to heavy military traffic it was considered necessary in the case of these Provinces to continue priority for food-grains over other civil traffic in order to ensure the non-interruption of food suppliet"

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda asked :—

Appointment of Lieutenant-Colonel Beadon as Deputy Commissioner of Delhi.

2. "(a) Will Government be pleased to state how long Lieutenant-Colonel Beadon has been in Delhi? Is it a fact that he was at first Settlement Officer for five years in Delhi and then went on leave and after return was for a few months posted to the adjoining district, Rohtak, after which he became Deputy Commissioner of Delhi in December 1911, and from that time till recently continued in his present appointment?

(b) Is it in accordance with rules that one officer should remain so long at one place?

(c) Will Government state when his time will be up?

(d) Is it the intention of Government that he is to remain in Delhi till retirement in one capacity or another?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

"(a) The information required can be obtained from the 'History of Services' which is available to the public, and a copy of which I shall very gladly show to the Hon'ble Member. Colonel Beadon was Settlement Officer of Delhi from October 1906 till September 1910. He became Deputy Commissioner, Delhi, in January 1912 and remained in that appointment till recently with short interruptions.

(b) There is no rule limiting the period for which an officer should remain at a particular place.

(c) and (d) Colonel Beadon is now on leave, and it is probable that on his return he will revert to the Punjab"

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda asked :—

Representative of the Moslems of Assam in the Imperial Legislative Assembly.

3. "(a) Is it a fact that Assam ranks third among the eight major Provinces of India as regards Moslem population?

(b) Has any provision been made for any special Moslem electorate in Assam for returning any member to the Imperial Legislature under the Reform Act?

(c) Is it a fact that the Southborough Committee recommended that in the Imperial Legislative Assembly one seat and half a seat (that is to say one seat in every alternate term) be allotted to the Assam Moslems?

(d) With reference to the last part of the answer given by Sir Reginald Craddock to my question on the subject on the 27th September, 1916, do Government propose to consider the question of allotting one seat and a half to the Moslems of Assam?"

[Sir William Marris; Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda; Sir Claude Hill; Sir William Vincent; Mr. Shafi.] [30TH JANUARY, 1920.]

The Hon'ble Sir William Marris replied :—

" (a) The information is available in the census reports. Assam ranks seventh among the eight major Provinces in aggregate Moslem population, and third in the proportion of Moslems to total population

(b) and (d) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the Press Communiqué issued on the 8th January.

(c) The answer is in the negative. The Southborough Committee, in paragraph 33 of their report, proposed that one seat only should be allotted to the Moslems of Assam."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda asked :—

Co-operative societies or stores for students.

4. " (a) Do any co-operative societies or stores for students exist in any Province ?

(b) Do the Government of India propose to suggest to the Local Governments that steps should be taken to popularise such societies or stores ? "

The Hon'ble Sir Claude Hill replied :—

"(a) The Provincial Reports on the working of Co-operative Societies show that Co-operative Societies or stores for students exist in Bengal, Assam, Bihar and Orissa, the United Provinces and the Punjab.

(b) It is not the policy of the Government of India to intervene in such details of the administration of Co-operative Societies, and they do not propose to move in the matter. The Hon'ble Member's question will, however, be brought to the notice of Local Governments."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda asked :—

Confinement of Mr. Shankar Lal of Delhi in a solitary

5. " (a) Is it a fact that Mr. Shankar Lal who was lately tried at Delhi was kept in a solitary cell while an under-trial prisoner ?

(b) If so, under what provision of the law was he so kept and what was the reason ? "

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

" Lala Shankar Lal was not confined in a solitary cell, but on his admission to the Delhi Jail on 20th April, 1919, was placed in quarantine by the Medical Officer, as required by paragraphs 478 and 1069 of the Punjab Jail Manual. The fact that the quarantine accommodation in the Delhi Jail is entirely cellular may account for the impression that this prisoner was kept in solitary confinement. He was removed from quarantine on 30th May, and then occupied a small barrack with an open yard for exercise, affording good accommodation for a prisoner of his class, until his release on 21st July, 1919."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda asked :—

Boy Scout movement.

6. " Do Government propose to encourage endeavours to popularise the Boy Scout movement in all educational institutions ? "

The Hon'ble M . Shafi replied :—

" The Hon'ble Member is referred to a speech of the Hon'ble Sir Sankaran Nair made in this Council on the 21st March 1917 in which he indicated the position of the Government of India with reference to the boy-scouts movement. In addition to the Circular which it was stated by the Hon'ble Sir Sankaran Nair was about to issue and which, as a matter of fact, issued immediately afterwards, the Government of India again addressed Local Governments on the subject last year. Replies have been received which show that good work is being done in some of the provinces, and that efforts are being made to encourage the movement. In other provinces, notwithstanding encouragement, little interest has been displayed. The movement is one in which the Government of India have already demonstrated their interest, and its development rests mainly with Provincial authorities."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda asked :—

Medical inspection of the health of students.

7. "(a) Has any system of medical inspection of the health of students been instituted in any province?

(b) If such a system does not exist in all provinces, do Government propose to issue instructions recommending it?"

The Hon'ble Mr. Shafi replied :—

"(a) The attention of the Hon'ble Member is invited to paragraph 7 of the Government of India, Department of Education Resolution No. 301-C. D., dated the 21st February 1913, in which the Government of India emphasised the importance of school hygiene including the inspection of the health of students. In the same year the Government of India allotted a sum of R25 lakhs to Local Governments for these purposes, and they further addressed Local Governments in June 1913 pointing out that school and college hygiene was a subject which they considered had not hitherto received adequate attention in India and on which they laid the utmost emphasis. Systems of medical inspection have now been instituted in various provinces. An account of these systems will be found in the last Quinquennial Review of the Progress of education and the short Annual Narrative called 'Indian Education' for 1917-18. The Educational Commissioner will again give an account of progress in the Narrative which will be laid on the table in March.

(b) Owing to the war and financial stringency it has not been possible for all provinces to introduce the complete schemes which they had contemplated. Good progress, however, has been made and further improvements are taking place. The Government of India have recently addressed the Secretary of State supporting a proposal from the Government of Bengal for the entertainment of an adequate staff for physical education and medical inspection. The Government of India do not propose to issue further instructions."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda asked :—

Promotion, supersession and transfer of Munsiffs and Sub-Judges.

8. "(a) Is it a fact that while the questions of promotion, supersession, transfer, etc., of Munsiffs and Sub-Judges lie with the High Court, those regarding the District Judges and Additional Judges are with the Local Government?

(b) What are the reasons for this distinction?

(c) Do Government propose to consult the different High Courts about the matter and place the replies when received on the table? Do they propose to revise the rules?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

(a) I lay on the table* a statement showing the authorities which appoint District Judges, Additional Judges, Sub-Judges and Munsiffs in the various provinces. The power of appointment necessarily connotes the power to order promotion, supersession or transfer of the persons appointed.

(b) The powers of appointment are laid down in the Statutes governing the judicial administration of each province, which have been in force for many years past. The Government of India understand that it is the practice in most, if not all provinces, for the executive authorities to consult the Supreme Court of the province in regard to orders affecting the promotion, supersession or transfer of subordinate judicial officers.

(c) The answer is in the negative. The Government of India have no reason to suppose that the present system works unsatisfactorily."

*Not included in these Proceedings.

[Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda; Sir George Barnes; Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru.] [30TH JANUARY, 1920.]

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda asked:—

The Assam Labour Board.

9. "(a) Is it a fact that there is not now, nor has there been at any time since the creation of the Assam Labour Board, any Indian member on it?

(b) What is the number of tea estates in Assam owned by Indians and Europeans, respectively?

(c) Do Government propose to make some provision for appointing at least one Indian member on the Board from either Valley in Assam?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied:—

"(a) Yes.

(b) The Government of India have no information as to the number of tea estates in Assam owned by Indians and Europeans, respectively. The large majority of the tea estates in Assam belong to limited liability companies, many of which presumably include Indians as well as Europeans among their shareholders.

(c) Under section 116-A of Act VIII of 1915, the members of the Assam Labour Board, other than the Chairman, are elected, and the Government of India have no present intention of amending the Act."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda asked:—

Colonisation outside India by Indian soldiers.

10. "Has any action been taken to give effect to the following recommendation contained in paragraph 329, pages 155, 156 of the Joint Report on Indian Constitutional Reforms, namely:—'If opportunities of colonisation outside India are forthcoming after the war, we believe that many Indian soldiers would take advantage of them; and we would urge upon His Majesty's Government that their claims in this respect should be favourably considered'?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied:—

"We are at the present time inquiring from Local Governments whether it would be practicable to attempt an organised scheme of settlement in the event of territory being available for this purpose, and how far a suitable type of agriculturists, ex-service men or others, would be attracted by the prospects of free settlement in such territory."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda asked:—

Colonisation by India of the tropical possessions conquered by Indian troops.

11. "(a) Is it a fact that the suggestion was made by several public men during the course of the war that the tropical possessions of the enemy should be handed over to India for colonisation on the ground that they were conquered mainly by Indian troops?

(b) Has this question been considered and has any decision been arrived at? If not, do the Government of India propose to bring it to the notice of His Majesty's Government?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied:—

"(a) Yes.

(b) The question has been considered, but no decision has yet been reached."

The Hon'ble Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru asked:—

Publication of the Hunter Committee's report in India.

12. "Will Government be pleased to state when the report of the Committee presided over by Lord Hunter will be ready, and when it is proposed to publish it in India?"

[30TH JANUARY, 1920.] [Sir William Vincent; Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru; Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi; Sir George Barnes; Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy; Sir George Lowndes.]

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

" Government have no information when the report of the Committee over which Lord Hunter presided will be submitted, but they hope it will be received by the end of February or early in March. Until the report is received, and in the absence of any definite information as to the date of such receipt, it is not possible to make any statement as to the date of publication in India."

The Hon'ble Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru asked :—" Will the Government allow the Council a chance of discussing the Report ?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—" Undoubtedly the Council will have an opportunity of discussing the Report after publication."

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked :—

Exportation of certain articles from various ports of India.

13. " Will Government be pleased to lay on the table a detailed statement of the export of the following articles from the various Ports of India to different parts of the world in each of the five years before the war and each of the years 1916, 1917 and 1918 :—

(a) Rice ;
(b) Wheat ;
(c) Pulses, and
(d) Cloths and textile fabrics ? "

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

" I must refer the Hon'ble Member to the Annual Statement of the Sea Borne Trade of British India which gives the figures of exports of the commodities named in the question for the different provinces of India. The Annual Statement does not give information with regard to each separate port in India, but I trust that the information given will be sufficient for the Hon'ble Member's purposes."

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy asked :—

Safeguarding of interests of Indians in East Africa.

14. " (a) Have Government taken into consideration the representation made by the Indian Merchants' Chamber and Bureau, and the statement made in the telegram from the Reverend Mr. Andrews published in the newspapers, as regards the treatment of Indians in East Africa ?

(b) What steps do Government propose to take for safeguarding the interests of Indians there ? "

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

" (a) The Government of India have received no representation from the Indian Merchants' Chamber and Bureau as regards the treatment of Indians in East Africa, but their attention has been drawn to the telegram from the Rev. Mr. Andrews.

(b) The Hon'ble Member will have learnt from His Excellency's speech the steps which we are taking to safeguard the position of Indians in East Africa, and I can assure the Hon'ble Member that the Government of India will continue to be watchful of the interests of Indians there and elsewhere."

PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes :—" My Lord, I beg to move that the Bill further to amend the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907, be re-committed to Select Committee for the purpose of consolidation, with instructions to report on or before the 1st March, 1920. 12-0 P.M.

[Sir George Lowndes; Sir George Barnes; H. E. the Commander-in-Chief.] [30TH JANUARY, 1920.]

This motion is made in accordance with the recommendations of the Committee contained in the Report which has already been presented to the Council."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes:—"My Lord, I beg to move that the Hon'ble Mr. Muddiman and the Hon'ble Mr. Kincaid be added to the Select Committee on the Bill, in place of Mr. Rice and Mr. Mountford, who have resigned."

The motion was put and agreed to.

INDIAN STEAMSHIPS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

12-8 P.M. The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes:—"My Lord, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Indian Steam-ships Act, 1884. The object of this Bill is simply to correct a mistake and to supply an omission in the Indian Steam-ships Act of 1884. In order to secure the safety of passengers no steam-ship is allowed by the Act of 1884 to carry more than twelve passengers without a certificate of survey which must specify the number of passengers which the steam-ship may carry. This Act imposes a penalty if a steam-ship carries more than twelve passengers without a certificate of survey, but unfortunately it imposes no penalty in the event of the passengers in excess of the number entered in the certificate of survey being carried. It is clear that this is an accidental omission, and the object of this Bill is to rectify it."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes:—"My Lord, I beg to introduce the Bill, and to move that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India in English."

The motion was put and agreed to.

INDIAN ARMY (AMENDMENT) BILL.

12-10 P.M. His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief:—"My Lord, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Indian Army Act, 1911. The object of the Bill is to amend a deficiency in the Act that recent experience has disclosed. As explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons sections already exist for the speedy disposal of moveable property of those who die or desert or become insane. The intention of the Bill is to extend the provisions of the Act to persons who, when on active service, are reported missing. It is contemplated that this clause should come into effect one year after the date of the report."

The motion was put and agreed to.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief:—"My Lord, I beg to introduce the Bill, and to move that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India in English."

The motion was put and agreed to.

[30TH JANUARY, 1920.] [Mr. Shafi; Mr. Sachchidananda Sinha.]

UNITED PROVINCES TOWN IMPROVEMENT (APPEALS) BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. Shafi :—"My Lord, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to modify certain provisions of the United Provinces Town Improvement Act, 1919. Hon'ble Members may be aware that with a view to make improvements and extension of town in the United Provinces an Act was passed last year in the local Legislative Council called the United Provinces Town Improvement Act. Under section 3 of that Act the duty of carrying out the provisions of the Act in any local area to which the statute may by notification be extended vests in a Board called the Improvement Trust of that area. By section 56 of the Act, the Trust may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, acquire land under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, as modified by the provisions of this Act, for carrying out any of the purposes of this Act. Under section 57 a Tribunal is constituted for the purposes of performing the functions of the Court in reference to the acquisition of land for the Trust under the Land Acquisition Act, and under section 58 (a) the Tribunal so constituted is deemed to be a Court and the President of the Tribunal is deemed to be a judge under the Land Acquisition Act Finally, under clause (d) of that section the award of this Tribunal is deemed to be the award of the Court under the Land Acquisition Act and is considered final. There is one more provision in this enactment which it is necessary to invite the attention of Hon'ble Members to in order to make the position clear. By section 64 (1) (b) questions relating to the determination of persons to whom compensation is payable or the apportionment of compensation may be tried and decided in the absence of assessors if the President of the Tribunal considers their presence unnecessary, and when so tried and decided the decision of the President is to be deemed the decision of the Tribunal. And in sub-clause (c) of the same section, notwithstanding anything done under the foregoing clauses, the decision on all questions of law and procedure rests solely with the President of the Tribunal, and Hon'ble Members will have noticed that the award of the Tribunals is under that Act final. 12-12 P.M.

"Now when the Local Government sent up the Bill as originally drafted by them there was a clause in it, 56 (e), which provided for an appeal from the award of this Tribunal in certain circumstances, to the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad. The Government of India were of opinion that such a provision in a local Act was ultra vires of the Provincial Legislature.

"The Bill which I am now asking for permission to introduce is being undertaken at the instance of the Local Government in order to supply that omission, and I am sure Hon'ble Members will recognise that in its nature it is essentially a non-controversial measure. The Bill has been in the hands of Hon'ble Members for the last two or three days, and it is, therefore, unnecessary for me to summarise its provisions in my speech."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Shafi :—"My Lord, I now beg to introduce the Bill, and to move that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India in English."

The motion was put and agreed to.

RESOLUTION RE HIS MAJESTY'S PROCLAMATION ON REFORMS.

The Hon'ble Mr. Sachchidananda Sinha :—"My Lord, I rise to move the Resolution which stands on the Agenda paper in my name and which runs as follows :— 12-17 P.M.

"That this Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that he may be pleased to transmit, through the proper channel, to His Majesty the King-Emperor the following humble representation :—'That this Council begs leave to tender to His Most Gracious Majesty the King-Emperor its dutiful homage and loyal devotion and to express its sense of profound gratefulness for the Royal Proclamation issued by His Majesty on the memorable occasion of his having given his Royal assent to the Government of India Bill, declaring, as the Proclamation does, noble and lofty principles of government which are to guide in future the policy of His Majesty's officers to enable the Indian nation to attain full responsible government and full political freedom as an equal member of the British Commonwealth.'

"My Lord, I do not think I need make any apology for my having brought up this Resolution on this the first day of the opening of the Session of this Council, for the very simple reason that as your Lordship was pleased to observe in the course of your very exhaustive inaugural address delivered this morning this Proclamation has been acclaimed by the people of India throughout the length and breadth of the country, and I felt I should be wanting in my duty if I did not put forward this Resolution which represents the unanimous opinion of the people of India in regard to the Proclamation so graciously issued by His Majesty. My Lord, had it not been that the time at my disposal is limited, I would have read out to the Council a large number of extracts from the leading exponents of Indian public opinion in the various Provinces, which would support my view that even papers, which are regarded as very advanced in their views on questions of Indian self-government, have all unanimously and with one voice expressed their heartiest welcome to His Majesty's Proclamation as embodying and laying down principles of a lofty and noble character alike for the guidance of His Majesty's officers and His Majesty's subjects in this country. I shall content myself with reading two short extracts from two leading papers, one of Calcutta and one of Bombay, to satisfy the Council that what I claim is a fact beyond dispute ; I read from the 'Bombay Chronicle' which says :—

'All India will gratefully welcome the Proclamation of the King-Emperor, heralding as it does the opening of a new epoch in the history of India ....The words of the Proclamation reveal a loftiness of purpose which will touch the hearts of the people, because it is something more than a ceremonial announcement about the Royal Assent which is given to the Reform Act'.

"I shall also read one short passage from a paper which is generally regarded as a very advanced journal in this country, namely, the Amrita Bazar Patrika, so well known to my friend, the Hon'ble Sir William Vincent. It says :—

'The Proclamation of His Majesty the King will be read with thrilling interest throughout the length and breadth of India. We have no doubt that the people of this country will heartily respond to the appeal of His Majesty whose genuine sympathy for the aspirations of his Indian subjects is well known'.

"My Lord, I could multiply similar extracts from other leading nationalist papers in various parts of the country, but these two short extracts will, I am sure, satisfy the Council that I am justified in saying that all shades of Indian public opinion are absolutely unanimous in according a very hearty welcome to His Majesty's Proclamation. I may also say here that it has been to me a matter of very great gratification to find that, with one single solitary exception, all the leading Anglo-Indian papers have taken a similar view and have expressed an equally hearty appreciation of the terms of His Majesty's Proclamation. This is not the occasion, my Lord, to raise any controversial topic, and I shall, therefore, refrain from making any comments about the conduct of the one leading Anglo-Indian paper of Calcutta, which has utilised the Royal Proclamation for an attack on Mr. Montagu, in language which I would not care to characterise. Now I have no desire to confer cheap immortality on that paper by referring to it by name, but those who have read its three leading articles will agree with me that it has shown—to say the least of it—very scant courtesy to His Majesty's Proclamation by calling it, as it has done, a political manifesto of Mr. Montagu, an allegation which I entirely repudiate and deny. I also say this, not in anger, but in sorrow, that I have not seen any one of my British fellow-subjects entering a protest against the kind of language employed by a leading Anglo-Indian paper in regard to

[30TH JANUARY, 1920.] [Mr. Sachchidananda Sinha.]

His Majesty's Proclamation. But with that one single exception, I claim that Indian and Anglo-Indian opinion as expressed in the press of India and in the resolutions adopted by the various political bodies is emphatically unanimous in welcoming the Royal Proclamation as a document of very great historic importance. I shall not, therefore, trouble the Council with any further observations in justification of my placing before it my Resolution.

"My Lord, the Resolution which I have read out is in three parts. In the first, I am requesting your Lordship's Government to transmit our humble representation on behalf of this Council to His Majesty the King Emperor. From the fact that your Lordship, as President of this Council, has admitted the Resolution exactly in the terms I drafted it, I take it that your Lordship's Government will be pleased to accept the Resolution. The next part of the Resolution tenders to the King Emperor our dutiful homage and loyal devotion, and then gives expression to our opinion about the Proclamation itself. Now, I believe, it is regarded as a convention that whenever British subjects approach their Sovereign with a representation, they first tender to him their loyal devotion and dutiful homage, but I assure your Lordship that so far as we Indians are concerned, we do not regard it as a mere formality. We take it as an obligation and a duty to our King Emperor George V, who has taken such a deep and abiding personal interest in the affairs of his Indian subjects, and we deem it a privilege to offer to him, on occasions like these, our dutiful homage and loyal devotion. I have been, since the Resolution was admitted, looking into some literature upon the subject, and I have tried to find any important speeches by any Viceroy or Minister of State in proposing the toast of the King Emperor. I have found curiously enough very little upon it as, I believe, it is regarded as customary to propose the King's toast at the end of banquets. I once asked a Scotch friend of mine why no speeches were made, as a rule, in proposing the King's toast, and he said: 'we take our loyalty as a matter of course, and there is no occasion for us to make any speeches or to express our views in regard to our loyalty'. Now that may be the right course to take for the British subjects of His Majesty, but in the case of his Indian subjects,—even though your Lordship declared in the Joint Report on Constitutional Reforms, that although Indians criticise freely and frankly and sometimes in strong language the actions of His Majesty's officers in this country, their loyalty is above suspicion—I nevertheless think that on an occasion like this a few observations will not be irrelevant in regard to the reasons why we all are most profoundly loyal to the King Emperor.

"Now, my Lord, looking into this matter I lighted upon some very happy and apposite observations of your Excellency's distinguished predecessor, Lord Curzon, made by him in this very city of Delhi on 1st January 1903, on the occasion of the State Banquet given by him when he held the Durbar to proclaim the accession to sovereignty of His late Majesty King Emperor Edward VII. In proposing the Royal toast Lord Curzon said:—

'....This Indian possession of His Majesty is no mere dead-weight tied on to the heels of the British Empire, but a Dominion, a Continent, an Empire by itself, rich in its own personality and memories, self-confident in its own strength, and aglow with abundant potentialities for the future. To be King of the United Kingdom and of the British possessions beyond the Seas is a great and noble title. But to be Emperor of India is in no respect less, and is in some respects greater For powerful Empires existed and flourished here, while Englishmen were still wandering painted in the woods, and when the British Colonies were wilderness and jungle; and India has left a deeper mark upon the history, the philosophy, and the religion of mankind than any other territorial unit in the universe. That a British Sovereign should in the fulness of time have been able to do what no predecessor of his ever accomplished, what Alexander never dreamed of, what Akbar never performed, namely, to pacify, unify, and consolidate this great mass into a single homogeneous whole, is, in my judgment, the most impressive phenomenon in history, and the greatest wonder of the modern world'.

"I think, my Lord, that although these words came from one of His Majesty's British subjects, every Indian subject of His Majesty will equally gladly subscribe to these observations of Lord Curzon, and it is exactly in that light that we regard our King Emperor, as the head of a great system of administration under which it has been possible for India to become in the course of less than a century a nation. There are, no doubt, various reasons which appeal to various minds on the basis of which each Indian is loyal to the King Emperor. Loyalty, however, being, a subjective feeling, I shall leave it to my colleagues to express each in his own way his grounds for his loyalty to the King Emperor. But for my part, the real reason why His Majesty's rule and that of his predecessors has appealed to me is that it has enabled the people of India who, till this country passed under the Crown were a congeries of different nationalities, races and tribes to have become since a single nation. On that point I do not think I should express emphatically my own opinion, because I find that a gentleman, to whom your Lordship referred this morning in terms of deservedly high appreciation, namely, Lord Meston, made some very striking observations in the House of Lords in the course of the debate on the Government of India Bill He said :—' What lies behind and below the whole of the political difficulties in India, is the spirit of nationalism, a spirit bred in the soil, nurtured......by our own methods and our own examples, and spreading rapidly through all ranks and classes. I say deliberately all ranks and classes, because I have been watching its operations now for over thirty years. It, of course, permeates the professional classes, with whom it originated. That is accepted. But it is also going deep into the trading and monied classes. A few years ago they had nothing whatever to do with politics, but they are now a prominent feature in all political organisations, and it is very largely their money which finances the nationalist movement. It has also spread to the landed classes'. So that it is quite clear, as Lord Meston puts it, that a national spirit is permeating now all ranks and classes in this country. Beginning with the professional classes, it has filtered down to other strata and even to the masses. That is absolutely incontrovertible, and, I think, your Lordship will agree with me that of all the titles to honour of our King Emperor and of his claim to our loyalty and devotion to him, the greatest is this—to have found the Indian people divided into races, tribes, ranks and classes and moulded them by means of education, training and culture into one great homogeneous, political whole. It is on this ground that I have retained the words in my Resolution as expressing our real sentiments of loyal devotion and homage to the King Emperor, and not merely by way of a customary convention or formality.

"I shall now say a few words about the Proclamation itself, but before I do so, I desire to clear the ground by pointing out two omissions advisedly made by me from this Resolution. Although there is much in the Proclamation about Royal clemency, I have not referred to that part of it, for the simple reason that, although the question of Royal clemency is a very important one at present, it will not be one of any permanent interest in time to come. The subject of Royal clemency also figures at length in Her Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria's Proclamation, but although we all remember certain important passages from that historic and memorable document, no one to-day remembers or tries to recall what is said in it about the grant of amnesty. Similarly, after your Lordship has been pleased, as I hope your Lordship will be, to extend, on behalf of the King Emperor, the Royal clemency as freely as possible, this particular question will not be a matter of importance hereafter. But in regard to the policy laid down in the Royal Proclamation, there are statements made therein in regard to the wishes of the King Emperor which are binding upon all his subjects, and those declarations are and will be invaluable for all time to come. It is, therefore, that I have made no reference in my Resolution to the subject of Royal clemency.

"I have also advisedly refrained from putting in anything in this Resolution about the Government of India Act. The reason is not because I am afraid of the question being discussed as to whether that measure is a little thing or a big thing, but because I quite agree with my esteemed friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Sastri, who in an article contributed by him to Mrs. Besant's paper, published in England, called 'United India' rightly points out that 'rules have to be framed under no fewer than seventeen sections of the

Bill and some of these are of capital importance, while many involve matters of intricacy. The Selborne Committee have in addition recommended that as many as twelve different matters must be investigated in India and the data for their settlement furnished in definite shape before the new Act could be brought into operation'. And he then gives a note of warning by saying 'It is a commonplace that the Morley-Minto Reforms were rendered unpopular by the rules framed by the Government of India'. Now I do not take Mr. Sastri to mean, nor do I mean it myself, that there is any reason to apprehend that the rules and regulations to be framed under the sympathetic guidance of my friend, Sir William Marris, will partake of the nature of those framed ten years back by the Government of India. At the same time, it is quite clear that this Act is incomplete in itself. It is admittedly a skeleton measure, and unless we have got before us the complete material, namely, the rules and regulations, it is not fair to any one to express our definite opinion about it. It is with this aspect in view that I have omitted any reference to the Government of India Act. But I would point out that, whatever view we may take of the new Statute, whether we regard it, as I am told some people do, as a little thing, or whether we regard it, as I am told some other people do, as a big thing, no honest man but will concede that an Act of Parliament, which introduces for the first time in the history of British India an element of responsibility in the Provincial Governments, for the people to work up to for their full political freedom in course of time makes the occasion a memorable one. It is, therefore, that I say that the occasion of the passing of the Act was a memorable one, and it was with a rich and rare political instinct that His Majesty the King-Emperor has issued this Proclamation which we all welcome so much as a new Charter of our legitimate goal and aspirations.

"Now, my Lord, coming to the Proclamation my thoughts naturally go back to the other great Proclamation, which is referred to by His Majesty in the present one, namely, that of Her Majesty Queen Victoria. That Proclamation has a history of its own, and because certain incidents which occurred in regard to that Proclamation may have, in future, some bearing on the present one, I wish, with your Lordship's leave, to say a few words about them. It has been contended by some people that His Majesty's Royal Proclamation is really the act of his Ministers and that it is, therefore, open to us to take it in that light. My contention is that this view is untenable. I urge that a Royal Proclamation is principally an act of the Sovereign, although a constitutional monarch like our King Emperor naturally acts on the advice of his Ministers. We know that in the case of Queen Victoria's memorable Proclamation Her Majesty took a special personal interest in the draft which was being prepared. Lord Morley refers to the fact in the Appendix to the collected edition of his Indian speeches, and an important communication on the subject is to be found in the 'Letters of Queen Victoria,' Volume III. Writing to the Earl of Derby under date 15th August, 1858, Her Majesty said :—

'The Queen has asked Lord Malmesbury to explain in detail to Lord Derby her objections to the draft of Proclamation for India. The Queen would be glad if Lord Derby would write it himself in his excellent language, bearing in mind that it is a female Sovereign who speaks to more than one hundred millions of Eastern people on assuming the direct government over them, giving them pledges which her future reign is to redeem, and explaining the principles of her government. Such a document should breathe feelings of generosity, benevolence, and religious feeling, pointing out the privileges which the Indians will receive in being placed on an equality with the subjects of the British Crown, and the prosperity following in the train of civilization.'

"This very remarkable document clearly shows that Her Majesty took a great personal interest in the matter, and I have the authority of Lord Morley that 'the last sentence of the Proclamation was the Queen's'. Curiously, in spite of the declarations made in the said Proclamation, when many years later a controversy arose in regard to the amendment of the Code of Criminal Procedure about certain matters which I need not refer to in detail at present, a distinguished predecessor of my friend, the Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes—

[Mr. Sachchidananda Sinha.] [30TH JANUARY, 1920.]

Sir James Stephen—expressed certain views about it which gave a very rude shock to the people of this country. Sir James Stephen propounded the view that 'the Proclamation has no legal force whatever', and that though 'as a ceremonial, the Proclamation may have been proper, but in any other point of view it is a mere expression of sentiment and opinion'. This declaration of an ex-Law Member gave a profound shock to the people of this country who had come to regard Her Majesty's Proclamation as a solemn pledge given on a very memorable occasion. The matter naturally attracted very great attention, and I find from the Proceedings of this Council that when the debate came to be summed up by the President, the late Lord Ripon, to whom India will always be grateful for the many reforms he introduced, made these very striking observations on the views expressed by Sir James Stephen :—

'When Sir James Stephen goes on to maintain that a Proclamation issued by the Sovereign of England and of India is only a ceremonial . . . . . a mere formal utterance of sentimental phrases of no binding force or practical effect whatever, I cannot too emphatically express my dissent. To me it seems a very serious thing to put forth to the people of India a doctrine which renders worthless the solemn words of their Sovereign, and which converts her gracious promises . . . . into a hollow mockery.

'The document is not a treaty—it is not a diplomatic instrument; it is a declaration of principles of government which, if it is obligatory at all, is obligatory in respect to all to whom it is addressed The doctrine, therefore, to which Sir James Stephen has given the sanction of his authority I feel bound to repudiate to the utmost of my power It seems to me to be inconsistent with the character of my Sovereign and with the honour of my country.'

"These are noble words, nobly spoken. Some years later the matter again came up, in a different form, in this Council This time it was not about the effect or validity of the Proclamation as a whole, but about certain words in it and it was Lord Curzon, who, speaking in the course of his seventh Budget debate speech on the 29th of March, 1905, with reference to certain observations of my late lamented leader, Mr. Gokhale, said :—

'He (Mr. Gokhale) . . . . referred to the Act of 1833 and to the Queen's Proclamation of 1858. I am familiar with both those documents, and I also remember—which those who quote them sometimes forget—that the late Queen's words contained a qualification, not indeed modifying their generosity, but limiting their application by the necessary tests, firstly of practical expediency, and, secondly, of personal fitness'.

"My Lord, these words of Lord Curzon also were regarded by His Majesty's Indian subjects as unduly emphasising, if not practically imposing, an unwarranted limitation upon the Queen's Proclamation, and the matter attracted the attention of the then Secretary of State Mr. John (now Lord) Morley, with the result that shortly after Lord Curzon's pronouncement, Mr. Morley, speaking in the House of Commons, in 1906, said :—

'I think those words 'so far as may be' have been somewhat misinterpreted in the past. I do not believe that the Ministers who advised Queen Victoria in framing one of the most memorable documents in all our history meant those words to be construed in a narrow, restricted or pettifogging sense. I do not believe that Parliament ever intended this promise of the Queen should be construed in any but a liberal and generous sense'.

"I have referred, my Lord, briefly to the historical facts and incidents about Queen Victoria's Proclamation so that it may not be possible in future for any one either to impugn the validity or try to limit the scope either of Queen Victoria's Proclamation or the Proclamation of our King-Emperor George V.

"Now, my Lord, I do not think I should detain the Council at any length on a question of this character, which is non-controversial, and I shall say a few words about the Proclamation itself. The Proclamation, as I have said in the Resolution, lays down noble and lofty declarations of policy, and I particularly invite the attention of the Council to paragraph 5, for reading out the whole of which I make no apology :—

'With the same sympathy and with redoubled interest I shall watch the progress along this road. The path will not be easy and in the march towards the goal there will be need of perseverance and of mutual forbearance between all sections and races of my people in India.

'I am confident that those high qualities will be forthcoming. I rely on the new popular assemblies to interpret wisely the wishes of those whom they represent and not to forget the interests of the masses who cannot yet be admitted to franchise. I rely on the leaders of the people, the Ministers of the future, to face responsibility and endure misrepresentation, to sacrifice much for the common interest of the State, remembering that true patriotism transcends party and communal boundaries and, while retaining the confidence of the legislatures, to co-operate with my officers for the common good in sinking unessential differences and in maintaining the essential standards of a just and generous government. Equally do I rely upon my officers to respect their new colleagues and to work with them in harmony and kindliness; to assist the people and their representatives in an orderly advance towards free institutions; and to find in these new tasks a fresh opportunity to fulfil, as in the past, their highest purpose of faithful service to my people.'

"I do not think, my Lord, if I may say so without the least impertinence to my King-Emperor, it possible to have put better in one short paragraph ideas of such profound wisdom affecting the current and even future problems of this country. If only both the races in India—His Majesty's British subjects and Indian subjects will constantly keep these words of wisdom in mind and proceed upon the lines laid down by His Majesty, I am sure we shall be all the better for it in future.

"My Lord, I have been all my life a staunch—a very staunch—optimist; although I have for many years seen the country pass through stages of political repression which have placed, from time to time, a very great strain on our loyalty to our King-Emperor's Indian Government. But in spite of all that I have always believed that, notwithstanding the repressive measures and the misguided policies resorted to by the Indian Government, our King-Emperor's rule is the one great instrument of our political salvation, the one mighty lever by means of which the people of India will be raised to a higher destiny and to their right place in the scale of nations. It is, therefore, that I feel enthusiastic about the King-Emperor's declarations of policy in his great Proclamation. I am sure His Majesty's officers also will obey the Royal command and respect the Royal wishes. His Majesty very properly says that India is on the threshold of a momentous epoch in her history. 'A new era is opening,' says His Majesty and I for my part am quite prepared to obliterate the past if His Majesty's officers in this country also will turn over a new leaf. It seems to me, my Lord, that what is wanted now, is that all sections of the people, all His Majesty's subjects, should really co-operate in the right spirit. 'Unfortunately co-operation' in the past, if I may say so, has often been misconceived and misconstrued I am not talking of places like Calcutta, Madras or Bombay, or Provincial capitals where exists influential public opinion; but in the mufassal—which means practically the whole of India—co-operation has often been regarded by the officials as more or less synonymous with subservience on the part of non-officials. I earnestly hope that the words of His Majesty that his officers will in future treat their non-official colleagues as their equals will be kept in mind by them; and if this is done I am sure the chances of misunderstanding between the two sections will be materially reduced. The situation demands great forbearance on both sides, and I sincerely wish that both will rise to the occasion. It seems to me that in the critical period of our trial, both officials and non-officials should keep in mind the memorable words of the great American poet, Lowel, which are singularly appropriate in view of the King-Emperor's injunctions in his Royal Proclamation:—

'New occasions teach new duties, time makes ancient good uncouth;
They must upward, still and onward who would keep abreast of Truth;
Lo! before us gleam her camp-fires, we ourselves must pilgrims be;
Launch our Mayflower and steer boldly through the desperate winter sea,
Nor attempt the future's portals with the past's blood-rusted key.'"

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea:—"My Lord, I desire whole-heartedly to support the Resolution which has been moved by my Hon'ble friend. My Lord, it seems to me that there is peculiar appropriateness in our moving this Resolution and in this Council adopting it. We are a Legislative Council, the highest Legislative Council in the Indian Empire, and when we speak with a united voice we impart to it an authority 12-50 P.M.

[Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea.] [30TH JANUARY, 1920.]

which does not belong to any other similar body in the land. My Lord, it is our high and appointed function to guide the public mind of India and to give it a lead and a direction. We have performed this duty in the past with dignity and success. When after the publication of the Montagu-Chelmsford Scheme the country was distracted with a babel of tongues, we in this Legislative Council adopted a Resolution, a practically unanimous Resolution declaring that the recommendations contained in that Report represented a substantial and definite stage towards the progressive realisation of responsible government. Our lead was accepted by the country. Similar Resolutions were passed by other Legislative Councils, and they had a sobering effect upon public opinion; and now, my Lord, it is our duty to express a similar opinion with regard to the Royal Proclamation, which we hail, and I am sure the country will hail, with enthusiastic gratitude.

"My friend, Mr. Sinha, says in his Resolution that we desire to convey to His Majesty the expression of our dutiful homage, our loyal devotion, our profound gratitude for the Proclamation of the 23rd December last. My Lord, the Proclamation, in the terms of the Resolution, sets forth lofty principles of government and a great policy for the guidance of His Majesty's officers in order that they may help us to rear up the fabric of self-government in this country, so that India may take her place as an equal partner among the self-governing Dominions of the Crown.

"My Lord, that is only one aspect and perhaps not the only or the most important aspect of the Proclamation. I am sorry to have to say that my friend's Resolution makes two notable omissions. One of these he has tried to correct. The first point which I should like to advert to is the absence of all reference to the general amnesty granted to all political prisoners so far as is compatible with the public safety. My friend says that it is a transient feature. I hold that it is a permanent factor which will have a profound effect in tranquilising the situation and preparing the public mind for the successful working of the Reforms Scheme. It is of such paramount importance that in my judgment, and I am sure in the judgment of this Council, it ought to find a place in the Resolution itself.

"Another point which I desire to refer to, is that no mention is made in the Resolution of the service of Mr. Montagu and Lord Sinha, and whatever sentiment of gratitude we may feel or express towards them, a similar measure of gratitude is due to your Excellency for what you have done in connection with the Reforms Act.

"My Lord, Lord Sinha has let us into the secrets of his prison house. In one of the very first speeches which he delivered at Bombay he told us that the message of the 20th August 1917 was largely due to your Excellency's initiative, and that your Excellency came out to this country with that message in your pocket. Furthermore, but for your Excellency the Montagu-Chelmsford Report would not have been dealt with or accepted by the official world, in the way it has been. Lastly, when the Bill became law, your Excellency wired to the Secretary of State stating that you were prepared to work it in a loyal and cordial spirit. We thus owe a great deal to your Excellency in this connection. Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's. In politics let us be fair-minded, generous, just to all. My Lord, we have differences with your Excellency's government, profound differences in regard to Punjab and other matters. But here we are dealing with a Proclamation which concerns the Reforms Act and the issues connected therewith. In regard to the Reforms Act, your Excellency has rendered great service to India and therefore I repeat render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's. Our acknowledgments are due to your Excellency, and I am glad that I am able to make them publicly here from my place in the Legislative Council.

"Then, my Lord, there is another omission to which I desire to call my friend's attention. Nothing is said about the approaching visit of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales to this country. The Proclamation announces that fact; and your Excellency was pleased to allude to it in the concluding words of that speech to which we listened with so much interest and admiration.

[30TH JANUARY, 1920.] [Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea.]

I speak the sense of this Council, I may add the sense of my countrymen at large, indeed of all sections of the community, European and Indian, official and non official, when I say that we welcome the announcement and shall feel profoundly grateful for the visit, and that when His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales comes to India, he will receive an enthusiastic reception from all sections of our vast and multitudinous population. It will indeed be a welcome in conformity with our traditions and loyalty, and of devotion to the British connection.

"My Lord, the Proclamation is not merely a repository of lofty principles or of a noble policy; it is something more than that. It embodies an Act of Parliament galvanised into a living and beneficent instrument of government by the vivifying breath of sympathy and of lofty statesmanship. My Lord, the Proclamations of the past were more or less in the nature of pledges to be carried out in the future; the Proclamation of to-day stands on a different, and if I may be permitted to say so without irreverence, upon a higher footing. It confers a boon at once, and it is the greatest of earthly boons which it is in the power of any Government to confer, and the full measure of it is placed in sight and to be won by our own patriotic efforts and the vindication of our capacity for responsible government. My Lord, a gift is also a trial, and we shall soon be on our trial. A privilege connotes an obligation which we shall have adequately to discharge, not indeed as has been suggested in some quarters by an agitation to be started at once, but by solid work, by the justification of the trust that is reposed, and by the consolidation of the privilege that is conferred.

"My Lord, the hour for the final verdict will soon come; it may come in ten years, but what are ten years or even less in the life-time of a Nation? When it does come and judgment is pronounced before the eyes of all India and of the civilised world, I trust it will not be said of us that we were tried and found wanting.

"My Lord, what is the central idea of the Proclamation; what is it that imparts to it its distinctive character and complexion? It is set out in a few pregnant words by His Gracious Majesty. His Majesty recognises that the people of India have the full right to direct their own affairs and to safeguard their own interests. The whole of the Proclamation is addressed to the generation of a set of conditions which will secure the same. His Majesty invites us, the people of India, invites the European community, invites the officers of Government, to unite for the creation of an atmosphere of contentment, of peacefulness, of mutual trust and of mutual esteem which will pave the way for the harmonious and successful working of the Reforms Scheme. 'Let by-gones be by-gones' is the resounding note of the Proclamation. Let all irritation, all bitterness be obliterated, let co-operation be the watchword of the new era, and hence it is that a general amnesty has been proclaimed of all political prisoners, such as may be compatible with the public safety. My Lord, I have heard it said that your Excellency should not have been empowered with discretion to determine the manner, the measure and the extent to which the act of Royal clemency should be exercised. Those who argue in this way seem to forget what is the obvious, natural presumption, in this case, namely, that your Excellency must have been consulted, must have been a consenting party to the provisions of this act of clemency. For myself, I will say this, that clemency has been exercised on a generous scale; if there are complaints it is open to the aggrieved parties or their friends to bring them to the notice of the authorities, and I am sure they will receive sympathetic and careful consideration. My Lord, the Proclamation makes an appeal to all of us, it lays a special mandate upon the representatives of the educated community. We have been invited by His Majesty to safeguard the interests of the masses because they do not possess the franchise. Let me say this on behalf of my educated countrymen that we shall scrupulously carry out the Royal behest, not only because it is the mandate of our Sovereign, but also because it is entirely in accord with our own deep-rooted instincts and with the trend and tenour of our past activities.

"My Lord, the educated community ever since they have felt the first throbbings of national life, have constituted themselves as the appointed guardians and protectors of their uneducated countrymen. In their Congresses, in their Conferences, from their public platforms, in their public prints, they have in season and out of season advocated measures for the benefit of the masses. They have pressed for the extension of primary education, for the reduction of the Salt tax, reform of the Police and of the judicial systems, and other kindred matters calculated to ameliorate the condition of the masses. Therefore I repeat that in loyally carrying out the Royal mandate, we shall only continue to act in accordance with our aims and traditions.

"My Lord, the Proclamation announces the birth of a new era. It says 'a new era is opening. Let it begin with a common determination among my people and my officers to work together for a common purpose'. In so far as the educated community are concerned, we shall loyally carry out that mandate, and I am sure that the officers of Government and representatives of the European community will do the same. For good or for evil, for good as I believe, Indians and Europeans have got to live together in this country, as fellow-citizens of a common Empire. Let us live together in peace and amity, in the cultivation of those friendly relations which alone can make for our mutual advantage and our mutual prosperity. We, the educated community, are prepared to extend the hand of fellowship and friendship to the servants of the Government, to the representatives of the European community. I ask them to grasp it with alacrity. We are prepared to make the first advance. Are they prepared to reciprocate the sentiment and to do likewise? I am sure they will, for I have reason to believe that there is a movement going on in Calcutta for a good and friendly understanding between Europeans and Indians. As for the Civil Service, they have had a great past. They have built up the fabric of stable government in this country. A higher task now awaits them. They will be our helpmates, our comrades, our colleagues in the more exalted function of rearing up the nobler edifice of constitutional freedom. That will be their magnum opus, their greatest achievement, which will throw into the shade even the glory of their past work. Well, my Lord, one word more and I have done. Let Europeans and Indians, officials and non-officials, enter at the bidding of our Sovereign into a solemn League and Covenant of fellowship and friendship, consecrated by common and devoted service rendered to this great and ancient land, which in the case of many of us is the land of our birth, in the case of others the land of their adoption, and in the case of all, I hope, the land of their love whose destinies are indissolubly inter-linked with those of the greatest and the freest Empire that the world has ever seen, presided over by our gracious Sovereign whose Proclamation has enthroned him in the hearts of the people whom he loves so well. With these words, my Lord, I desire to support the Resolution."

[At this stage the Council adjourned for Lunch].

2-15 P.M. The Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis:—"My Lord, I beg to support this Resolution. Among the many measures and acts designed for the good government of India and for the contentment and encouragement of the people, none can lead to better results than the historic Proclamation of His Most Excellent Majesty, ushering in a substantial measure of constitutional reforms, having for their objective the gradual evolution of self-government in India. Like the Pronouncements of Queen Victoria and King Edward of blessed memory, His Majesty's Proclamation is marked not only by sympathy and love for the people, but by an active desire to help on their political development. British Indian history has been noted throughout by a benevolence on the part of the administrators, but the noblest part has always been played by the Monarchs of England. If I may be allowed to say so, this Proclamation of His Majesty expresses the Sovereign will and desire for generosity in British Indian Administration and self-respect in national policy. This country has always been a sacred trust to our Sovereigns; our interests have uniformly been a matter of personal concern with them. They have never lacked the will to adjust the Indian constitutional machinery to changed conditions. The Royal Proclamation under discussion is a welcome development of His Majesty's message of hope and sympathy of 1910. It will now be for us to justify His Majesty's hopes by a grateful appreciation of his motives, by the wisdom of our action, by mutual forbearance, and by the adjustment of conflicting interests of the different communities; to fulfil the high expectations of His Majesty's Ministers; and to fit ourselves by restraint, moderation, sacrifice, efficient discharge of duty and foresight for complete self-government within the next few years—a consummation so near the heart of His Majesty.

"My Lord, speaking on this Resolution, a reference cannot honestly be omitted to the authors and initiators of the Reforms with which it is associated. We must gratefully recall and appreciate the great and important services of Mr. Montagu, and, as has been well said by Lord Sinha in his speech in Bombay, the equally great and important part your Excellency played in the initial stages, especially the part you took in inviting Mr. Montagu to India, and in making him discuss these reforms with the people and enabling him to see for himself, how eager the people, the educated among them were for some advance in the constitutional development of the country. The King-Emperor has appealed for harmony and co-operation in actual working. Mr. Banerjea has, in the very excellent language at the end of his speech, appealed through this Council to his countrymen to give effect to this Sovereign desire of the King-Emperor. I beg to endorse every word he has said, and I hope that his powerful words will have the desired effect, and all parties and communities will join together to make the Reforms a great success."

The Hon'ble Mr. Jaffer :—"My Lord, we, in this country, have always hailed, with the highest reverence, and cherished with the deepest loyalty, the utterances and pronouncements of the British Sovereign with respect to the policy of His Majesty's Government, in connection with the status and progress of the People of India. With their traditional attachment to the Throne the Indian People have combined a reasoned conviction about the beneficence of their Sovereign, whose words have ever worked as a charm upon the minds of all classes and creeds in this country. The Proclamation of 1858, issued by the Queen Victoria of blessed memory, was held in India as a great Charter, in fact, as their Magna Charta. The gracious assurances, conveyed through that Charter, buoyed up the people with hopes, through favourable and unfavourable circumstances, and through reverses and disappointments. The Proclamation was issued at a time when the country had just emerged from a national calamity of a serious character, and the machinery of administration had been adopted to the changing surrounding conditions. It not only assuaged sore public feelings, but opened to the people new paths of racial equality and political opportunity, for national progress. For about two generations the Charter of 1858 was appealed to as a sacred source from which the rights of people flowed and popular faith in its promises seldom dimmed, though, in practice, it had become ineffective. 2-18 P.M.

"My Lord, the gracious Proclamation of His Majesty the King-Emperor, has a still greater significance, and will find an abiding place in the hearts of His Majesty's loyal subjects, of every class and creed. That Proclamation, coming, as it does, at a momentous stage in the history of this ancient land, breathes the spirit of generous appreciation for the aspirations of the Indian people, is instinct with sentiments of Imperial good-will and benevolence, and is full of inspiration for officials and non-officials, who have loyally and wholeheartedly to carry out the policy laid down for their guidance. That Proclamation has announced the inauguration of a new era, and interpreted, to Indian officials, the duty which devolves upon them in making the Reforms a success. My Lord, the Royal Proclamation heralds a new epoch in the development of India's destinies, and, therefore, very opportunely indicates the lines along which His Majesty's officials and Indians must work, if that epoch is to bring progress and happiness to the country. Opinions may differ as to the length to which the Reform Act will take us in the path of constitutional freedom, and of elevation of national status. But there is a general agreement that the Reforms constitute a substantial advance; and are calculated to give India full responsible government, and an equal status in the Empire, at an early date. In order that this consummation, should be successfully accomplished, His Majesty the King-Emperor has sent us an inspiring message, directing us officials and non-officials to work in harmony and to the best of our ability to make the most of the Reforms. On behalf of the people and especially of the Mahomedan community, whom I have the honour to represent in this Council, I beg leave to give the humble but strong assurance that the Royal Proclamation has evoked a loyal and hearty response, and I trust similar sentiments will prevail on the official side. The country is profoundly grateful to His Majesty for the gracious, inspiring, and encouraging Proclamation and this Council will only be doing a plain duty in giving expression to its own, and the people's abiding devotion to the Throne, in conveying the Nation's heartfelt gratitude to the King-Emperor for the generous and stimulating message. With these words, my Lord, I support the Resolution."

[Mr. Jaffer; Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi.] [30TH JANUARY, 1920.]

2-24 P.M. The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi :— "My Lord, I rise to accord my whole-hearted support to the Resolution which has just been placed before this Council and which, I am sure, will meet with its cordial and enthusiastic acceptance. The Proclamation of His Gracious Majesty the King-Emperor, issued on the eve of the last anniversary of the nativity of the Prince of Peace, marks an important landmark in the annals of British India, and is a unique event in the history of my land. It has been hailed with abounding gratitude by the people in all parts of the country and a profound impression, wholesome and inspiring in its effects, has been produced upon the public mind which augurs well for the success of the great constitutional experiment upon which the country is about to be embarked.

"Truly, it may be said that the Royal Proclamation of the 23rd December 1919, constitutes the greatest of our political and constitutional Charters. It has, therefore, been received with an outburst of loyalty from the people and a demonstration of good-will, the like of which has seldom, if ever, been witnessed in any generation. For the first time, it is felt that a Charter has been granted by the Sovereign, not of promises but of deeds, which, in the fulness of time, are destined to be fruitful of glorious results. Not many years ago, His Majesty the King-Emperor delivered to his people in India a message of 'Hope.' That message now stands vindicated by the Charter of living deeds which has recently been vouchsafed to us, and which will be generally regarded as one of the most precious milestones in our road to Progress.

"The Proclamation announced to us the Royal assent given to the most momentous measure ever introduced in the British Parliament for the governance of India, and definitely sets seal to the purpose of British policy in leading India to take her due share in the progressive march of Nations. For the first time in the history of this ancient land, India is now being made safe for democracy, and the first step towards this goal has now been definitely taken. England has done her duty by us now, and her august Sovereign has announced her new policy in this country in the most gracious Proclamation which is just now under our consideration, and it is our beholden duty to thank His Majesty for this Proclamation and to justify the trust and responsibility reposed on us.

"Then, again, my Lord, I must say that this Proclamation has cleared the air to a very gratifying extent in another direction. The amnesty granted to a very large number of detenues and political prisoners all over the country has taken a load of anxiety from the mind of the people. I have no doubt that most of these men will now prove themselves very useful members of society and worthy citizens of a new Empire, and justify the hopes of our King-Emperor.

[30TH JANUARY, 1920.] [Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi; Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy: Raja Sir Rampal Singh.]

'A new era is opening before us,' observes His Majesty. 'Let it begin with a common determination among my people and my officers to work together for a common people.' I hope we shall all be inspired by this Royal sentiment and succeed in creating a new and puissant state in the heart of Asia.

"Let us go forward to our new destiny with hope and confidence The terms in which the Proclamation has been couched betoken statesmanship of a high order, and show how the heart of the Sovereign beats in unison with the aspirations and feelings of his loyal subjects in this country. No more appropriate and graceful terms could be conceived to bring the Royal message right into the heart of the people, and impress them with the good-will and sympathy of the Sovereign. No more fitting prelude could be imagined to herald the new era with the best and most hopeful promises of success. From the hearts of millions of our people, therefore, goes forth the prayer to the footstool of the Almighty for the long life of His Majesty the King-Emperor who has enthroned himself in their love, esteem, and gratitude, and also for the prosperity of the great Empire to which it is our high privilege to belong. In conclusion, I desire to associate myself with what Mr. Banerjea has said about your Excellency's part in the introduction of the Reforms. Posterity will remember it. The same observations will apply to Mr. Montagu and to Lord Sinha also. In the name of the Zamindars and Landholders of Bengal, I, therefore, heartily support the Resolution and wish its unanimous acceptance and anxiously welcome the arrival of our Royal guest the Prince of Wales in India in November next"

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy :—" My Lord, as a 2-30 P. M. representative of the Indian commercial community I have pleasure in supporting the Resolution. The All-India Industrial and Commercial Conference, which held its session last week in Bombay, unanimously passed resolutions which I had the honour of putting from the Chair, expressing their heartfelt gratitude for the Royal Proclamation and also welcoming the Reforms. I have little to add to what I said on that occasion. I fully endorse the views expressed by my revered friend Mr. Banerjea in support of the Resolution, and I have great pleasure in supporting it. "

The Hon'ble Raja Sir Rampal Singh :—" My Lord, I desire 2-31 P.M. to associate myself with my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Sinha and to extend my cordial support to the Resolution that has been moved by him. The Royal Proclamation which has been issued by His Majesty is a new Charter of liberty to the Indian people, and we cannot too highly appreciate its contents. Its liberal and generous terms, the noble and lofty policy which it lays down, and the wise and far-reaching principles which it embodies, and above all the counsel of co-operation which it embraces, are all worthy of our Sovereign, and have gone deep into the hearts of the people. It is a matter of very great gratification to India that her beloved Sovereign is ever so watchful of the progress and advancement of his Indian subjects, and that India occupies so prominent and high a position in the heart of His Majesty. It now rests with India to prove worthy of the attainment of the goal that has been set before her. The full realisation of that goal is now in our hands and lies in the manner in which we may discharge the duties and responsibilities that have been thrown upon our shoulders by the Reforms Act. His Majesty, out of love and affection for the Indian people and the deep interest that he feels in their welfare, has not failed to point out the easiest and shortest route to reach that goal It is by co-operation not only between officials and non-officials, but also between the different communities inhabiting this land. His Majesty's gracious advice is that co-operation should be the keynote in the administration of this country. We Indians, as in duty bound, readily and whole-heartedly respond to the bidding. That advice shall be our guiding-star, and let us hope that no racial prejudices or uncalled-for patriotism or bureaucratic tendencies shall be allowed to mar the even progressive course of Reforms towards the desired goal."

[Major Malik Sir Umar Hayat Khan; Sardar Bahadur Sardar Sundar Singh Majithia.] [30TH JANUARY, 1920.]

2-35 P.M. The Hon'ble Major Malik Sir Umar Hayat Khan:—"My Lord, on behalf of the Muhammadans of the Punjab I cordially support the Resolution. They have fought in every theatre of the war with distinction and it was one of their class who earned the first Victoria Cross among the Indians. They have extensively contributed to the Forces of the Crown before and in the war, and have always stood the test even when asked to fight with their own co-religionists

"As they were instrumental in achieving the victory for the Allied Arms and the fame and name for India whose services have been amply recognised by His Gracious Majesty's Government by the Proclamation as well as various other recognitions namely allowing her a separate representation at the Peace Conference, etc., they should take the foremost place in offering their respectful thanks.

"It will not be out of place to put in a word on behalf of the martial classes of India in general, and the Punjabis in particular, that their representation on the Provincial as well as the Imperial Council should be properly vouchsafed to them. I have seen a large number of them lately and some of the leading representatives of these classes who are under the impression that their interests would not be adequately represented. But, I think, your Lordship's pronouncement this morning will cheer them up and we may safely hope that they will get their due share.

"I would strongly urge that some provision should be made that the business of the Councils, particularly in the Provinces at least for a time, may be carried in vernacular, so as to admit such members as are in close touch with the masses to be able to come forward to voice their feelings. These classes should be represented by their own men.

"If the above-mentioned classes which form the bulk of the population are given to understand that Government will not forget them even if they do not agitate but live as peace-loving subjects of His Majesty's Government, they will remain satisfied.

"In the end I would urge that rules should be so framed that when the boon of Reforms is bestowed upon the country, which is meant for the whole population, it may not go to any one class. In conclusion, I once again cordially support the Resolution."

2-38 P.M. The Hon'ble Sardar Bahadur Sardar Sundar Singh Majithia:—"My Lord, I rise to support the motion of my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Sinha and join with him in tendering on behalf on His Majesty's loyal subjects of the Punjab their dutiful thanks for the passing of this great historic measure which entrusts to the elected representatives of the people a definite share in the government of the country and points the way to full responsible government hereafter. Indians are proud to belong to the Empire of an Emperor whose house has always kept the welfare of its subjects at heart. In 1858 when the British possessions in the East passed under the direct sway of the Crown, the venerable Queen Empress, known as Queen Victoria the Good, issued a memorable Proclamation—the first Magna Charter of India by which Her Majesty assured to her Indian subjects full religious freedom and equal and impartial protection of the law and the maintenance, unimpared, of the principles of humane and equitable administration. The present epoch-making Proclamation is an event which will go down to posterity as a land-mark in the history of the Country, and will be remembered by the people with deep gratitude, thereby granting to them the right of directing and safeguarding of her interests and the control of her domestic affairs. This is the highest gift that a civilised Government could give to a people under its control.

"We know, my Lord, that it is a high responsibility which is being placed upon the shoulders of the people, and England can well be proud that she will see her charge performing these duties successfully. Her work in the past must eventually fit us for this. During the first stages, however, there may be mistakes made, but these are inevitable, as no child can learn to walk and stand upon its legs unless it has had the experience of a fall. Experience thus gained breeds confidence and future pitfalls are thereby avoided.

"In the advancement of a country time must necessarily elapse before the complicated machinery of government works smoothly and without any hitch or mishap in new hands. I am not one of those who will be disappointed at delays which in political advancement are inevitable. Everything will depend, my Lord, upon the spirit in which these Reforms are worked, and the devotion and perseverance that are brought to bear upon them. We, therefore, realise the necessity of full harmony, kindness and co-operation between the officers of Government and the representatives of the people. It is necessary that this should exist.

"I am, however, sorry to make one remark, but I would be failing in my duty to my community, to which I have the honour to belong, if I were to omit doing so. The Sikhs have felt very great disappointment at the share allotted to them under these Reforms in the various Councils, both Imperial and Provincial. There would have been no ground for complaint if the representation of all the communities had been based on numerical strength, but once the claims of important minorities for special representations having been conceded and recognised, my community feel very keenly that similar principles of representation have not been applied in their case as have been applied in the case of the Mohamedans where that community numerically forms a minority. Let me hope that something will still be done when rules are made under the Act to meet the claims of the community which has been foremost in their service to the Empire ever since their connection with the British.

"How I wish that the time may come when the people are able to rise higher above petty class differences, which unfortunately do exist at present in some form or other, and reach that ideal stage of advancement when the interests of the country will be equally dear to all communities, and all bear in mind in the words of the Proclamation that true patriotism transcends party and communal boundaries and that common good demands the sinking of unessential differences, not only in words but in deeds, and in the maintenance of essential standards of just and generous government; and that all, whether representatives of the people or the officers of the Government, work hand in hand for the common good of the country.

"I sincerely join my venerable friend the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea in his ideas and sentiments expressed to-day and in offering your Excellency and Lord Sinha our hearty and most sincere thanks for the memorable Act of Parliament.

"In offering my humble duty to His Majesty the King-Emperor and in extending our most sincere and cordial welcome to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the heir apparent to the throne, I heartily join in the prayer to the Almighty that by His Grace and Guidance India may follow the paths of wisdom and righteousness, and that this great and generous boon may lead to greater prosperity and contentment of the people, and that India may become a worthy member of the British Commonwealth."

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Mir Asad Ali:—"My Lord, I have much pleasure in associating myself with those who support the Resolution which is before the Council. In doing so, I may be permitted to say that the King-Emperor's Proclamation has been cordially received by the Indian communities of all shades of opinion. We are deeply grateful to His Imperial Majesty the King-Emperor for the Royal Proclamation, and this Proclamation is, in my opinion, largely due to your Excellency's initiative in the matter of Indian reforms. I think, my Lord, it is my duty to support the Resolution both on my own behalf and on behalf of my community, and I, therefore, tender 2-44 P.M.

[Khan Bahadur Mir Asad Ali; Mr. W. E. Crum; Mr. Nigel F. Paton; Raja of Kanika.] [30TH JANUARY, 1920.]

our sincere and loyal devotion to His Majesty the King-Emperor. As far as I know the Muhammadans of the Madras Presidency are quite satisfied with this Act, and they hope the Madras Government will have due regard to the safeguarding of their interests."

2-46 P.M. The Hon'ble Mr. W. E. Crum:—"My Lord, while discussions on the Government of India Bill were in progress we opposed many of its principles and we criticised certain of its details; but now a new scene has come. The Bill has become an Act and has received the Royal assent.

"I can assure Mr. Surendranath Banerjea and every other member of this Council that my community will do everything in its power to make the Act a real success; and I go further and I say that should our doubts prove unfounded and should this period of trial be a success, as we all hope it will be, India will not find us backward in agreeing to such further advancement as may be found advisable. My Lord, I have great pleasure in supporting this Resolution, because, I think, we must all agree that the future of India must lie in eventual responsible government and political freedom as an equal member of the British Commonwealth."

2-47 P.M. The Hon'ble Mr. Nigel F. Paton:—"My Lord, although in the very fullest sympathy with the Resolution before the Council I had not intended to say anything in regard to it. But after the stirring speech of Mr. Surendranath Banerjea I feel it to be my duty to say how whole-heartedly and unreservedly I respond to the appeal which he has made to our community for cooperation and unity. I endorse all that Mr. Crum has just said, and I think I can confidently assure the Council that nothing will be wanting on the part of the non-official European community to give reality and success to the far-reaching principles and intentions of the Reforms which have just been passed."

2-48 P.M. The Hon'ble Raja of Kanika:—"My Lord, I rise to give my most loyal and cordial support to the Resolution. The momentous Proclamation recently issued by His Gracious Majesty the King-Emperor of India has come to us as a new Charter of our rights and all India is deeply grateful for it. The deep and earnest sentiments of affection and the highest statesmanship which run through every line of the Proclamation could not fail to appeal to the hearts of the Indian people, and we, as members of this Council, would be failing in our duty if we did not take the earliest opportunity to record our sense of dutiful homage and loyal devotion to His Imperial Majesty for His gracious Proclamation. The felicitous language, my Lord, in which the Proclamation is couched is such as only a King could write, and the unique occasion of the Proclamation which marks a new epoch in the history of India has been most fittingly crowned by His Majesty's gracious Proclamation.

"My Lord, His Majesty, by his Proclamation has just made history and a very glorious chapter of Indian History has just now been ushered in. God grant that the earnest hopes expressed by His Majesty in the Proclamation might be realised in full so that the future history of India may be nobly written. A new epoch has just been reached in the Government of India for which let me add, all India is deeply grateful to your Excellency for the considerable share you had in formulating the new policy and in carrying it through. The new Government of India Act is, as His Majesty rightly points out, one of the greatest historic measures passed by the British Parliament. The Reform Act represents the first distinct and definite stage towards the progressive realisation of responsible government in India, and in the conception of this noble measure of government His Majesty had a very great share. It is therefore only meet and proper that this Council should convey to His Majesty its profound homage and its sense of deep and loyal gratitude for the Royal Proclamation of the 23rd December, 1919, which brings into existence a new era in the history of British rule in India by inaugurating the early stages of responsible government in the country.

" 'Ever since the welfare of India' His Majesty said 'was confided to us, it has been held as a sacred trust by our Royal House and Line.' All India will rise up, my Lord, to testify that that trust His Majesty has discharged in full, and has done even much more than that. The political amnesty which His Majesty has been pleased to grant, the message which His Majesty has been pleased to send to announce the impending visit of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales to this country in order to inaugurate the Reforms, the establishment of a Chamber of Princes to promote the common interests of British India and the Native States, and lastly, the Royal invitation to a new era of confidence, co-operation and mutual respect between the Government and the people of India are some of the essential features of His Majesty's gracious proclamation. Clemency, sympathy and Royal confidence in the people are the most prominent traits in the Proclamation. My Lord, India had even before abundant proofs of the sympathy of our Royal House for India. The words of His Majesty more than eight years ago in reply to the loyal address of the Calcutta University are still ringing in our ears. 'Six years ago,' said His Majesty, 'I sent to you from England a message of sympathy. To-day in India I give to India the watchword of Hope'.

"In less than a decade from that date, His Majesty has himself by His Royal assent to the Government of India Act, sent to India the first instalment of a concrete realisation of India's hopes and aspirations. We had been waiting these eight years for the realisation of our hopes, and now our hour of triumph has come. Our hopes have been crowned and they have been rightly crowned by a King. The faith that is in us has now been vindicated and India has now taken her proper place in the British Empire.

"My Lord, on behalf of the landholders of Bihar and Orissa I cordially support the Resolution."

The Hon'ble Saiyed Nawab Ali Chaudhri:—"On behalf of the Muhammadans of Bengal I cordially support the Resolution." 2-53 P.M.

The Hon'ble Sir William Marris:—"My Lord, it is apparent from the discussion that the Resolution which the Hon'ble Member has put forward and which has been supported by the Hon'ble Mr. Surendranath Banerjea in a speech of such moving eloquence, expresses feelings which every member of the Council, official as well as non-official, will share. It tenders, in the first place, due homage and loyal devotion to His Majesty the King-Emperor, which, if I may venture to say so with deference to the Hon'ble Mover, is on an occasion like this as real and sincere a thing on the lips of every official member of this Council as it is in the mouths of those for whom he spoke himself. The Resolution goes on to convey our humble thanks for the Royal Proclamation concerning the reforms, and for what another Hon'ble Member has rightly called the gracious and inspiring message embodied in it. It is, therefore, my Lord, a recommendation to Council which your Excellency's Government entirely welcome, and have no hesitation in accepting; and if I may say so it seems of the best augury that this discussion should have produced the very definite and unmistakeable offer of co-operation expressed by the Hon'ble Mr. Surendranath Banerjea and the spontaneous and speedy acceptance of that offer by the two representatives in this Council of the British Commercial community. 2-58 P.M.

"Therefore, my Lord, I am in the fortunate position of having no material to-day of a controversial nature to deal with. But although no breath of controversy has ruffled the discussion, the occasion on which the elected representatives in this Council take the first opportunity of expressing their gratitude for the reforms is an occasion the importance of which justifies and indeed requires that any one speaking on behalf of Government should do more than merely give utterance to a bare and curt formula of acceptance. For the Government of India too have their share in the satisfaction that has been expressed to-day. The Royal Proclamation marks, not indeed the attainment of the goal, but a perfectly definite stage in long and strenuous process. As His Majesty has himself reminded us, that process began 150 years ago with the Regulating Act; but in a very definite sense it entered upon a new and nearer stage nearly four years ago when your Excellency assumed office. It was your Lordship who gave a new seriousness and a new precision to this question, and it was the deliberations of your Excellency's Government in the year 1916 that laid the foundation upon which the new structure has been built. I need not, my Lord, review all the various stages of the building, nor recall and assess the part played in it by the various architects and masons who have from time to time been called in, some of them from afar afield. But at a time like this, when Council is expressing its gratitude and satisfaction at the prospect of speedily being merged in a newer and ampler constitution, it is no more than right and just that member after member should have risen to-day to recognise the part which the President of this Council has personally taken in the work, to remember, apart from anything else, how much the reforms owes their inception and their first strong impulse to the President of this Council.

"My Lord, critics who have encountered the new constitution in its later stages cannot be altogether expected to realise the labours that have gone to its making. The problem before the Government of this country was, so far as I know—and nothing that I have heard or read has convinced me to the contrary—unprecedented in political history. There was no practical experience to guide the makers of the new constitution They could, therefore, only follow the lines which they believed would secure the two distinct and equally necessary elements for which they were looking in their work—the permanence and security of the official system, for such period and to such extent as would enable the new material to form and harden and acquire the strength to carry the new weight imposed upon it, consistently at the same time with the freest and most generous opening of the door, within wide and at the same time definite limits, to the principle of responsibility. These were the dual aims before the builders; and now we have the verdict of Parliament given to the effect that no better scheme than theirs could have been devised.

"There remain, my Lord, complexities which are natural to a scheme which seeks to do so much, and these have given many people thought; and if I may venture to say so, it is at this point that His Majesty's Royal message conveys to all concerned a wise and timely message of caution and encouragement. It tells us in effect that the King-Emperor looks to us to make this new constitution a success by our joint efforts, and by our joint determination that it shall succeed. And after so much that has been said by non-official members to explain their attitude towards the reforms, I think the Council will perhaps expect me to say a word as to the spirit in which the officials approach the same task. So far as the Government of India is concerned, your Excellency has already made that clear. On the earliest possible occasion a message was sent that the Government of India were heartily glad that a decision had been reached and were absolutely ready to carry out loyalty the decision of Parliament. As regards the services as a whole, it seems to me that their attitude was put graphically and accurately by an official speaker the other day in another place, who said that the position of the official on the eve of this new development was that of a man who heard a rustling in the brush-wood about him and listened with expectancy to see what would come out, and whether it was a friend or foe who would emerge.

"Well, my Lord, after the re-assuring speeches we have heard from Mr. Banerjea and other non-officials, I do not think we need feel too much apprehension. They have promised us that the emerging figure shall be that of a friend. Nor, my Lord, are such doubts and anxieties as have been present in men's minds lately been all upon the one side. I have had evidence personally in the course of the last few weeks that thoughtful Indian gentlemen also are beginning to conjecture in advance something of the difficulties and responsibilities of Government, and to realise what it means to be called upon to weigh conflicting reasons, and to take difficult decisions, and to stand up to the criticism that inevitably follows in such cases. Well, it is good that that should be so, and that none of us should go into this great adventure too confidently or with too complete assurance, for it is going to make demands on all of us, and we have to see that we can rise to the occasion. The present Resolution, naturally enough, has been formulated by the Hon'ble Mover in a way that lays stress upon one special element in the situation, namely, the obligation laid upon the public services; but it is clear, I take it, from the fact that the Hon'ble Member read to us paragraph 5 of the Royal Proclamation that he attaches no particular significance to the way in which his Resolution is expressed; and that, though he has formally dwelt upon the future policy enjoined on His Majesty's officers, he has no intention of disregarding the other and equally important element of the situation. I am glad that he has made that clear that other non-official members have addressed themselves to the same point. For of course the two elements are there: and as to their relative importance I have no doubt as to what the considered judgment of the future historian will be. One speaker referred to the verdict that will be passed ten years hence: I do not know, my Lord, whether it will be then or later. But whenever it is that the cool constitutional historian, sympathetic but detached,—the Freeman, or a Bryce or Stubbs at some later day sits down to deliver judgment upon the development and working of this new constitution, I do not think that there is much doubt to which of the two elements in the scheme he will attach the greater importance. It will not be to the gradually receding principle of officialism, to what is occasionally called bureaucracy, and what ought to be called the administration of this country by agents under the control and guidance of Parliament; it will be to the new principle of growing responsibility judged both by its wider ideals and purposes, but also by the transformation of these into practical everyday decisions upon the hard facts of life. It is on this element of the new scheme that the future historical critic will mainly pronounce his verdict. Therefore, I think, it is of importance that Hon'ble Members should make it clear, as indeed they have done, that, in spite of the formula chosen by the Hon'ble Mover for his Resolution, they are by no means turning a blind eye to one of the two signals that have been flown to us from the Royal Flagship.

"After all, my Lord, we can none of us add to or detract from His Imperial Majesty's words We both have a serious and difficult part to play, and our business is to go into it believing that we shall succeed. We stand at the threshold of a great undertaking, and the best way in which we can prepare ourselves to lay hands to it, is to search out our own hearts and resolve earnestly that so far as lies in us it shall not fail."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur B. N. Sarma:—"My Lord, we are 3-6 P.M. grateful to the Hon'ble Sir William Marris for the assurance he has given us on behalf of the officials. I am glad that Mr. Sinha has given us an opportunity of expressing to His Majesty our feelings of loyal devotion and an assurance on behalf of the people and the officials that mutual co-operation and good-will would be forthcoming in launching the new Scheme of Reforms and in trying to make it a success. We are prepared to let by-gones be by-gones as far as may be, and we shall try to realise the necessity for practising the precepts which have been set out so graciously in the Proclamation for our guidance. If in this country we had parties and party leaders it would not have been necessary to make more than one or two speeches, but under the present circumstances every presidency, every community, is expected to voice its feelings, to say what it understands to be the underlying spirit of this Proclamation, in order that the message may go forth to the throne, a united message from officials and non-officials alike of promise of good-will, unity and harmony. It is for this reason that I crave your indulgence when I speak for a few minutes on behalf of Madras and on behalf of the Andhra community. I associate myself heartily with the Resolution and why do I do so? Because for the first time has been laid down the principle that the people of India have a right to direct their own affairs and to safeguard their own interests. That is the noble message of this Proclamation, and it has been for the first time recognised by Statute as well as by Royal Proclamation. We have now an authoritative exposition of what the King understands by the Reform Act which has been placed on the Statute-book; we have an authoritative exposition of the principles underlying the British Parliament's attitude towards and relations with India. We have read the Royal assurance that the Act is meant to confer upon the people as a first step a definite share in the government of this country. Whatever the critics of the Act may tell me, I shall tell them that any other interpretation conflicting with the devolution of a definite power would be wrong, unmeaning and ultra vires and that the bright future of the enjoying of the benefits of full responsible government is assured to us. We are grateful for the assurance that India's security against foreign aggression will be a matter of Imperial concern and pride.' We appreciate fully the spirit of that passage, the underlying meaning of it and we may assure His Majesty that India will be equally forward in considering that the safety of the British Empire will be the foremost concern of the Indian people also. There is one other matter to which I desire to allude. We are grateful that a machinery has been set up by which the Indian Native States and the British Empire in India can work together in the consideration of questions of common concern. It is in that light that we the people of India welcome the formation of the Chamber of Princes. Now, my Lord, after what has been said here, it is unnecessary on my part to assure His Majesty that when the Prince of Wales sets his foot on India's soil, from every part of the country there will go forth to him a welcome unparalleled in its past history, a welcome not less sincere and not less grateful than was or may be accorded to him by any other Dominion in the British Empire. Something has been said in the course of this debate with regard to the Reform Act. I would ask your Excellency and the Government of India to bear with the people if in the midst of turmoil and trouble and in the absence of full information they are unable to appreciate fully the share of your Excellency and the Government in the passing of the Reform Act. I am sure that when the days of controversy are over satisfactory rules are framed and the machinery is in full working order, India will be in a position to accord to your Excellency and the Government their due share, their due meed of praise in placing this reform measure of legislation on the Statute-book. Meanwhile, let me express my firm conviction that but for the attitude taken up by the Government of India and you, my Lord, in particular, the Reform Act of 1919 would not have come about for sometime to come, in whatever shape it may have emerged then, I therefore whole-heartedly associate myself with the Resolution."

3-14 P.M. The Hon'ble Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru:—"My Lord, I desire to thank my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sinha for having given this Council an opportunity of expressing their thanks on such a momentous question as this. I contend that Mr. Sinha never intended to minimise the importance or significance of the Royal Proclamation, by cmitting any reference to the amnesty or the other important features. Knowing Mr. Sinha as I do, I know that his object was to lay particular stress upon one or two items, I hope I am not misquoting him, that he intended to devote his attention to the more prominent features of the Proclamation. There is no doubt that every member of this Council, every politician in this country has been speaking of this Proclamation as a State document of the highest possible importance. This is not for the first time in the British rule in India that the King has chosen to address the people. We well remember the Proclamation of the year 1858 which has been always associated and will continue to be associated with the honoured name of Queen Victoria. That message was given to the people of this country after they had emerged from a terrible struggle. Now, my Lord, the message which has now been sent to the people of this country comes at a supreme moment in our history. We all know that during the last three or four years we have been passing through a phase of agitation which has been characterised as being sometimes bitter and disingenuous. Now it is at a juncture like this that the Royal word has been uttered. My Lord, I should think, if you consider the inherited tendencies of the people of this country, you will find that for one man who talks of the Government of India Act of 1833 or of 1858, there are 99 men who still talk of the Proclamation of 1858. Similarly, it seems to me that twenty-five years hence, while the average man will not be able at once to point to the year when the recent Reform Act was passed by Parliament, every man will be able to point back with pride and gratification to the Proclamation which has been issued recently by His Majesty the King. The thread of devotion and loyalty to the Crown has always been running right through our history, and it seems to me that whoever was responsible for making this suggestion, he must be congratulated, for the Royal Proclamation seems to me to be a stroke of genius. You may find fault with the Reform Act. It may be that there are some politicians in this country to whom the Reform Act is what the red rag is to the bull. It may be that the Reform Act is disappointing, unsatisfactory or unacceptable, you may find fault with the Act, but, my Lord, I have yet to know whether there is a single individual among the 315 millions of the people of this country who will venture to treat the Royal Proclamation in the spirit in which it is possible to treat the Act, even though it may happen to have been passed by Parliament. It is on these grounds that I particularly welcome the Royal Proclamation, for let us not forget as one very great constitutional writer has said that 'it is the happiness and glory of British Constitution that the Crown stands above and beyond foreign politics.' Therefore, the principle of self-government has now been conceded not merely by an Act of Parliament, but also by the Royal word, and the Sovereign's word stands applied to it, and howsoever democratic we may be now, howsoever democratic we may be in future, we cannot get over our faith, our implicit faith, in the sanctity of the Royal word. It is for that reason that I, as an Indian, attach particular importance to this Royal Proclamation

"Now, my Lord, I do not wish to enter into any discussion of the merits or demerits of the Reform Act. So far as I am concerned, every one knows that I have been a strong supporter of the Montagu-Chelmsford Scheme and also a strong supporter of the Bill as it has been passed by Parliament. I think, therefore, it would be perfectly useless for me to refer to that. I will only content myself by saying to those who think that the Reform Act is disappointing, that although it may not give us everything that they wanted or we wanted, yet it gives us a substantial measure of self-government in the living present, and a very earnest promise and pledge of the remainder to follow in course of time. My Lord, if I may be permitted to say so, it took us nearly thirty years to formulate our political ideal. For twenty-five years what were we doing? We wanted individual reforms in the administration of the country, or we wanted the introduction and expansion of representative institutions in the country, but it was during the period of the war that the national ambition and aspiration of the country found a concrete expression in the demand for responsible self-government for the country. That demand has been most authoritatively met not merely by the famous announcement of 20th August 1917, not merely by the Act of Parliament, but also by the Royal word of the Sovereign to which we Indians attach so much importance. It may be that we are not still in the promised land, but we are very near it, at any rate That is my belief and that is my faith, and we may not have to wait as long as some people think before we actually enter the promised land. But, meanwhile, my Lord, I am not one of those who believe that once the Statute has been passed or the Proclamation has been issued our difficulties are over. Personally, I am one of those who think that we are at the commencement of our difficulties now. So far, we, the educated classes in this country, have been indulging in criticism, I believe honest criticism, of the bureaucracy in this country. But now the time has come when we must be prepared to share the criticism with the bureaucracy, and those of us who thought that if we were in power we could have ushered into existence the millenium in no time when a sun-dried bureaucrat had failed in spite of his efforts, will now realise the seriousness of the situation when they are face to face with concrete problems of administration. This does not mean that I am hopeless or that I have not faith in the capacity of my countrymen. My Lord, if this country has produced during the last thirty years men like the late Mr. Justice Ranade, like one of the most distinguished members of this Council—I refer to the late Mr. Gokhale, if this country has produced men like Lord Sinha of whom we are genuinely proud, I see no reason to despair that the future has in store for us men of the same type and probably with greater and higher ideals. But, my Lord, I also realise fully the significance of the message which His Majesty has been pleased to send out to us, and I do not think that it is possible for any one of us, speaking on an occasion like this, to light-heartedly treat that word 'co-operation'. Well, as my friend Mr. Sinha said, 'co-operation' was a word frequently used before the Reform Act was passed and before the Royal Proclamation was issued. But I believe with my friend Mr. Sinha that in the past 'co-operation' did not bear the same meaning to the non-official mind as it did to the official mind. What we want now is real, genuine and honest co-operation between one section of the community and another, between the officials and non-officials. We have had this afternoon an illustration of the spirit which is now going to permeate this country. The Hon'ble Mr. Crum and the Hon'ble Mr. Paton, representing their communities, have extended to us the hand of good fellowship, and let me assure them on behalf of the Indian community that they will not find us wanting or slow in grasping their hand, for although my claim to be a nationalist may be contested in certain quarters, I do believe, my Lord, that the basis of true nationalism in this country must be the recognition of the fact that the India of the future is not going to be the India of the Hindu or the India of the Muhammedan or of the European, but the India of all of them taken together. Now, my Lord, it is in that sense that I should like to approach the whole question of co-operation. Co-operation, however, does not mean that all criticism should be stifled. Probably criticism will be there and will be keener in future, but it is the underlying spirit which matters; it is not the criticism really which so much matters; we may criticise to destroy, we may criticise to construct, but it all depends upon how and in what spirit we criticise. Therefore, my Lord, we have no doubt that the sentiments which have been expressed this afternoon are very encouraging. It has been said with regard to the Civil Service, 'Oh, well, but the Civil Service is not going to co-operate with us' My Lord, if I may be permitted to say so, when I was working on the Reforms Committee, I happened to be associated with three or four sun-dried civilians. We started with a great deal of suspicion against each of them in the beginning. But, my Lord, as month passed after month, I began to realise that the civilian was after all not so bad, and probably he began to realise that the so-called Indian agitator was not so foolish or so dangerous as he had been supposed to be, and in the end what did we find? We found that there was a free, honest exchange of views between one member and another, and although it is not true to say that we were agreed on all possible questions, yet, whenever we disagreed, we thought it was possible that there might be something in the opposite view. My Lord, it is because we have kept aloof from each other so far that we have been in the habit of misunderstanding each other. My Lord, I venture to think that when we come near each other and when we begin to work with each other, we shall find that a new spirit will pervade the entire administration, and that the civilian will consider it as much his pride and privilege to render an account of his conduct to the electorate in this country, and it will be our pride and privilege to render a true and faithful account to the electorate. But after all if responsible government has any true meaning about it, it will not be the government of any oligarchy, howsoever able or distinguished it might be, but it must be the government of the people at large, and I believe that it will be recognised on all hands that the true test of our success will be to what extent we are able to give satisfaction to the people whose interests will be in our charge, and to what extent we earn their good-will. On these grounds, my Lord, I strongly support the Resolution of my friend Mr. Sinha."

1 P.M. The Hon'ble Mr. K. V. Rangaswami Ayyangar:—" My Lord, speaking on behalf of the Zamindars and Ryotwari Landholders of the Madras Presidency, I heartily join in tendering grateful thanks to His Imperial Majesty. His Majesty's gracious words, pregnant with genuine solicitude for the hapless people of India, have come not a moment too soon as a balm for the afflicted hearts. The House of the late Queen of revered memory has always shown generous affection and consideration for the Princes and peoples of India, and His present Majesty has maintained the traditions of his House in a manner which will entitle him to the gratitude of posterity in no ordinary measure.

"We have noted with grateful satisfaction the instantaneous change consequent upon the Royal Proclamation, in the surcharged atmosphere of the country which has reassured us that we are not left in the lurch. For some years past there was growing a feeling in India which was akin to unredeemed pessimism, and each was saying to the other 'Is our poor country beneath Royal notice? Is this a no-man's land?' It is a fact subject to no doubt that in a country, bereft of the fostering care of the King, the happiness of the people is nobody's special concern. However, we are now rejoiced to discover that we are not a forlorn people.

"The love effect of the Proclamation can be appraised only by comparing the general state of the country immediately before and after its publication. Who can fail to recall the dark pessimism of the people, which was turned, as if by a magic wand, to a revival of hope, dignified cheerfulness, and gratitude. The Proclamation came like gentle rain from heaven to slake the thirst of parched up fields to make the seedling shoot up and look upwards instead of being downcast

"Let me not dwell on the dismal chapter of events preceding the Royal Proclamation. I have adverted to it with the object of emphasising the effect of His Imperial Majesty's gracious action. It undoubtedly is the dawn of a new, and let us devoutly hope, a happy Era.

"Your Excellency has, in the universal demonstrations of grateful rejoicings in the country, a sure proof that we, Indians, who have been described as irreconcileables are not wholly so We have not abandoned our genuinely oriental traits; a modest display of kindness and the conferment of insignificant favours can bow us with a load of gratitude. We seem truculent, when despair goads us into sullenness, but really we are a great deal more susceptible to kindness than most people not fully familiar with us can imagine. But I am sure your Excellency has no longer any doubt that nothing is easier than satisfying the Indian politician and his followers. Many have attempted to probe into the psychology of the Indian temperament for the universal rejoicings, but I may be permitted to observe that we are not like creditors of an insolvent firm who are satisfied with one anna in the rupee, and it would also be unkind to conclude that the spirit of the village Bazarman of over-rating wares and demanding a big price with the object of successful huckstering permeates the Indian politicians and that they always overstate their case. Our irreducible minimum remains unaffected. We reiterate the demand formulated by the nineteen members of this Council as our demand has all the moral sanction on its side, and we feel that it cannot be legitimately withheld. But now we have ample reasons for our present attitude feeling highly grateful to our Sovereign for our status has been recognised, and the goal of British policy has been announced, for which our thanks are due to your Excellency and we are made to feel that we are no longer a forlorn people. More than all, the gracious grant of clemency to political offenders has given us a genuine outburst of joy. But I have to say that the exercise of Royal clemency must be on a Royal scale to satisfy the hopes raised by the Proclamation Let the land overflow with gratitude, and let all bitterness be submerged in kindness. It is a golden opportunity for statesmanship to sweep off all political blunders and misunderstandings with a view to let the new Era be a reality and not a mere phrase. Various parts of India are still agitated over certain people's detention whose release must be a definite source of pacification.

"My Lord, it is a matter of profound satisfaction to us all to find that the Punjab happenings of April last have at last engaged the attention of the

[Mr. K. V. Rangaswami Ayyangar; Mr. Sachchidananda Sinha.] [30TH JANUARY, 1920.]

British public. My Hon'ble friend Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea has taken the Hon'ble Mr. Sinha to task for not including certain items, and I have to blame him for not thanking the British public and the British press for ventilating the Punjab occurrences and for showing a great solicitude in our welfare. It is a matter which has strengthened our faith in British fairness and justice, and has saved us from what threatened to be a disappointment. We can now hope to see justice done in due course.

"The Proclamation has not merely served to strengthen the bonds between Great Britain and India, but has deepened the people's affection for the Sovereign. Staunch loyalty to the Crown is an inherited virtue of the oriental, and is so deeply ingrained in his nature that Indians are shocked at the behaviour of our late enemies to sign away the sacredness of their Emperor's person. Our affection to the person of the Sovereign is never of this time-serving type and is characteristic of the mighty nation.

"Coming to the question of co-operation, I feel that it is our duty to obey His Majesty's injunction loyally to its fullest extent without allowing the plastic rules of interpretation to alter the spirit of the King's pronouncement.

"His Imperial Majesty has offered us all another opportunity to retrieve all past errors and to begin the work of Indian re-generation in a spirit of cordial co-operation, and I have no hesitation in saying that whosoever, whether an official or otherwise, is guilty of disrespect to the Royal word is guilty of a very grave infraction, little short of treason. Let us all join in promoting reciprocal amity and good-will for the benefit of India which feeds and maintains us and to which we owe an inviolable duty."

3-39 P.M. The Hon'ble Mr. Sachchidananda Sinha:—"My Lord, I think I have every reason to congratulate myself on the trend of the discussion on the Resolution I have had the honour to move to-day. Barring a few trifling criticisms, the tone of the debate has been in approval of the lines on which I placed the Resolution before this Council. I shall, therefore, be very brief in these my final observations. My thanks are particularly due to the Hon'ble Sir William Marris, who spoke on behalf of your Lordship's Government, for the view he took alike of the Resolution and the speech I made in explaining it. He was certainly right in thinking that my intention in reading the whole of paragraph 5 of His Majesty's Proclamation was to show that the responsibility created was not at all one-sided. I certainly accept the position that the responsibility cast upon non-official Indians is now as much, if not greater, than that on the officials, and I am grateful to Sir William for taking that sympathetic and correct view in regard to my submissions on this particular point.

"Next, I desire to thank my esteemed colleagues the Hon'ble Mr. Crum and the Hon'ble Mr. Paton for the assurance they have given, that whatever their attitude may have been in the past towards Indian reforms and Indian problems, whatever their view of the Government of India Act when it was a Bill, now that the measure has received the Royal assent, they, as the representatives of the most influential section of the British non-officials in the country, will do all that lies in their power to make the Act a success by co-operating with the Indians, as His Majesty expects them to do. This assurance, my Lord, will certainly go a long way towards improving matters, and in the light of it we are prepared to forgive our Indo-British fellow-subjects for their regrettable attitude in the past in keeping themselves aloof from Indian public affairs.

"I have now a word to say about the criticisms which have been made upon my Resolution by my esteemed friend and leader, the Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea. I think—if I may say so—that the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea was a trifle hypercritical in the attitude he adopted towards my Resolution. But I make no grievance of that. I have sat at his feet for the last thirty years, and it is his privilege as my political guru to take me to task for my real or alleged omissions. I find, however, that the Hon'ble Mr. Rangaswami Ayyangar also has found fault with me for my alleged omission in not having complimented the British press on its attitude in exposing matters connected with the Punjab embroglio. Well, then, all I can say is that when the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea and the Hon'ble Mr. Ayyangar see eye to eye on any particular question,—even on my omissions—there is hope for Mother India.

"Coming specifically to Mr Banerjea's criticisms, I must frankly state that I was guilty of a serious omission in not saying anything in my opening speech in regard to the visit of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales My explanation, which I am sure the Council will accept, is this. I had brought with me a cutting of His Royal Highness' speech at the Mansion House to show what a sympathetic interest he was taking in the affairs of this country, and I was going to say that India will accord him a right royal welcome when he comes here. It was only because I found my time was up that I did not refer to the matter. If in your Excellency's discretion as President any clause on the subject may be added to the Resolution, I shall be the first person to accept it. But in regard to the two other points on which Mr. Banerjea found fault with me, I have, after a careful consideration, to state that I cannot see my way to yield to his contentions on them. The first was about the amnesty. Although as I said, the amnesty is at present a very important matter, yet I did not feel justified in bringing it up as a part of my Resolution, because, after all, it is a matter of ephemeral interest. Mr. Banerjea's other criticism that I did not thank certain gentlemen, including your Excellency, for the part taken by your Excellency and those others in the framing of the Reform Scheme, seems to me even more untenable. I must frankly state that your Excellency being in the chair, it is placing me at some disadvantage by raising personal issues. But I may say at once that it never occurred to me, nor does it occur to me now even after hearing Mr. Banerjea, that I have been guilty of any impropriety in not thanking certain gentlemen.—His Majesty's subjects—when I am bringing up a Resolution thanking His Majesty himself . . .

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea:—"My Lord, I rise to a point of order. I did not use the word impropriety. I should be very sorry to use that word in regard to Mr. Sinha's Resolution. I used the word omission, and I think it is an exceedingly mild word to use in connection with any Resolution or statement." 3-11 P.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. Sachchidananda Sinha:—"The Members of this Council are quite aware of the mildness of Mr. Banerjea's criticism, but after his explanation I make no grievance of it. My submission is that I yield to none in my admiration for the gentlemen who have been instrumental in bringing about the reforms, but I submit that there is a time and place for everything, and it did not and does not strike me that this was the right time to do so. If Mr. Banerjea will care to bring up a Resolution on the subject I shall be as willing as he is to render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's. I do not think I shall be justified in detaining the Council any longer, and with these few observations, I shall ask the Council to accept this Resolution".

The Resolution was put and adopted.

The Council adjourned to Wednesday, the 4th February 1920, at 11 A.M.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 5th February 1920, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. The western disturbance, which passed into northwest India towards the end of the previous week, gave between the 29th and 31st January widespread rain or snow in northeast Baluchistan, the North-West Frontier Province, Kashmir and the Punjab and Kumaon hills, with a few falls in the east Punjab plains. Another disturbance from the west entered north-west India on the 2nd February; in conjunction with an inflow of humid winds from the Bay, it caused between the 2nd and 4th a burst of widespread rain or snow in northern India with the exception of Rajputana and lower Sind. There were also local falls of rain in the east of the United Provinces and of Assam on the 1st February.

Burma.—Myitkyina was the only station that received rain during the week.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Rainfall was nearly general in Assam, Bengal and Chota Nagpur on the 3rd February, and in Bihar on the 2nd and 3rd February; rain fell locally or at a few stations on three other days in Assam, on two other days in Bengal and on one other day in Bihar. In Orissa rain was limited to a few falls.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—In the Kumaon hills rain or snow was nearly general on the 30th January and 2nd, 3rd and 4th February, while in the plains in the west of the United Provinces rainfall was nearly general on the 3rd February and occurred at a few stations on two other days. In the east of the United Provinces there was nearly general rain on the 2nd and 3rd February, and local rain on one other day. In Central India East rain fell locally on the 1st February. Over the rest of the division weather was dry.

Northwest India.—Nearly general rain fell in the plains of the east and north Punjab on the 3rd February and a few falls occurred on three other days, while in the hills snowfall was nearly general on the 30th January and 3rd February and there were local falls on two other days. In the southwest Punjab there was nearly general rain on the 2nd February and local rain on the 3rd. In Kashmir snowfall was nearly general on the 30th January and occurred locally or at a few stations on the remaining days except the 1st February. In the North-West Frontier Province there was nearly general rain or snow on the 29th January and 3rd February, and local rain or snow on 30th January and 2nd February, while a few falls were recorded on one other day. In Baluchistan rain or snow was confined to the north-eastern districts, where it was nearly general on the 30th January and 2nd February, and was either local or occurred at a few stations on two other days. Over the rest of the division the week was rainless except for a moderate fall at Jacobabad and a light fall at Jaipur.

The Peninsula.—A few scattered falls occurred in southeast Madras during the week; elsewhere there was no rain.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 31st January 1920.

Burma.—The week was practically rainless. Reaping of winter rice has been practically completed. Threshing and winnowing are still proceeding in certain districts in Upper Burma. Cultivation of island and other miscellaneous crops and transplanting of spring rice are proceeding normally. Reaping of cold weather crops is progressing. Standing crops are generally in good condition. Livestock is generally healthy. In the Amherst district the number of persons on relief works and of those receiving gratuitous relief remains unchanged at 2,450 and 13, respectively. The price of unhusked rice in Rangoon remains unchanged at Rs. 179—Re. 1 below the control price. The market for white rice (specials) is steady at Rs. 445.

Assam.—During the week the weather was seasonable and favourable. Pressing of sugarcane, harvesting of mustard and pulses, pruning of tea, transplanting of spring rice in Sylhet, ploughing for autumn rice and jute and preparation of lands for jhuming are in progress. The outturn of sugarcane, mustard and pulses is fair to good and prospects of other crops are fair. Cattle disease is reported from two districts. The price of common rice has risen in the Surma Valley.

Bengal.—The week was practically rainless. Transplanting of summer paddy is approaching completion. Harvesting of sugarcane, potatoes, early oilseeds and pulses continues. Preparation of lands for autumn paddy and jute is progressing in Eastern Bengal. Prospects of standing crops are generally favourable. The average price of common rice has risen by 1·69 per cent.

Bihar and Orissa.—During the week there was no rain except very light showers in parts of Gaya and Darbhanga. Threshing of paddy and pressing of sugarcane continue. Standing crops are, on the whole, doing well. More rain is wanted in parts of Tirhut, Gaya, Bhagalpur, the Santal Parganas and Palamau. The price of common rice has risen in eight districts, fallen in five and remained stationary in the remaining districts. The average price of local common rice at headquarters was 6·36 seers a rupee against 6·43 seers in the preceding week and that of maize was 7·51 seers against 7·26 seers in the preceding week. Cattle disease is reported from nine districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa and Chota Nagpur is good.

United Provinces.—During the week the rainfall was insignificant. Preparation of lands for and sowing of extra crops and sugarcane, irrigation of spring crops and poppy and pressing of sugarcane continue. Standing crops are doing well. Prospects are favourable. The condition of agricultural stock is satisfactory. Fodder, water and market supplies are sufficient. Prices are mostly stationary.

Punjab.—During the week light rain fell in all the reporting districts except in parts of the south, east and west where it is wanted. The rain was beneficial to standing spring crops which are good on irrigated and average on unirrigated areas. Pressing of sugarcane continues. The yield is normal to above normal. Torsa is being harvested. The yield is generally normal. Cattle are healthy and fodder and water are generally sufficient. Prices are generally stationary and above scarcity rates. Prices of wheat :—Rawalpindi $5\frac{3}{4}$, Ambala $6\frac{5}{16}$, Lyallpur $6\frac{1}{4}$, Ferozepore and Lahore $6\frac{3}{4}$ seers per rupee.

North-West Frontier Province.—During the week good rain fell throughout the Province. Harvesting of sugarcane is in progress with outturn average. The condition of standing crops is average. Price of wheat :—Peshawar $7\frac{1}{16}$ and Dera Ismail Khan $6\frac{1}{4}$ seers per rupee.

Jammu.—During the week the rainfall was fairly good. Prices are stationary. Fodder is sufficient.

Kashmir.—Report not received.

Rajputana.—During the week the weather was cool and clear. Crops are being irrigated and are in good condition. Prospects are good. Fodder and water are ample. The condition of agricultural stock is good. Prices are falling slightly in a few places and elsewhere they are stationary.

Central India.—The rainfall during the week was partial in Gwalior. Harvesting of autumn crops continues in Indore, Malwa and the Southern States. Picking of cotton continues in Gwalior, Indore and the Southern States. Spring crops are being weeded and irrigated in Bundelkhand, Malwa and the Southern States. Sowing and pressing of sugarcane continues in Gwalior. Lands are being prepared for autumn crops in the Southern States. Standing crops with their probable outturn are fair to good. Agricultural stock is generally good except for cattle disease in Gwalior, Indore, Baghelkhand and the Southern States. Prices are high. Opium is being irrigated and weeded in Gwalior, Indore and Dhar.

Central Provinces.—During the week the weather has been cool and occasionally cloudy. Agricultural operations for autumn crops are practically over. Pulses have been slightly damaged by insects and cloudy weather in places, but otherwise the condition of spring crops is good and prospects are decidedly favourable. Cattle are generally in good condition but disease is reported in parts of certain districts. Fodder and water are adequate. Gram rose in Betul and juar fell in Buldana by one seer per rupee. Other variations are irregular and unimportant.

Feudatory States :—Prospects of spring crops are favourable.

Bombay.—During the week slight rain fell in Sukkur, Upper Sind Frontier, Kolhapur, Bijapur and Belgaum. Crops have been slightly damaged by insects in Sholapur and Bijapur and are flourishing elsewhere. Harvesting is progressing in some places. Cotton picking continues in parts of Sind and Gujarat. Fodder and water are adequate. Agricultural stock is sufficient and in good condition. Prices of food-grains are high but generally steady.

Hyderabad.—Isolated showers were received during the week. The average fall in the dominions was 5 cents. Spring crops are in fair to good condition but they have been damaged by insects in parts of Gulbarga, Raichur, Mahbubnagar, Nalgonda and Warangal. Harvesting has commenced in parts of the Usmanabad, Mahbubnagar, Nalgonda, Warangal and Adilabad districts. Late rice crop is in fair to good condition and is being weeded and irrigated. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient. Cattle disease is prevalent in the Raichur, Mahbubnagar, Nalgonda, Warangal, Adilabad and Karimnagar districts. Prices of grains continue to be high. Juar is selling at 4 seers a rupee in the Raichur, Mahbubnagar and Adilabad districts.

The weekly report on famine is as follows :—Famine conditions are still prevalent in parts of Tilangana. Distress is likely to increase. The number of persons on relief works is fluctuating. Prices of grains show an upward tendency. Juar is selling at 6¼ seers and rice at 3½ seers per rupee. Numbers in thousands :—works 7, gratuitous relief 2, total 9.

Mysore.—The week was almost rainless. Standing crops are in good condition. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available. Prices of food-grains are high and fluctuating. Prospects of the season are good. Harvesting of rice, ragi and sugarcane is proceeding with outturn fair to good.

Coorg.—Light rain fell during the week in some parts. Threshing of rice and picking of coffee continue. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder for cattle are available. The public health is fair. Prices of food-grains are high. Large exports to Malabar of paddy continue.

Madras.—During the week the rainfall was light to moderate in the Circars and the hills. Standing crops are fair generally. The outturn of harvested paddy and dry crops is generally fair. Fresh sowings of paddy and dry crops are progressing. The condition of cattle is good generally. Water is generally sufficient. Pasture and fodder are sufficient generally. Prices are generally sufficient with a tendency of dry grains to rise. Prospects are fair generally.

EMIGRATION.

Delhi, the 5th February 1920.

APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO EXAMINE THE SCHEME OF COLONISATION IN BRITISH COLONIES.

RESOLUTION.

Two deputations from British Colonies are at present visiting India with the object of discussing with the Government of India and with the public questions connected with the immigration and settlement of Indian labourers in their colonies. The first deputation comes from British Guiana and consists of—

Dr. J. J. Nunan, LL.D., K.C.;
Mr. J. A. Luckhoo;
Dr. W. Hewley Wharton;
Mr. Parbho Sawh; and
Mr. Thomas Greenwood.

The second deputation comes from Fiji and consists of—

His Lordship the Bishop of Polynesia; and Mr. R. S. D. Rankine, C.M.G.

2. In accordance with the Resolution moved by the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Banerjee in the Imperial Legislative Council on February 4th, and accepted by Government, His Excellency the Governor General in Council is pleased to appoint a Committee consisting of—

The Hon'ble Mr. Srinivasa Sastri;
The Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Eduljee Wacha;
The Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Banerjee;
The Hon'ble Mr. S. Sinha;
The Hon'ble Mr. K. K. Chanda;
The Hon'ble Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru;
The Hon'ble Mr. B. N. Sarma;
The Hon'ble Mir Asad Ali Khan Bahadur; and
The Hon'ble Mr. W. E. Crum.

3. The Committee will assemble at Delhi as soon as possible, and is requested—

(a) to examine the scheme of colonisation which the Deputation from British Guiana desire to put forward, and to report thereon and make recommendations to the Government of India, and

(b) to meet the Deputation from Fiji, and to examine any proposals which they may put forward, and to report thereon and make recommendations to the Government of India.

Before commencing their enquiries, the Committee is instructed in accordance with the Resolution to examine the credentials of the deputations.

Ordered that a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to all members of the Committee and to Dr. J. J. Nunan, LL.D., K.C., and Mr. R. S. D. Rankine, C.M.G.

Ordered also that the Resolution be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

FINANCE DEPARTMENT.

ACCOUNTS AND FINANCE.
Mint.

Delhi, the 2nd February 1920.

RESOLUTION RE THE REMOVAL OF THE CALCUTTA MINT TO ANOTHER SITE.

RESOLUTION.

At the meeting of the Imperial Legislative Council held on the 16th September 1919 the Honourable Mr. Crum moved the following resolution:—

"That this Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that the question of removing the Calcutta Mint to another site be taken into consideration."

The resolution was accepted with the reservation that its acceptance in no way committed the Government of India to agreeing to the Mint's final removal if they were not provided with an equally suitable site for all purposes or if on enquiry it was considered that there were other obvious weighty objections which prevented the proposal being proceeded with. To hold the enquiry then promised, the Government of India have decided to appoint a small committee consisting of the following:—

Mr. W. Alder, O.B.E., I.C.S., Controller of Currency . President.

Mr. W. O. Grazebrook, nominated by the Bengal Chamber of Commerce.
The Hon'ble Rai Sitanath Roy Bahadur, nominated by the Bengal National Chamber of Commerce.
Mr. S. W. Goode, I.C.S., nominated by the Government of Bengal.
} Members.

The Government of India have no doubt that public bodies such as the Calcutta Corporation and the Calcutta Improvement Trust, who are interested in the question, will be glad to take the opportunity of representing their views before the Committee.

2. The Committee thus appointed has been requested to report on the following points:—

(i) the advisability of removing the Calcutta Mint from its present site,

(ii) if such removal is considered desirable, the site to which it should be removed, the efficiency of the Mint, the proper discharge of Government business and the convenience of the public being duly considered, and

(iii) if the removal be recommended, the probable cost of the operation.

ORDERED that the resolution be published in the Gazette of India and that a copy be forwarded to the Government of Bengal and also to the President and Members of the Committee.

Officiating Secretary to the Government of India.

NOTICES.

THE PATENT OFFICE, 1, COUNCIL HOUSE STREET, CALCUTTA.

Public room, open 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Saturdays, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

1. All communications relating to applications for patents and for registration of designs under the Indian Patents and Designs Act (II of 1911), or in continuation of applications under the Inventions and Designs Act (V of 1888) must be made in English and addressed to the Controller of Patents and Designs, 1, Council House Street, Calcutta. Documents sent by post should be carefully packed and a full address given in all communications.

2. Directions for the guidance of inventors and others are given in the Patent Office Handbook (price one rupee) which contains the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, the Indian Patents and Designs Rules, 1912, the Indian Patents and Designs (Temporary Rules) Act, 1915, the Indian Patents and Designs (Temporary) Rules, 1915, together with current regulations and instructions. These should be consulted before an application is made to the Controller.

3. Advice. The Patent Office cannot undertake (1) to give opinions on the interpretation of Patent Law, or on the advisability of protecting inventions and designs or on their infringement; (2) to make searches in respect of information available in the public room; (3) to recommend any particular agent; or (4) to assist in the disposal of inventions. Models are not required unless specially asked for. Drawings must be on tracing cloth and the Rules and Instructions for the preparation of drawings as given in the Handbook should be strictly followed. A provisional patent cannot be secured under the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911.

4. Applicants are warned that the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, is in force in British India only, and patents granted under it do not extend to the United Kingdom or any of the British possessions. The International Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property does not include India. For information regarding patents in countries other than India application should be made to the patent offices in the countries concerned.

5. Fees are payable in cash and must be received in the Patent Office within the time allowed by the Acts. When cheques are offered in payment of fees, it must be clearly understood that the office cannot hold itself responsible for any delay that may occur in the collection of cash on the cheques; any cheque not payable in Calcutta is subject to commission for which due allowance should be made. In cases where it is not possible to have the fees handed in at the Patent Office, it is preferable to send them by money-order or postal order payable at Calcutta to the Controller of Patents and Designs, and to advise him that they have been so sent. Stamps will not be received in payment of fees.

6. Trade and property marks and names are not registered and medicines are not patented under the Indian Patents and Designs Act. There is no provision of Law in British India for their registration. Neither does this Act deal with pictures, photographs, etc., for which copyright is obtainable under the Indian Copyright Act, 1914.

7. Printed Specifications of applications, which have been accepted, are published within about three weeks after acceptance has been notified in the Gazette of India. These specifications can be purchased at the Patent Office at a uniform price of 8 annas per copy; and may be seen free of charge, together with other publications of the Patent Office, at the following places:—

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL, REVENUE DEPARTMENT.
Land Acquisition Branch.

NOTIFICATION.

The 24th January 1920.

No. 884-L.A.—The following agreement is published under Section 42 of the Land Acquisition Act, I of 1894, for general information.

M. C. McALPIN,
Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

Stamp.

Eight annas.

MEMORANDUM OF AGREEMENT made this 24th day of January One thousand nine hundred and twenty BETWEEN THE CALCUTTA ELECTRIC SUPPLY CORPORATION LIMITED, a Company (registered under the English Companies Act) and having its registered office at 2, Broad Street Place in the City of London in England and having a branch office at 6, Old Post Office Street, Calcutta (hereinafter called " the Company ") of the one part and THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL (hereinafter called " the Secretary of State ") of the other part.

WHEREAS for the purpose of the construction of a Distributing Station for the supply of electrical energy the Company has applied to the Government of Bengal for the acquisition under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act I of 1894, of the piece or parcel of land containing ·2975 of an acre or thereabouts being part of the Revenue Holding No. 136 Municipal No. 4, Watgunge Street, Kidderpore in the suburbs of Calcutta in the District of the 24-Parganas and more particularly described in the Schedule hereto and delineated in the plan* hereunto annexed.

AND WHEREAS the said Government of Bengal being satisfied by an enquiry held under Section 40 of the said Act that the proposed acquisition is needed for the aforesaid purpose and that the said work is likely to prove useful to the public, has consented to acquire on behalf of the Company the piece or parcel of land hereinbefore described.

AND WHEREAS the said Government of Bengal has required the Company under the provisions of Section 41 of the abovementioned Act to enter into the agreement with the Secretary of State hereinafter contained.

NOW THIS INDENTURE WITNESSETH THAT IT IS HEREBY AGREED AND DECLARED as follows :—

1. On demand the Company shall and will pay to the said Government of Bengal all and every compensation in respect of the said land tendered, paid or awarded or to be tendered, paid or awarded by the Collector under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, or by the Court to which a reference under Part III of the said Act may be made, or by the Court or Courts to which an appeal from the award of the said Court may be preferred and all costs, charges and expenses of the proceedings in the aforesaid Courts, or otherwise incidental to the proposed acquisition or payable in respect thereof under the provisions of the said Act.

2. On demand made by the said Collector the obligations of the Company under the last preceding Clause not being thereby limited the Company shall and will deposit with the said Collector such sum or sums of money as in his discretion the said Collector may in anticipation estimate to be necessary for the purposes mentioned in the last preceding Clause.

3. On payment by the Company of all demands under the foregoing first Clause (or, in the discretion of the said Government of Bengal on deposit by the Company of all estimated amounts as provided in the second Clause), but not before possession shall have been taken under the provisions of the abovementioned Act, the Secretary of State shall make over possession of the said land to the Company and shall execute and do all such acts and deeds as may be necessary and proper for effectually vesting the same in the Company.

4. The said land shall be held by the Company for the purpose of such supply of electrical energy as is hereinbefore mentioned and purposes incidental thereto and without the sanction in writing of the said Government of Bengal first had and obtained for no other purpose whatsoever.

* Not published herewith but may be inspected in the office of the Land Acquisition Collector, at No. 2, Commercial Buildings, Calcutta.

5. The necessary buildings and plant for the said supply of electrical energy shall be completed (and fully equipped in all respects ready for use) within two years from the date on which possession of the said land shall have been given to the Company.

6. Should the said Distributing Station not be completed (and fully equipped in all respects ready for use) within the period stated in the last preceding Clause or within such further period as in its discretion may be prescribed or allowed by the said Government of Bengal or should the said land at any time thereafter cease for a period of six consecutive months, to be held and used or cease to be required for the purpose or purposes provided for in the foregoing fourth clause then and in any such case, the said Government may summarily re-enter upon and take possession of the said land, and thereupon the interest of the Company in the said land shall absolutely cease and determine.

7. On taking such possession the said Government may sell or otherwise deal with the said land as it may think proper. Should the said Government sell the said land the said Government after deducting the expenses incurred in connection with the said taking of possession and with such sale shall pay the proceeds to the Company. Should the said Government on taking possession, decide not to sell the land, it shall repay to the Company all sums received from the Company in respect of all and every compensation as provided in the foregoing first clause (less the statutory allowance of 15 per cent.) but will not repay any sums paid and received on account of costs, charges and expenses.

8. The public shall be entitled to the supply of electrical energy on the following terms, that is to say, subject to the provisions of The Indian Electricity Act 1910 and Rules made thereunder or to the provisions of any other legislative enactment or rules in that behalf for the time being in force, the public in the vicinity of the said Distributing Station (when completed) shall be entitled to be supplied with electrical energy from such Station within the limits of the power available at such Station and in pursuance of the terms of the Electric License granted to the Company.

9. Should any dispute or difference arise touching or concerning the subject matter of this agreement or any covenant clause or thing herein contained the same shall be referred to the said Government of Bengal and the opinion and decision of the said Government upon such dispute or difference shall be final and conclusive and binding on the parties hereto.

THE SCHEDULE ABOVE REFERRED TO.

All that piece or parcel of land measuring more or less ·2975 acre (decimal 2975 of an acre) and situate at Municipal No. 4, Watgunge Street, Kidderpore, in the Suburbs of Calcutta in the District of the 24-Parganas, registration district 24-Parganas sub-district Sadar (Alipore), and being part of Revenue Holding No. 136 and which land is bounded as follows: On the North by the premises Nos. 34, 34-1 and 35, Moonshigunge Road and portion of premises No 4, Watgunge Street, on the East by premises Nos 34, 34-1 and 35, Moonshigunge Road, premises Nos. 143-1, 141, Circular Garden Reach Road, premises Nos. 1, 3 and part of 4, Watgunge Street, on the South partly by Nos. 3 and 1, Watgunge Street and by portion of No. 4, Watgunge Street and premises No. 143-1 and 141, Circular Garden Reach Road and partly by the drain of Watgunge Street, on the West by part of No. 4, Watgunge Street, and which said piece of land is more particularly delineated and shown on the plan hereto annexed and thereon marked by a red boundary line.

IN WITNESS whereof the duly constituted attorney of the Company and the Secretary of State for India in Council have hereunto set their respective hands and seals the day and year first above written.

Signed sealed and delivered by John Thompson Mertens and Edgar Charles Simon the duly constituted joint attorneys for the Calcutta Electric Supply Corporation Limited in the presence of—

FOREIGN SEA-BORNE TRADE DURING DECEMBER, 1919.

REVIEW of the SEA-BORNE TRADE of BRITISH INDIA for the month of December, 1919, and for the nine months ended December, 1919.

FOREIGN COMMERCE.

DECEMBER AND THE NINE MONTHS ENDED DECEMBER, 1919.

Large favourable balance of trade.

The trade returns of British India for December, 1919, as compared with those of its immediate predecessor, showed decreases in the value of the import, export, and re-export trade. It should be stated here that there were several non-working days in December. The total imports of merchandise in December, 1919, were valued at R17,31 lakhs as against R17,58 lakhs in the preceding month, and the value of the exports was R25,70 lakhs as against R29,19 lakhs and of the re-exports R1,30 lakhs as against R1,43 lakhs. Imports decreased by about 2 per cent, exports by 12 per cent, and re-exports by 9 per cent. As compared with December, 1918, imports and exports showed increases of 31 per cent and 62 per cent respectively, while re-exports showed a decrease of 10 per cent. A review of the trade of the nine months ended December, 1919, will be found on page 7.

The most interesting features of the month, as compared with the corresponding month of the previous year, were (1) a large decrease in the exports of rice, castor seed, linseed, raw wool, opium, and tanned hides, (2) a considerable increase in the shipments of tea, lac, raw hides and skins, raw cotton, raw jute, cotton twist and yarn, and jute gunny bags and cloth, (3) a large increase in the imports of kerosene oil, white and coloured piecegoods, motor cars and motor cycles, and sheets and plates (iron or steel), and (4) a large decrease in the imports of cotton twist and yarn.

The quantity of wheat shipped in December, 1919, was only 887 tons as against 3,203 tons in December, 1918. The shipments were made mainly to Arabia, Asiatic Turkey, and Persia. Shipments of rice not in the husk decreased to 37,453 tons from 114,856 tons in December, 1918. TRADE BY PROVINCES.

The total imports and exports, including re-exports, of private merchandise into and from the several maritime provinces during the month of December, 1919, as compared with those of November, 1919, are stated below :—

	Imports		Exports, including re-exports
	November, 1919	December, 1919	November, 1919	December, 1919
	R (lakhs)	R (lakhs)	R (lakhs)	R (lakhs)

Burma	1,48	1,14	1,90	2,30
Total	17,58	17,31	30,62	27,00

Under imports, Bombay showed an increase of 14 per cent, Sind of 13 per cent, and Madras of 9 per cent, while Bengal showed a decrease of 14 per cent and Burma of 23 per cent. Under exports, Bombay showed an increase of 2 per cent, Sind of 14 per cent, and Burma of 21 per cent, while Bengal showed a decrease of 25 per cent and Madras of 16 per cent. These comparisons are with the preceding month (November, 1919).

BALANCE OF TRADE.

India's balance of trade during the nine months ended December, 1919, as compared with the corresponding period of 1918, is shown in the appended table. The table takes into account the imports and exports of merchandise, and the net imports of treasure, on private account only :—

In the nine months ended December, 1919, the excess of exports over imports of private merchandise was R97,76 lakhs, as against R61,48 lakhs in the corresponding period of 1918, and the net imports of treasure on private account (excluding transactions which do not enter into the balance of trade) were R2,55 lakhs, as against R8 lakhs in the preceding year. The net exports (merchandise and treasure) were thus R95,21 lakhs, as against R61,40 lakhs in 1918. The balance of trade, so far as shown by the statistics of merchandise, treasure, Council Bills, and Enfaced Rupee paper, was R64,20 lakhs in favour of India in the nine months, April to December, 1919, as compared with R35,03 lakhs in the corresponding period of 1918.

* Exclusive of Government transactions.
† Exclude transactions which do not enter into the balance of trade.
‡ In addition, Telegraphic Transfers for R2,26 lakhs from the Bank of Montreal were paid during September to December, 1919.
(a) Demand rate.
(b) Approximate.

The amount of Council Bills and Telegraphic Transfers paid in India in the nine months ended December, 1919, was R30,22 lakhs, all of which were paid through the Treasuries, except R15,000 which were paid through the Paper Currency Reserve, but Reverse Council Bills were sold to the extent of R20 lakhs during the period, the net imports of funds by Council Bills thus amounting to R30,02 lakhs. In the nine months ended December, 1918, the amount of Council Bills and Telegraphic Transfers was R30,91 lakhs, of which R21,51 lakhs were paid through the Paper Currency Reserve and R9,40 lakhs through the Treasuries. In the nine months ended December, 1917, the amount paid was R42,16 lakhs. As regards Enfaced Rupee paper, R3 lakhs represented the amount of paper enfaced to London and R77 lakhs the amount re-transferred from London in the nine months, April to December, 1919, while in the corresponding period of 1918, R10 lakhs represented the amount of paper enfaced to London and R17 lakhs the amount re-transferred from London.

MOVEMENTS OF GOLD AND SILVER (PRIVATE AND GOVERNMENT).

In the month of December, 1919, the imports of gold were valued at R5,37 lakhs (over R5,36 lakhs being in the form of bullion and nearly R1 lakh in sovereigns and other gold coin), as against nearly R4,54 lakhs in November, 1919. There were no exports of gold in December, 1919, as in the preceding month.

The imports of silver during the month under report were valued at over R1 lakh, entirely on private account, as against R29 lakhs on both private and Government account in November, 1919. The exports of silver in December, 1919, were valued at about R24 lakhs, of which nearly R1 lakh was on Government account, as against R22,500, entirely on Government account, in the preceding month.

DECLARED VALUE PER UNIT OF SELECTED ARTICLES.

The customs duty figures are an index to the volume of the import trade only, since under exports hides and skins (raw), jute, rice, and tea only are subject to duty. In the nine months ended December, 1919, the import duties increased to over R10,26 lakhs from nearly R9,22 lakhs in the same period of 1918, while the export duties rose to nearly R3,42 lakhs from about R2,81 lakhs. The grand total of gross Indian sea and land customs revenue (excluding salt revenue) in the nine months, April to December, 1919, amounted to about R15,19 lakhs, as compared with R13,59 lakhs in the corresponding period of the preceding year.

SHIPPING.

The following table shows the number and tonnage (net register tonnage) of vessels which entered and cleared with cargoes at ports in British India during December, 1919, as compared with November, 1919, and December, 1918 and 1913:—

The total tonnage entered and cleared with cargoes in December, 1919, as compared with that in the preceding month (November, 1919) and in the corresponding month of 1913 and 1918, is shown in the last column of the table above. In the month of December, 1919, there were 289 arrivals* and 384 sailings† with cargoes in and from India. As regards tonnage, if a comparison be made with December, 1913, the corresponding pre-war month, it will be seen that there was a decrease in the tonnage of vessels cleared with cargoes of 100,078 tons or 15 per cent. The decrease in the entries (with cargoes) amounted to 116,285 tons or 19 per cent.

The shipping clearances with cargoes in the foreign trade from the ports of British India in the nine months, April to December, 1919, as compared with the corresponding period of 1913, i.e., before the war broke out, were as follows:—

	Tonnage (net register tonnage) clearances in the nine months, April to December.
	1913 (Pre-war period)	1919
British ships (including British Indian)	4,657,700	3,694,395
Foreign ships	1,386,354	679,580
Total	6,044,063	4,373 975

In 1919, as against 1913, the total tonnage clearances with cargoes declined 28 per cent. In 1913 the British (including British Indian) tonnage was 77 per cent and foreign tonnage 23 per cent of the total, while in 1919 the British (including British Indian) tonnage was 84 per cent and foreign tonnage 16 per cent.

Railway Statistics.

Railway statistics, like the import and export statistics above, are a valuable index to the general movement of trade throughout the country, and show that the earnings from 1st April, 1919, to 3rd January, 1920, were R64,71 lakhs, as against R64,00 lakhs in the corresponding period of 1918-19, or an increase of R71 lakhs.

Trade of Aden in December, 1919.

The grand total value of the imports and exports of merchandise, by sea, into and from the port of Aden amounted to R2,17 lakhs in the month of December, and R14,42 lakhs in the nine months ended December, 1919. The value of the principal articles of import and export was as follows:—

COTTON PRESS RETURN.

No. 8 of 1919-20.

PREFATORY NOTE.

The Cotton Season, 1919-20.

The provisional estimate of the cotton crop of 1919-20 is 5,670,000 bales* on an area of 22,199,000 acres,* as compared with 3,671,000 bales on an area of 20,497,000 acres, the final estimates of last year. There is an increase of 54 per cent in the outturn. The estimate for British provinces (including States within provincial boundaries) is 4,347,000 bales, an increase of 56 per cent over last year's figures. There were 889,000 bales of cotton pressed in the pressing factories, and 150,000 bales of unpressed cotton received in the spinning mills in British provinces, from 1st September to 31st December, 1919, as against 539,000 bales and 133,000 bales, respectively, during the corresponding period of last year, showing an increase of 65 per cent in the case of presses, and of 13 per cent in the case of mills. Too much stress should not be laid on the accuracy of these returns as a means of checking the forecast estimates of outturn, as there is at present no system in vogue of furnishing complete returns from all presses and mills.

*Revised after the issue of the Third Cotton Forecast, 1919-20, on the 23rd December 1919.

I.—Cotton Press Return for India in the half-month ending 31st December, 1919.

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA

CALCUTTA, JANUARY 31, 1920.

First WHEAT Forecast, 1919-20.

THIS forecast is based on reports received from Provinces and States, which comprise 98·6 per cent of the total wheat acreage of India. The returns refer to all the important wheat-growing areas except Kashmir. The figures set out in this report generally relate to the area sown up to the beginning of January.

The total area sown is estimated at 27,429,000 acres, as against 23,448,000 acres (revised figure) at this time last year, or an increase of 17 per cent. As compared with the revised final area (23,806,000 acres) of last year, the present estimate shows an increase of 15 per cent.

Weather conditions at sowing time were generally favourable, and the present condition of the crop is reported to be good.

The detailed figures for the Provinces and States are shown below :—

Punjab (32·9 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The area sown up to the end of December amounts to 9,372,000 acres (872,000 acres being in the Indian States), which is 23 per cent above the estimate (revised) at this time last year. From the middle of July to the early part of September, the monsoon was almost general and gave good rains. The rainfall in September and October was much below normal and relative humidity was low, so that evaporation of soil moisture must have been very large. Conditions for wheat sowings were thus only moderate, except on the canals in which the supply during September to November was above average. The month of October was very dry, while November had average humidity; but the rains received during December and in the second week of January have greatly benefited the standing crops, which are generally good on irrigated and average on unirrigated areas.

United Provinces (21·2 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The area sown is estimated at 6,500,000 acres, as against 5,800,000 acres estimated at this time last year, showing an increase of 12 per cent. There was heavy rain throughout the provinces in the first two weeks of September. Good rain fell during the first week of October in the eastern districts and Bundelkhand. The month of November was practically rainless except the third week during which light showers fell in the Meerut, Agra, and the greater part of the Rohilkhand divisions. Light showers in the second week of December were followed by a heavy and general rainfall in the fourth week, although over a large part the amount received was small. The season, on the whole, was favourable for sowings as there was sufficient moisture in the soil almost everywhere. Germination is reported to have been good, and the crop so far promises well. This relates to the condition of the crop up to the 13th January.

Central Provinces and Berar (11·4 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The area sown is estimated at 3,228,000 acres (137,000 acres being in six Feudatory States), as against 3,106,000 acres at this time last year, showing an increase of 4 per cent. The increase in area is shared by all the districts in the Central Provinces, and is due to the favourable seasonal conditions at sowing time. The monsoon started well and moderate to heavy showers were received till the beginning of September and they were well distributed. From the second week of September to the first week of October, the rainfall was much lighter. Little or no rain fell during the rest of that month except in Nagpur and Chhattisgarh, while in November and December only light showers were received with opportune breaks. Sowings were generally successful and germination was on the whole good; but owing to bad seed and defective germination, some resowing was necessary in parts of Chhindwara, Wardha, Nagpur, and Balaghat. Light showers were received in the beginning of January which have benefited the crop, and the prospects are at present excellent.

Bombay and Sind (8·7 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The information is up to the

(a) Including Indian States.

(b) Revised figure.

5th January and is incomplete. The area so far sown is estimated at 1,610,000 acres (373,000 acres being in the Indian States excluding Baroda) as against 855,000 acres estimated at this time last year, or an increase of 88 per cent. Favourable late rains in the Presidency proper and good inundation in Sind led to extended cultivation everywhere under the stimulus of high prices. The increase would have been still higher but for more attention having been paid to the growth of kharif grains and fodder for which there was a keener demand owing to last year's scarcity The crop is so far doing well in Gujarat and North Deccan. In South and East Deccan and in parts of Karnatak, the crop has suffered in places to some extent from cloudy weather. The Sind crop has germinated well and seedlings are so far healthy.

Bihar and Orissa (3·9 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The area sown up to the middle of January is reported to be 1,147,000 acres, as against 924.000 acres at this time last year, showing an increase of 24 per cent. The increase is due to favourable weather conditions at the time of sowing. In September and October the rainfall was generally above the normal except in a few districts. In November the rainfall was ill distributed and below the normal except in Singhbhum and Orissa. In December light showers were received in parts of the province. The condition of the standing crop is, on the whole, good More rain is, however, wanted in parts of Tirhut, Bhagalpur, and Purnea for the satisfactory growth of the crop

North-West Frontier Province (3·3 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The area sown up to the end of December is estimated at 905,000 acres, as against 842,000 acres estimated at this time last year, or an increase of 7 per cent. The increase is attributed to timely rainfall and consequent flow of hill torrents The season on the whole, has been favourable, and the prospects of the crop are reported to be generally normal

Bengal (0·4 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The area sown is 116,000 acres, as against 110,000 acres estimated at this time last year, or an increase of 5 per cent. The rainfall in September was sufficient for the preparatory tillage which began at the normal time. Light rain in October delayed sowings to a certain extent but rainfall in the middle of November greatly facilitated the operation. The present condition and prospects of the crop are generally reported to be fair.

Delhi (0·1 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The area sown is estimated at 37,000 acres, as against 6,000 acres reported at this time last year The season has been a favourable one, and the general condition of both the irrigated and unirrigated crops is good.

Ajmer-Merwara (0·1 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The area so far sown is reported to be 15,000 acres, as against 4,000 acres reported at this time last year. Sowings are still in progress.

Central India (10·2 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The total area sown is estimated at 2,784,000 acres, which is 6 per cent above the estimate made at this time last year. The condition of the crop is reported to be generally good. The detailed figures are as follows :—

Hyderabad (3·2 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The area sown is estimated at 750,000 acres. as against 655,000 acres reported at this time last year, or an increase of 14 per cent. Late rains being irregular, sowings were delayed and consequently some area was left uncultivated. Weather conditions are so far favourable and the crop is generally reported to be doing well.

Rajputana (2·9 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The total area sown is estimated at 883.000 acres, as against 884.000 acres at this time last year. The condition of the crop is reported to be fair to good. Detailed figures for the States are as follows :—

	1919-20	1918-19

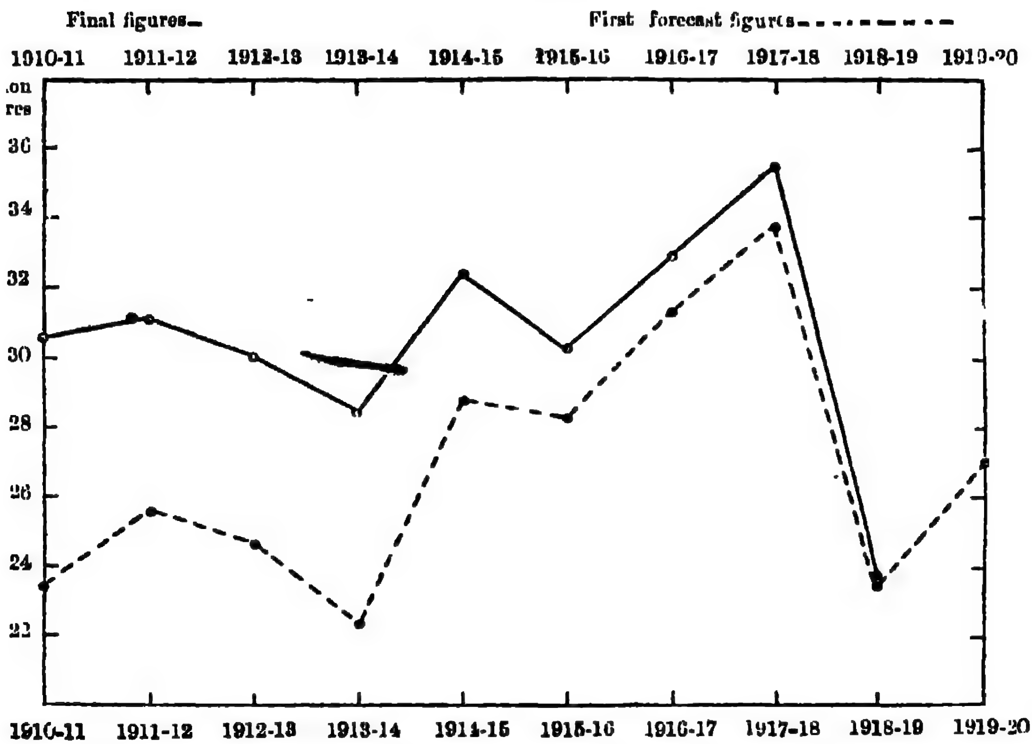
(a) Provisional estimate



Baroda (0·3 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The area sown is reported to be 79,000 acres, as against 22,000 acres reported last year. The increase is due to the fact that very little sowing was done last year owing to drought. Sowings were generally successful and germination is reported to be good.

Mysore (0·01 per cent of the total area under wheat in India).—The area sown is provisionally estimated at 3,000 acres, as against 2,000 acres reported at this time last year. Conditions are reported to be good in the important wheat-growing districts.

Chart.—The following chart illustrates the preliminary estimates of acreage as compared with the final estimates for the last nine years for the whole of India.

From unofficial sources, it appears that the winter wheat in the United States of America is infested with insects. In the Argentine the condition of wheat is reported to be magnificent owing to continued favourable weather. Prospects of the wheat crop in Australia are reported to be unsatisfactory, the area sown being only 2,996,000 acres. In Italy sowings of wheat were delayed in places owing to bad weather.

TRADE MARKS ACT, 1919.

[9 & 10 GEO. 5. CH. 79.]

ARRANGEMENT OF SECTIONS.

PART I.

REGISTRATION OF CERTAIN TRADE MARKS NOT REGISTRABLE UNDER PRINCIPAL ACT.

SECTION.

PART II.

PROVISIONS FOR THE PREVENTION OF ABUSES OF TRADE MARKS.

PART III.

GENERAL AMENDMENTS OF PRINCIPAL ACT.

AN ACT TO AMEND THE TRADE MARKS ACT, 1905.

[23rd December 1919.]

BE it enacted by the King's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

PART I.

REGISTRATION OF CERTAIN TRADE MARKS NOT REGISTRABLE UNDER PRINCIPAL ACT.

Division of register of trade marks into two parts.

1.—(1) The register of trade marks (including the Manchester Register) kept under the Trade Marks Act, 1905 (hereinafter referred to as the principal Act), shall be divided into two parts to be called respectively Part A. and Part B. 5 Edw. 15.

(2) Part A. of the register shall comprise all trade marks entered in the register of trade marks at the commencement of this Act and all trade marks which after the commencement of this Act may be registered under the provisions of the principal Act.

(3) Part B. shall comprise all trade marks registered under this Part of this Act, and all trade marks entered on or removed thereto under this Act.

Registration of trade marks in Part B.

2.—(1) Where any mark has for not less than two years been bonâ fide used in the United Kingdom upon or in connection with any goods (whether for sale in the United Kingdom or exportation abroad), for the purpose of indicating that they are the goods of the proprietor of the mark by virtue of manufacture, selection, certification, dealing with or offering for sale, the person claiming to be the proprietor of the mark may apply in writing to the registrar in the prescribed manner to have the mark entered as his registered trade mark in Part B. of the register in respect of such goods.

(2) The registrar shall consider every such application for registration of a trade mark in Part B. of the register, and if it appears to him, after such search, if any, as he may deem necessary, that the application is inconsistent with the provisions of section eleven or section nineteen of the principal Act, or if he is not satisfied that the mark has been so used as aforesaid, or that it is capable of distinguishing the goods of the applicant, he may refuse the application, or may accept it subject to conditions, amendments or modifications as to the goods or classes of goods in respect of which the mark is to be registered, or to such limitations, if any, as to mode or place of user or otherwise as he may think right to impose, and in any other case he shall accept the application.

(3) Every such application shall be accompanied by a statutory declaration verifying the user, including the date of first user, and such date shall be entered on the register.

(4) Any such refusal or conditional acceptance shall be subject to appeal to the court, and, if the ground for refusal is insufficiency of evidence as to user, such refusal shall be without prejudice to any application for registration of the trade mark under the provisions of the principal Act.

(5) Every such application shall, if accepted, be advertised in accordance with the provisions of the principal Act.

(6) A mark may be registered in Part B. notwithstanding any registration in Part A. by the same proprietor of the same mark or any part or parts thereof.

Application of certain provisions of principal Act to Part B. trade marks.

3. The provisions of the principal Act, as amended by this Act, with the exception of those set out in the First Schedule to this Act, shall, subject to the provisions of this Part of this Act, apply in respect of trade marks to which this Part of this Act applies as if they were herein re-enacted and in terms made applicable to this Part of this Act.

Effect of registration in Part B.

4. The registration of a person as the proprietor of a trade mark in Part B. of the register shall be primâ facie evidence that that person has the exclusive right to the use of that trade mark, but, in any action for infringement of a trade mark entered in Part B. of the register, no injunction, interdict or other relief shall be granted to the owner of the trade mark in respect of such registration, if the defendant establishes to the satisfaction of the court that the user of which the plaintiff complains is not calculated to deceive or to lead to the belief that the goods, the subject of such user were goods manufactured, selected, certified, dealt with or offered for sale by the proprietor of the trade mark.

Power to treat applications for registration in Part A. as applications for registration in Part B.

5. If any person applies for the registration of a trade mark under the principal Act in Part A. of the register, the registrar may, if the applicant is willing, instead of refusing the application, treat it as an application for registration in Part B. of the register under this Part of this Act and deal with the application accordingly.

PART II.

PROVISIONS FOR THE PREVENTION OF ABUSES OF TRADE MARKS.

Removal from register of word trade marks used as names of articles.

6.—(1) Where in the case of an article or substance manufactured under any patent in force at or granted after the passing of this Act, a word trade mark registered under the principal Act or Part I. of this Act is the name or only practicable name of the article or substance so manufactured, all rights to the exclusive use of such trade mark, whether under the common law or by registration (and notwithstanding the provisions of section forty-one of the principal Act) shall cease upon the expiration or determination of the patent, and thereafter such word shall not be deemed a distinctive mark, and may be removed by the court from the register on the application of any person aggrieved.

(2) No word, which is the only practicable name or description of any single chemical element or single chemical compound, as distinguished from a mixture, shall be registered as a trade mark, and any such word now or hereafter on the register may, notwithstanding section forty-one of the principal Act, be removed by the court from the register on the application of any person aggrieved :

Provided that—

(a) the provisions of this sub-section shall not apply where the mark is used to denote only the proprietor's brand or make of such substance, as distinguished from the substance as made by others, and in association with a suitable and practicable name open to the public use ; and

(b) in the case of marks registered before the passing of this Act, no application under this section for the removal of the mark from the register shall be entertained until after the expiration of four years from the passing of this Act.

(3) The power to remove a trade mark from the register conferred by this section shall be in addition to, and not in derogation of, any other powers of the court in respect of the removal of trade marks from the register.

(4) The provisions contained in Part III. of this Act, authorising applications for the rectification of the register to be made in the first instance to the registrar instead of to the court, shall apply to applications under this section.

PART III.

GENERAL AMENDMENTS OF PRINCIPAL ACT.

Amendment of the law as to registrable trade marks.

7. In paragraph (5) of section nine of the principal Act (which defines the particulars which registrable trade marks must contain or consist of) for the words "except by order of the Board of Trade or the court be deemed a distinctive mark," there shall be substituted the words " be registrable under the provisions of this paragraph, except upon evidence of its distinctiveness."

Appeals.

8.—(1) All appeals from the decisions of the registrar under section fourteen of the principal Act shall be made to the court, and an appeal shall not lie from any such decision to the Board of Trade, and accordingly that section shall have effect, subject to the modifications set forth in the Second Schedule to this Act :

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall affect any appeal which may be pending at the commencement of this Act.

(2) In any appeal from the decision of the registrar to the court under the principal Act or this Act the court shall have and exercise the same discretionary powers as under the principal Act or this Act as conferred upon the registrar.

Rectification of register.

9.—(1) Any application for the rectification of the register or the removal of any trade mark from the register in respect of any goods which, under section thirty-five or section thirty-seven of the principal Act or under Part II. of this Act, is to be made to the court, may, at the option of the applicant, be made in the first instance to the registrar :

Provided that no such application shall be made otherwise than to the court where an action concerning the trade mark in question is pending.

(2) The registrar may, at any stage of the proceedings, refer any such application to the court or he may, after hearing the parties, determine the question between them, subject to appeal to the court.

(3) In any proceedings for the rectification of the register under this Act or under section thirty-five of the principal Act as amended by this section, the court or the registrar shall, in addition to the powers conferred by that section as so amended, have power to direct a trade mark entered in Part A. of the register to be removed to Part B. of the register.

Costs.

10. In all proceedings before the registrar under the principal Act or this Act the registrar shall have power to award to any party such costs as he may consider reasonable, and to direct how and by what parties they are to be paid, and any such order may be made a rule of court.

11. For section thirty-three of the principal Act the following section shall be substituted:—

Registration of assignments.

"33.—(1) Where a person becomes entitled by assignment, transmission, or other operation of law to a registered trade mark, he shall make application to the registrar to register his title, and the registrar shall, on receipt of such application and on proof of title to his satisfaction, register him as the proprietor of the trade mark, and shall cause an entry to be made in the prescribed manner on the register of the assignment, transmission, or other instrument affecting the title. Any decision of the registrar under this section shall be subject to appeal to the court.

(2) Except in cases of appeals under this section and applications made under section thirty-five of this Act, a document or instrument in respect of which no entry has been made in the register in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1) aforesaid shall not be admitted in evidence in any court in proof of the title to a trade mark unless the court otherwise directs."

Minor amendments of principal Act.

12. The amendments specified in the second column of the Second Schedule to this Act, which relate to minor details, shall be made in the provisions of the principal Act specified in the first column of that schedule.

Short title, construction and commencement.

13.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Trade Marks Act, 1919, and the Trade Marks Acts, 1905 and 1914, and so much of the Patents and Designs Acts, 1907 to 1919, as relates to trade marks, and this Act may be cited together as the Trade Marks Acts, 1905 to 1919.

(2) This Act shall be construed as one with the principal Act and shall come into operation on the first day of April Nineteen Hundred and Twenty.

The 11th February 1920.

No. 266.—In supersession of the Home Department notification no. 8, dated the 3rd January 1920, Sir Frank George Sly, K.C.S.I., of the Indian Civil Service, is appointed to be substantively pro tempore Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, with effect from the 26th January 1920.

H. McPHERSON,

Secretary to the Government of India.

JUDICIAL.

The 7th February 1920.

No. 268.—In pursuance of sub-section 2(i) of section 101 of the Government of India Act, 1915 (5 and 6 Geo. 5, Ch. 61), the Governor General in Council is pleased to appoint the Hon'ble Mr. Justice L. C. Crump, I.C.S., to act as an Additional Judge of the High Court of Judicature at Bombay from the 10th February 1920 to the 11th March 1920, both days inclusive.

The 12th February 1920.

No. 314.—The following revised rules approved by the Secretary of State for India in Council on the 2nd December 1919, consolidating and amending the rules fixing the salaries, allowances, furloughs, retiring pensions and (where necessary) expenses for equipment and voyage of the Chief Justices and other Judges of the several Indian High Courts are published for general information :—

INDIAN HIGH COURTS.

Rules fixing the Salaries, Allowances, Furloughs, Retiring Pensions, and (where necessary) Expenses for Equipment and Voyage of the Chief Justices and other Judges.

1. In these rules, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context—

"Acting Chief Justice" means a Judge appointed under section 105 of Statute 5 & 6 Geo V., cap. 61, to perform the duties of Chief Justice of a High Court.

"Acting Judge" means a person appointed under the said section 105 to act as a Judge of a High Court

"Additional Judge" means a person appointed by the Governor-General of India in Council under section 101, sub-section 2(1) of Statute 5 & 6 Geo. V., cap. 61, to act as additional Judge of a High Court.

"Judge" includes a Chief Justice and Acting Chief Justice, and an Acting Judge and an Additional Judge, except where the contrary is expressed.

"Actual Service" includes :—

(a) Time spent by a Judge on duty as Judge or in the performance of such other functions as he may be directed to discharge by the Governor-General of India in Council ;

(b) Time spent by a Judge on privilege or subsidiary leave ;

(c) Duly authorised vacations (provided that the Judge is not absent on furlough or on extraordinary leave under Rule 26).

Section I.—Salaries.

2. The Chief Justice, or Acting Chief Justice of the High Court at Calcutta shall be paid a salary at the rate of Rs. 72,000 per annum.

3. The Chief Justice, or Acting Chief Justice, of the High Courts at Madras, Bombay, Allahabad, Patna and Lahore, respectively, shall be paid a salary at the rate of Rs. 60,000 per annum.

4. A Judge or Acting Judge, of the High Courts at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Allahabad, Patna and Lahore, respectively, shall be paid a salary at the rate of Rs. 48,000 per annum.

5. Every Judge shall be allowed to draw, in addition to his salary, any exchange compensation allowance which may be sanctioned for public servants generally, subject always to the conditions and limitations prescribed in the rules relating to such allowance.

Section II.—Leave.

6. One year's furlough shall be placed to the credit of each Judge after the completion of the fourth, eighth and twelfth years of actual service; provided that the aggregate amount of all furlough which can, during the whole period of his service, be granted to a Judge shall not exceed three years: provided further that the maximum amount of furlough which may be taken at any one time is 15 months.

7. Except under Rules 9 and 11, no furlough shall be granted until at credit under Rule 6. But any Judge already in the service of the Government at the time of being appointed to the High Court, who, when so appointed, had at his credit, under the rules applicable to the branch of the service to which he belonged, furlough without medical certificate may be granted furlough for a term not exceeding the amount so at his credit: provided that such furlough shall not be taken until the completion of two years' actual service in the High Court, and shall not exceed one year.

8. Except under Rules 9 and 11, furlough shall not be granted until after the completion of three years' actual service from the date of the last return from furlough or from extraordinary leave.

9. Under medical certificate, furlough may be granted before it is at credit under Rule 6, and although three years' actual service may not have been completed since the last return from furlough or from extraordinary leave.

10. A Judge on long leave in Europe must, if the leave was granted or has been extended on account of ill-health, whether it be technically leave on medical certificate or not, satisfy the Medical Board at the India Office as to his fitness to return to duty. Ordinarily, he must attend at the India Office for examination by the Board, but, in special cases, particularly if he be residing at a distance of more than 60 miles from London, a certificate, in a form to be obtained from the India Office, from two medical practitioners, may be accepted. On the required evidence of fitness being furnished, the Judge will receive from the India Office permission to return to India.

11. On urgent private affairs, furlough may be granted to a Judge before it is at credit under Rule 6, and although three years' of actual service have not been completed since the last return from furlough or extraordinary leave: provided that furlough under this rule shall not exceed six months, and shall be granted only once during the whole period of a Judge's service.

12. Furlough taken in India shall be reckoned from the date on which the Judge quits his office to the date of his resuming duty. Furlough taken out of India shall be reckoned from the date of embarkation at the port of departure from India to the date of debarkation on return to India, except in a case falling under Rule 24.

13. If furlough be taken partly in India and partly out of India, the commencement and termination of the furlough shall be respectively determined under the provisions of Rule 12, according as the furlough begins or ends in or out of India.

14. For the interval between the date of quitting his office and the commencement of furlough out of India and between the termination of furlough out of India and resuming his office, a Judge may be allowed a subsidiary leave not ordinarily exceeding 30 days, which in special cases may be extended.

15. A Judge, when on furlough, shall receive allowances, payable monthly at the rate of Rs. 1,111⅑ a month, if the furlough be taken in India, and at the rate of 1,000*l*. a year, if the furlough be taken out of India and payment be made in England. A Judge, when on subsidiary leave, shall receive allowances at the rate of Rs. 1,111⅑ a month.

16. Except under medical certificate, the number of furloughs to be granted at any one time and the grant of furlough to individual Judges, shall be subject to and limited by the exigencies of the service, which exigencies shall be determined exclusively by the authority with whom rests the question of granting the furlough.

17. Applications for furlough not supported by medical certificate shall be granted usually in the following order:—

The Judge who has the greatest amount of furlough to his credit under Rule 6 shall have the preference. If two or more applicants are on an equality in this respect, preference shall be given to the applicant whose actual service in a High Court is longest, reckoning in the case of a Judge who has not taken furlough or extraordinary leave, from the date of the commencement of his service in the High Court, and in the case of a Judge who has taken furlough subsidiary, or extraordinary leave from the date of his last return from such furlough or extraordinary leave. If two or more applicants are equal in both the above-mentioned respects, the preference shall be given to the senior in the Court.

18. Subject to the exigencies of the public service, a Judge who has completed 11 months' continuous duty, including the vacation, may take privilege leave for one month in each year, but, except as provided in clause (a), his salary will cease during such leave. A Judge may not take privilege leave in instalments or more than a month at a time; and, except as provided in clause (b), privilege leave may not be combined with vacation.

(a) A Judge who has been detained on duty as Vacation Judge may, provided that he has not in the meantime had any furlough or leave of any kind, during his next subsequent privilege leave, draw his salary for any period not exceeding one month in the whole, by which his vacation may (by reason of his being on duty) have fallen short of one month

(b) Once in three years, and not oftener, privilege leave may be prefixed or affixed to the vacation.

19. Every Judge applying for privilege leave must sign a declaration that he intends to return to duty on the expiration of the leave applied for, and that he has no intention of resigning his office or retiring from the service or taking leave of any kind within three months after his return to duty. Such declaration shall not be held absolutely to debar the person making it from applying for permission to resign his office, or to retire from the service, or to take leave within three months after his return to duty; but every such application must be accompanied by an explanation of the special circumstances under which it is made, and it shall be in the absolute discretion of the Government to grant or withhold the permission sought.

20. Privilege leave may be prefixed but not affixed to furlough.

21. Applications for leave shall in all cases be submitted in such manner as the Government shall from time to time prescribe.

22. No substantive appointment shall be vacated merely by reason of leave being granted under the rules.

23. If a Judge overstays any leave, he shall forfeit all salary during the time of his remaining so absent; and if he overstays his leave for more than one week, his office shall be liable to be declared vacant. But a Judge on leave (other than leave under Rule 18) is not obliged to return to duty on an authorised holiday, unless another officer is officiating as Judge in consequence of his absence.

24. A Judge may be allowed to combine vacation on full pay with leave as shown in (a) and (b) below, provided that no acting allowance is sanctioned or additional expense is incurred by the State in consequence of his absence during the vacation :—

(A) Where the vacation of the High Court consists of one period, a Judge may be allowed to combine vacation on full pay with leave, either at the beginning or end thereof, but not both.

(B) Where the annual long vacation is not continuous, but is divided into two separate portions, a Judge may be allowed either :—

(a) To combine one part of a vacation on full pay with leave, either at the beginning or end thereof, but not both ; or

(b) To combine both parts of one annual vacation on full pay with leave for the intervening period.

25. No leave except privilege leave and leave subsidiary to furlough shall count as service for pension.

26. If the Government in its discretion deems it necessary, in any special instance, to grant to any Judge leave of absence which is not expressly provided for in the foregoing rules, such leave shall be without pay ; provided always that in no case shall such leave exceed six months, or be granted more than once in the whole course of the Judge's service.

Section III.—Pensions.

27. Subject to the proviso hereinafter set out, a Judge of a High Court shall receive, according to the length of his actual service, a pension corresponding to the rates specified in the table that follows :—

Length of actual Service.	IF SERVICE INCLUDES SERVICE AS CHIEF JUSTICE.					Judge who is not a member of the Indian Civil Service.	Judge who is a member of the Indian Civil Service.
	Not less than 5½ years.		Not less than 2½ years but less than 5½ years.
	As Chief Justice, Calcutta High Court.	As Chief Justice in any other High Court.	As Chief Justice, Calcutta High Court (when previous service has been as Chief Justice in other High Courts).	As Chief Justice, Calcutta High Court (when previous service has been as Puisne Judge).	As Chief Justice in any other High Courts.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)	(7)	(8)
	£	£	£	£	£	£	£
(a) 6½ years but less than 8½ years.	900	750	800	700	650	600	100
(b) 8½ years but less than 10 years.	1,075	900	960	840	780	720	120
(c) 10 years but less than 11½ years.	1,450	1,200	1,280	1,120	1,040	960	160
(d) 11½ years and over	1,800	1,500	1,600	1,400	1,300	1,200	[illegible]

Provided that no Judge shall receive such pension who has not attained the age of 60 years, unless he either retires on medical certificate or has had an actual service of at least 11½ years.

28. Except in the case of a member of the Indian Civil Service, a Judge receiving a pension under the preceding rules will not be entitled to any other pension or retiring allowance.

29. When a Judge, who at the time of his appointment to a High Court was a member of one of the Government Services in India, is permitted to retire without a pension under the preceding rules, he shall receive such a pension as he might receive under the rules applicable to the Branch of the Service to which he belonged when so appointed, reckoning the period of his service as a Judge of a High Court towards service for that pension.

30. If a Judge who, at the time of his appointment to a High Court, was a member of one of the Government Services in India, is permitted to retire after six years and nine months of actual service as Judge, he shall have the option of taking his pension or retiring allowance either under these rules or under the rules applicable to the branch of the Service to which he belonged when appointed.

31. The words "a member of one of the Government Services in India" in Rules 29 and 30 include an acting member, and for the purpose of these rules acting service in the appointment held at the time of appointment as a Judge of the High Court shall be regarded as substantive.

32. In the event of the appointment to be a Judge of a High Court of a retired Judge who is in receipt of a pension under the preceding rules, the Secretary of State in Council shall decide in each case whether his salary shall be reduced by the amount of such pension, or by any part of such amount.

33. No Judge, selected from the Indian Civil Service, shall receive any pension under these rules unless he shall have fully complied with all the rules and regulations in force for the time being as to payments to be made by him as a member of the Indian Civil Service on account of the provision for his own pension or retiring allowance, and for pensions to his wife and children.

34. If a Judge is transferred from one High Court to another, the period he has served in each Court shall count towards his qualification for pension.

35. A Judge appointed under Statute 5 and 6 Geo. V., Chapter 61, section 105, to perform the duties of Chief Justice is not a Chief Justice within the meaning of these rules as to pension; provided that, if such Judge be afterwards appointed to be a Chief Justice, the period during which he performed the duties of Chief Justice as aforesaid shall count as service for pension according to the table in rule 27; provided also that the period during which a Judge performs (under Statute 5 and 6 Geo. V., Chapter 61, section 105) the duties of Chief Justice of the High Court at Calcutta shall not count towards pension at a rate exceeding 1,500*l*. a year, unless such Judge is subsequently appointed to the office of Chief Justice of the said High Court at Calcutta.

36. The above rules shall apply to every Judge now holding office, as well as to those who may be hereafter appointed.

Section IV.—Expenses for Equipment and Voyage

37. For the purpose of defraying the expenses of equipment and voyage from Europe on first appointment, there shall be allowed—

To a Chief Justice or Judge of any High Court, 300*l*.

But no such allowance shall be made to any person who, being in India, is appointed to the office of Chief Justice or Judge, or who, having been in India, is in Europe at the time of his appointment with the intention of returning to India.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Delhi, the 9th February 1920.

No. 453-I. B.—In exercise of the powers conferred by the Indian (Foreign Jurisdiction) Order in Council, 1902, and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, the Governor-General in Council is pleased to make the following Law for the administration of Forest in the District of Abu :—

CHAPTER I.—PRELIMINARY.

Short title and extent. 1. (1) This Law may be called the Abu Forest Law, 1920.

(2) It extends to the District of Abu, as described in the notification of the Government of India in the Foreign and Political Department, No. 2221-I. B., dated the 1st October 1917 :

Provided that the Agent to the Governor-General may, by notification, exempt any part of the said District from the operation of the whole or any part of this Law, but not so as to affect anything done or any offence committed or any fine or penalty incurred or any proceedings commenced in respect of any such part of the said District before such exemption.

Definitions. 2. In this Law, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "Agent to the Governor-General" means the Agent to the Governor-General, Rajputana ;

(2) "Collector" means the District Magistrate of Abu ;

(3) "Government forest" means any land which may be constituted a Government forest under this Law ;

(4) "Forest-officer" means any person appointed by, or under the orders of, the Governor-General in Council or of the Agent to the Governor-General to discharge any function of a Forest-officer under this Law or any rule thereunder, and includes a forester or forest guard ;

(5) "Chief Forest-officer" means any person appointed by, or under the orders of the Governor-General in Council or of the Agent to the Governor-General to the Chief Forest-officer for the District of Abu;

(6) "tree" includes palms, bamboos, stumps, brush-wood and shrubs;

(7) "timber" includes trees when they have fallen or have been felled, and all wood whether cut up or fashioned or hollowed out for any purpose or not;

(8) "forest produce" includes—

(a) the following, whether found in, or brought from, a forest or not, that is to say:—

timber, charcoal, caoutchouc, catechu, wood-oil, resin, natural varnish, bark, lac, mahua flowers and myrabolams; and

(b) the following when found in, or brought from, a forest, that is to say:—

(i) trees and leaves, flowers and fruits, and all other parts or produce not hereinbefore mentioned of trees,

(ii) plants not being trees (including grass, creepers, reeds and moss) and all parts or produce of such plants,

(iii) wild animals, and skins, tusks, horns, bones, silk, cocoons, honey and wax and all other parts or produce of animals, and

(iv) peat, surface-soil, rock and minerals (including lime-stone, laterite, mineral oils, and all products of mines and quarries);

(9) "forest offence" means any offence punishable under this Law;

(10) "cattle" includes elephants, camels, buffaloes, horses, mares, geldings, ponies, colts, fillies, mules, bulls, bullocks, cows, heifers, asses, pigs, rams, ewes, sheep, lambs, goats and kids;

(11) "Magistrate" means a magistrate of the first or second class; and

(12) "notification" means a notification in the Gazette of India.

CHAPTER II.—GOVERNMENT FORESTS

Constitution of Government forests.

3 (1) The Agent to the Governor-General may, by notification, declare any woodland, permanent grazing-ground or other land which is vested in the Government, to be a Government forest from the date to be fixed in the notification.

(2) The notification shall specify, as nearly as possible, the situation and limits of the land in respect of which the declaration is made, and from the date fixed therein the said land shall be deemed to be a Government forest.

(3) The Collector shall cause a translation of the notification in Hindi to be published in all villages of the District of Abu in the neighbourhood of the land and in any other villages of the said District of which the residents have been accustomed to graze their flocks in, or in the vicinity of, the land.

Demarcation of Government forests.

4. Whenever a Government forest is not bounded by a road, stream, or other existing well-defined boundary mark, it shall be demarcated by clear lines or pillars or in such other manner as the Agent to the Governor-General may direct

Bar of acquisition of rights.

5. No right of any description adverse to the Government shall be acquired in or over a Government forest by lapse of time or otherwise than under a grant or contract in writing made by, or on behalf of, the Government.

Power to close roads and pathways.

6. (1) In any Government forest the Chief Forest-officer may, with the previous sanction of the Agent to the Governor-General, determine what roads and pathways shall be authorised for public traffic, and cause all other roads and pathways to be closed either permanently or for a time only.

(2) The Chief Forest-officer shall cause public notice to be given of the closing of any existing road or pathway.

Penalty for trespass or damage in Government forest.

7. Any person who in a Government forest—

(a) trespasses, or pastures cattle or permits cattle to trespass, off any road or pathway authorised for public traffic; or

(b) causes any damage by negligence in felling any tree, or cutting or dragging any timber; or

(c) lops, notches, strips off the leaves from, or otherwise damages, any tree: or

(d) hunts, shoots, fishes, poisons water, or sets traps or snares; shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, or when the damage resulting from his offence amounts to more than twenty-five rupees, to double the amount of such damage.

Acts prohibited in Government forests.

8. Any person who—

(a) sets fire to a Government forest, or

(b) in contravention of any rule made by the Agent to the Governor-General kindles any fire or leaves any fire burning in such manner as to endanger a Government forest, or

(c) in a Government forest,

(i) kindles, keeps or carries any fire except at such seasons, and in such manner, as a Forest-officer specially empowered in this behalf may from time to time notify, or

(ii) fells, girdles, marks, taps, strips off the bark from, or uproots or burns any tree, or

(iii) quarries stones, burns lime or charcoal, or collects, subjects to any manufacturing process, or removes any forest produce or

(iv) clears, cultivates or breaks up any land for cultivation or any other purpose, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both, and shall also be liable to pay such sum as compensation for damage done to the forest as the convicting Magistrate may direct.

Exceptions from prohibitions in sections 7 and 8.

9. (1) Nothing in section 7 or section 8 shall be deemed to prohibit any act done—

(a) with the permission of a Forest-officer specially empowered under the provisions of this Law to give such permission, or

(b) in pursuance of any permission granted by the Agent to the Governor-General, or

(c) in accordance with any rule made by the Agent to the Governor-General, subject to the control of the Governor-General in Council.

(2) The permission of the Forest-officer referred to in clause (a) of sub-section (1) shall be in writing, and shall only authorise the doing of some particular act on some particular occasion.

(3) The permission referred to in clause (b) of sub-section (1) may be a general permission to a person to pasture his cattle, or to collect and remove any forest produce for the use of himself and his family, but not for the purpose of trade.

(4) The rules referred to in clause (c) of sub-section (1) may be applied by the Agent to the Governor-General, by notification, to all or any Government forests, or to any part of a Government forest and may, with respect thereto,

(i) regulate the cutting, sawing, conversion and removal of trees and timber, the cutting of grass and pasturing of cattle, and the collection and removal of forest produce;

(ii) regulate the quarrying of stone, the prospecting for and extracting of oil, and the burning of lime or charcoal;

(iii) regulate hunting, shooting, fishing and setting traps or snares, and

(iv) prescribe, or authorise any Forest-officer to prescribe, subject to the control of the Agent to the Governor-General, the fees, royalties or other payments for timber, or other forest produce, and the mode in which such fees, royalties or other payments shall be levied, whether in transit, or partly in transit, or otherwise.

(5) In making any such rule, the Agent to the Governor-General may direct that a breach of it shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and when the breach is a continuing breach, with a further fine which may extend to five rupees for every day after the first during which the breach continues.

(6) The Agent to the Governor-General may cancel any permission given by a Forest-officer or withdraw any permission granted by himself.

Power to declare forest to be no longer Government forest.

10. The Agent to the Governor-General, subject to the control of the Governor-General in Council, may, by notification, direct that, from a date specified therein, any Government forest or any portion thereof shall cease to be a Government forest, and from the date so specified such forest or portion shall cease to be a Government forest.

CHAPTER III.—PROTECTION OF CERTAIN TREES.

Power to declare reserved trees.

11. The Agent to the Governor-General may, by notification, declare that any trees or any specified class of trees shall, from a date to be fixed by such notification, be reserved trees.

Acts prohibited in regard to reserved trees.

12. (1) No person shall fell, girdle, mark, lop, tap or injure, by fire or otherwise, any reserved tree, except as provided by rules made by the Agent to the Governor-General in this behalf, or with the permission in writing of a Forest-officer specially empowered under the provisions of this Law to grant such permission.

(2) Whoever fells, girdles, marks, lops, taps or injures, by fire or otherwise, any reserved tree in contravention of sub-section (1) shall be punished with fine which may extend to twenty rupees, or, when the damage resulting from his offence amounts to more than ten rupees, to double the amount of such damage.

CHAPTER IV.—FOREST PRODUCE IN TRANSIT.

Power to establish Forest stations.

13. The Chief Forest-officer may, subject to the control of the Agent to the Governor-General, establish stations within or outside any Government Forest, for the examination of timber and other forest produce, and for the collection of dues leviable in respect of the same.

Power to prescribe routes for removal of forest produce.

14. (1) No timber or other forest produce shall be taken out of any Government forest except by a route on which such a station has been established, or of which the use for the removal of timber or other forest produce has been specially authorised by the Chief Forest-officer.

(2) The Chief Forest-officer shall cause a full description of every such route to be published in such manner as he thinks fit in the villages in the neighbourhood of the forest served by the same.

Forest produce in transit to be covered by pass.

15. (1) No timber or other forest produce, whether the produce of a Government forest or of other land, shall be taken along any route authorised for the removal of timber or other forest produce under section 14 unless covered by a pass issued by a Forest-officer whom the Chief Forest-officer has duly authorised in that behalf or by the owner of the land, as the case may be.

(2) Such pass shall state the quantity and kind of timber or other forest produce so taken, and the marks, if any, which it bears.

Penalty for breach of section 14 or section 15.

16. Any person who contravenes the provisions of section 14 or section 15 shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

Power to exempt from operation of section 14 or section 15.

17. A general exemption from the operation of section 14 or section 15 or of both sections, in favour of the inhabitants or any class of the inhabitants of any specified locality with respect to any class of timber or other forest produce or all timber or other forest produce, may be granted by a Forest-officer specially empowered under the provisions of this Law in this behalf.

CHAPTER V.—CATTLE TRESPASS.

Application of Cattle-trespass Act, 1871.

18. Cattle trespassing in a Government forest shall be deemed to be cattle doing damage to a public plantation within the meaning of section 11 of the Cattle-trespass Act, 1871, and may be I of seized and impounded as such by any Forest-officer or Police-officer specially authorised in this behalf by the Collector :

Provided that it shall be optional with the Forest-officer to proceed against the owner of such cattle under section 7 of this Law.

Levy of fines.

19. The Agent to the Governor-General may, by notification, direct that there shall be levied for each head of cattle impounded such fines as he thinks fit, but not exceeding the following amount in each case, namely :—

	Rs.	A.
For each elephant	10	0
For each camel or buffalo	2	0
For each horse, mare, gelding, pony, colt, filly, mule, bull, bullock, cow or heifer .	1	0
For each calf, ass, pig, ram, ewe, sheep, lamb, goat or kid	0	8

CHAPTER VI.—PENALTIES AND PROCEDURE.

Seizure of property liable to confiscation and report thereof to Magistrate

20. (1) When there is reason to believe that a forest offence has been committed in respect of any timber or other forest produce, such timber or produce, together with all tools, carts and cattle used in committing such offence, may be seized by any Forest-officer or Police-officer.

(2) Every officer seizing property under this section shall place thereon, or on the receptacle (if any) in which it is contained, a mark indicating that the same has been so seized, and shall, as soon as may be, make a report of such seizure to the magistrate having jurisdiction to try the offence on account of which the seizure has been made :

Provided that, when the timber or other forest produce with respect to which such offence is believed to have been committed is the property of the Government and the offender is unknown, it shall be sufficient if the officer makes, as soon as may be, a report of the circumstances to his official superior.

Procedure thereupon.

21 Upon the receipt of any such report, the magistrate shall take such measures as may be necessary for the trial of the accused and the disposal of the property according to law.

Confiscation of forest produce and tools in case of forest offence.

22. (1) When any person is convicted of a forest offence, all timber or other forest produce in respect of which such offence has been committed, and all tools, carts, cattle and other things used in committing such offence shall be liable, by order of the convicting magistrate, to confiscation.

(2) Such confiscation may be in addition to any other punishment prescribed for the offence.

Disposal on conclusion of trial for forest offence of forest produce in respect of which offence was committed.

23. When the trial of any forest offence is concluded, any timber or other forest produce in respect of which such offence has been committed shall, if it is the property of the Government or has been confiscated, be taken possession of by a forest officer specially empowered under the provisions of this law in this behalf, and may, in any other case, be disposed of in such manner as the court may direct

Procedure when offender is not known or cannot be found

24 (1) When the offender is not known or cannot be found, the magistrate inquiring into the offence, if he finds that an offence has been committed, may, on application in this behalf, order the property in respect of which the offence has been committed to be confiscated and taken possession of by a Forest-officer, especially empowered under the provisions of this Law in this behalf, or to be made over to such forest officer or other person as the magistrate considers entitled to receive the same :

Provided that no such order shall be made till the expiration of one month from the date of the seizure of such property, or without giving the person (if any) claiming any right thereto an opportunity of being heard and producing evidence in support of his claim.

(2) The magistrate shall either cause notice of any application under this section to be served upon any person whom he has reason to believe to be interested in the property seized, or publish such notice in such manner as he thinks fit.

Procedure as to perishable property seized under section 20.

25 The magistrate may, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, direct the sale of any property seized under section 20 which is subject to speedy and natural decay, and may deal with the proceeds as he might have dealt with the property itself if it had not been sold.

Appeal from orders under sections 22, 23 and 24

26 Any person claiming to be interested in property seized under section 20 may, within one month from the date of any order passed by a magistrate under section 22, section 23, or section 24, present an appeal therefrom to the court to which orders made by such Magistrate are ordinarily appealable, and the order passed on such appeal shall be final.

Vesting of confiscated property in Government.

27. When an order for the confiscation of property has been passed under section 22 or section 24, and no appeal from such order has been presented within the period prescribed by section 26, or when, on an appeal being presented, the appellate court confirms such order in respect of the whole or a portion of the property, such property or portion, as the case may be, shall vest in the Government free from all incumbrances.

Saving of power to release property seized.

28 Nothing hereinbefore contained shall be deemed to prevent any officer specially empowered under the provisions of this Law in this behalf from directing at any time the immediate release of any property seized under section 20 and the withdrawal of any charge made in respect of such property

Penalty for counterfeiting or defacing marks on trees and timber and for altering boundary marks.

29. Whoever, with intent to cause damage or injury to the public or to any person, or to cause wrongful gain as defined in the Indian Penal Code— XLV of 1860

(a) knowingly counterfeits upon any timber or standing tree a mark used by forest officers to indicate that such timber or tree is the property of the Government or of some person, or that it may lawfully be cut or removed by some person, or

(b) unlawfully affixes to any timber or standing tree a mark used by forest officers, or

(c) alters, defaces or obliterates any such mark, placed on any timber or standing tree by or under the authority of a Forest-officer, or

(d) alters, moves, destroys or defaces any boundary mark of any Government forest; shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both

30. (1) Any Forest-officer or Police-officer may, without orders from a magistrate and without a warrant, arrest any person reasonably suspected of having been concerned in any forest offence, if such person refuses to give his name and residence, or gives a name or residence which there is reason to believe to be false, or if there is reason to believe that he will abscond.

Power to arrest without warrant.

(2) Every officer making an arrest under sub-section (1) shall, subject to the provisions of sub-section (3), without unnecessary delay, take or send the person arrested before a magistrate having jurisdiction in the case or to the officer in charge of the nearest police station.

(3) Any Forest-officer of a rank not inferior to that of a forester who, or whose subordinate, has arrested any person under sub-section (1) may release such person on his executing a bond to appear, if and when so required, before the Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case, or before the officer in charge of the nearest police-station.

31. (1) Any Forest-officer or Police-officer who vexatiously and unnecessarily seizes any property on pretence of seizing property liable to confiscation under this Law, or who vexatiously and unnecessarily arrests any person, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

Punishment for wrongful seizure or arrest.

(2) Any such fine or part thereof recovered may, if the convicting Magistrate so directs and subject to the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 515 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, be given as compensation to the person aggrieved by such seizure or arrest. V of 1898.

32. Every Forest-officer and Police-officer shall prevent, and may interfere for the purpose of preventing, the commission of any forest offence.

Power to prevent commission of offence.

33. (1) The Agent to the Governor-General may, by notification, empower any Forest-officer who is in receipt of a monthly salary of not less than one hundred and fifty rupees,—

Power to compound offences.

(a) to accept from any person against whom a reasonable suspicion exists that he has committed any forest offence, other than an offence specified in section 29 or section 31, a sum of money not exceeding fifty rupees by way of compensation for the offence which such person is suspected to have committed, and

(b) when any property has been seized as liable to confiscation, to release the same on payment of the value thereof as estimated by such officer.

(2) On the payment of such sum of money or such value, or both, as the case may be, to such officer, the suspected person, if in custody, shall be discharged, the property, if any, seized shall be released, and no further proceeding shall be taken against such person or property.

34. When, in any proceedings taken under this Law, or in consequence of anything done under this Law, a question arises as to whether any timber or other forest produce is the property of the Government, such timber or produce shall be presumed to be the property of the Government, until the contrary is proved.

Presumption as to ownership of forest produce by Government.

CHAPTER VII.—FOREST OFFICERS.

35. (1) The Agent to the Governor-General may, by general or special order in writing, invest any Forest-officer with all or any of the following powers, namely:—

Conferment of powers on Forest-officers.

(a) the powers of a Civil Court to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents;

(b) power to issue search warrants under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898; V of 1898

(c) power to hold inquiries into forest offences, and in the course of such inquiries to receive and record evidence;

(d) power to notify the seasons and manner in which fire may be kindled, kept or carried in a Government forest;

(e) power to give the permission referred to in clause (a) of sub-section (1) of section 9 and in section 12;

(f) power to grant general exemptions under section 17;

(g) power to take possession of property under sections 23, 24 and 42;

(h) power to direct the release of property and withdrawal of charges under section 28.

(2) Evidence recorded under clause (c) of sub-section (1) shall be admissible in any subsequent trial of the alleged offender before a Magistrate:

Provided that it has been taken in the presence of the accused person and recorded in the manner provided by section 355, section 356 or section 357, as the case may be, of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898. V of 1898.

Forest-officers deemed public servants

36 All Forest-officers shall be deemed to be public servants within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code. XLV of 1860

Indemnity for acts done in good faith

37 No suit or criminal prosecution shall lie against any public servant for anything in good faith done or intended to be done under this Law.

Forest-officers not to trade

38 Except with the permission in writing of the Agent to the Governor General, no Forest-officer shall, as principal or agent, trade in timber or other forest produce, or be or become interested in any lease or mortgage of any forest or in any contract for working any forest, whether in British or foreign territory.

CHAPTER VIII.—MISCELLANEOUS

Additional power to make rules

39 The Agent to the Governor-General may make rules consistent with this Law—

(a) to declare by what Forest-officers or class of Forest-officers the powers or duties conferred or imposed by or under this Law on a Forest-officer shall be exercised or performed;

(b) to regulate the rewards to be paid to officers and informers from the proceeds of fines and confiscations under this Law or from the public treasury; and

(c) generally, to carry out the provisions of this Law.

Persons bound to assist Forest-officers and Police-officers

40 (1) Every person who exercises any right in a Government forest or who is permitted to take any forest produce from, or to cut and remove timber or to pasture cattle in, such forest, and every person who is employed by any such person in such forest, and every person in any village contiguous to such forest who is employed by the Government, or who receives emoluments from the Government for services to be performed to the community, shall be bound to furnish without unnecessary delay to the nearest Forest-officer or Police-officer any information he may possess respecting the commission of, or intention to commit, any forest offence, and shall forthwith take steps whether so required by any Forest-officer or Police-officer or not—

(a) to extinguish any forest fire in such forest of which he has knowledge or information;

(b) to prevent by any lawful means in his power any fire in the vicinity of such forest of which he has knowledge or information from spreading to such forest, and shall assist any Forest-officer or Police-officer demanding his aid—

(c) in preventing the commission in such forest of any forest offence; and

(d) when there is reason to believe that any such offence has been committed in such forest, in discovering and arresting the offender.

(2) Any person who, being bound so to do without lawful excuse (the burden of proving which shall lie upon such person), fails—

(a) to furnish without unnecessary delay to the nearest Forest-officer or Police-officer any information as required by sub-section (1);

(b) to take steps as required by sub-section (1) to extinguish any forest fire in a Government forest;

(c) to prevent as required by sub-section (1), any fire in the vicinity of such forest from spreading to such forest; or

(d) to assist any Forest-officer or Police-officer demanding his aid in preventing the commission in such forest of any forest offence, or, when there is reason to believe that any such offence has been committed in such forest in discovering and arresting the offender, shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, or with both.

Recovery of fines and other moneys

41 All money, other than fines, payable to the Government under this Law or under any rule thereunder, or on account of the price of any timber or other forest produce or of expenses incurred in the execution of this Law in respect of such timber or produce, may, if not paid when due, be recovered under the law for the time being in force as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

Lien on forest produce for such money.

42 (1) When any such money is payable for, or in respect of, any forest produce, the amount thereof shall be deemed to be a first charge on such produce, and the produce may be taken possession of by a Forest-officer specially empowered under the provisions of this Law in this behalf, and may be retained by him until the amount has been paid.

(2) If the amount is not paid when due, the Forest officer may sell the produce by public auction, and the proceeds of the sale shall be applied first in discharging such amount.

(3) The surplus (if any), if not claimed within two months from the date of the sale by the person entitled thereto, shall be forfeited to the Government

Irresponsibility of Government and its officers for loss of, or damage to, certain forest produce

43 The Government shall not be responsible for any loss or damage which may occur in respect of any timber or other forest produce while at a station established under section 13, or while detained elsewhere for the purposes of this Law and no Forest-officer shall be responsible for any such loss or damage unless he causes the same negligently, maliciously or fraudulently

Recovery of penalties due under bond

44 When any person in compliance with this Law or any rule made thereunder, bind himself by any bond or instrument to perform any duty or act, or covenants by any bond or instrument that he, or that he and his servants and agents will abstain from any act the whole sum mentioned in such bond or instrument as the amount to be paid in case of a breach of the conditions thereof may notwithstanding anything in section 74 of the Indian Contract Act IX of 1872, be recovered from him in case of such breach as if it were an arrear of land revenue

No. 132-T.—19.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

RAILWAY DEPARTMENT.

(RAILWAY BOARD.)

NOTIFICATION.

Delhi, the 10th February 1920.

In exercise of the powers conferred by the Notification of the Government of India in the Department of Commerce and Industry, No. 801, dated the 24th March 1905, and in pursuance of section 47, sub-section (3) of the Indian Railways Act, 1890 (IX of 1890), the Railway Board sanction the following rules made by the Dholpur-Bari Railway under sub-section (1), clauses (f) and (g) of the said section, for and to be applicable to so much of the Dholpur-Bari Railway as is situate in British India for regulating the terms and conditions on which the Railway Administration will warehouse or retain goods at any station or depôt on the said Railway, on behalf of the consignee or owner, and for regulating the use of rolling stock, engines and trains on the said railway by the public.

R. McLEAN,
Secretary, Railway Board.

DHOLPUR-BARI RAILWAY.

I.—RULES FOR THE WAREHOUSING AND RETENTION OF GOODS.

Wharfage.

1. Wharfage should be calculated—
   (1) where freight is levied on weight—upon such weight;
   (2) where freight is levied on the vehicle in or on which the goods are carried—upon the carrying capacity of such vehicles.

Circumstances	Time allowed free	Rate per maund or part of a maund per day or part of a day in excess of the free time	REMARKS.
On goods for despatch waiting to be consigned, i.e., consignments brought to station, but consignment notes not received.	Closing time of the day.	1 anna . .	Goods will in all cases be at owner's risk until a receipt in the prescribed form has been granted duly signed by an authorised Railway servant.
On goods available for delivery.
Consignments not removed.	From time of arrival till closing time of the day following that on which consignments are made available for delivery.	1 anna . .	The goods shall be warehoused either under cover or in the open as space may be available.

2. A consignee must take delivery of goods forming part of a consignment whenever they are available for delivery notwithstanding that the remaining goods are short or damaged or have not arrived at their destination or otherwise not available for delivery; and if the consignee does not take delivery of such goods forming part of a consignment as are available for delivery, they will be subject to wharfage charges if not removed within the time allowed for removal.

On Luggage and Parcels Available for Delivery.

3. Luggage and parcels which cannot be delivered from any cause, or which are addressed "to be left till called for," will be kept at stations free of charge at owner's risk for 48 hours from midnight of date of arrival, after which period a wharfage charge of 2 annas per maund or part of a maund for every 24 hours or part of 24 hours, with a minimum charge as for one maund will be made

Sundays, Christmas Day and Good Friday are not reckoned in charging wharfages.

On Carriages, Motor Cars and Palanquins

4. (a) Carriages, motor cars and palanquins, left on railway premises over the Dholpur-Bari Railway awaiting removal by consignee, will, after the expiration of 24 hours from the time they are available for delivery, be subject to a wharfage charge of Rs. 2 per carriage or motor car, and Re 1 per palanquin for each subsequent day or part thereof.

(b) A similar charge will be levied on all carriages, motor cars and palanquins left on the railway premises awaiting despatch order from consignor after the expiration of 24 hours from the time they are brought to the station, but until a railway receipt is granted, the Railway does not acknowledge any responsibility in respect to such carriages, motor cars or palanquins which must be at owner's risk.

On Birds, Poultry and Animals

5. For birds, poultry and animals, charges may be made as follows after the expiry of 6 hours from the time they are available for delivery :—

Animals.—One anna per animal per hour or part of an hour

Poultry —One anna per head per day or part of a day.

Birds in baskets or crates, etc.—One anna per cubic foot or part of a cubic foot per day or part of a day.

These charges to be in addition to any expenses entailed in feeding the birds, animals, etc.

Under any circumstances, live animals should be removed from the Railway premises within 24 hours from the time of their arrival at destination, failing which they may be disposed of under section 56, clause 2, Railway Act, IX of 1890.

Notice of Arrival.

6. The Dholpur-Bari Railway do not undertake to send notice of arrival of goods and parcels to consignees; and the absence of such notice will not entitle consignees to claim exemption from wharfage or demurrage or storage charges if goods and parcels are not removed within the time allowed. Endeavours will, however, be made at receiving stations to advise consignees when practicable of the arrival of their goods and parcels. The cost of advices sent by post will be borne by the railway.

Treatment and Disposal of Unclaimed Goods and Parcels.

7. (a) Subject to the exception mentioned in Rule (e) below, unclaimed goods (parcels and luggage) are kept on hand at the station to which booked for a period of not less than one month, during which time the notice prescribed in section 56, sub-section (1) of the Indian Railways Act (IX of 1890), will be issued if the owner of the goods or person entitled thereto is known.

(b) If not taken delivery of within a period of not less than one month after receipt at the station to which invoiced or waybilled, unclaimed goods, luggage and parcels will be sent to the Unclaimed Goods or Lost Property Office and dealt with as laid down in Rule (f) below.

(c) Unclaimed articles will be liable to the wharfage and demurrag charges hereinbefore referred to, as well as to all freight and special expendi ture incurred by the Railway on account of their custody and disposal.

(d) Where articles such as arms, ammunition, explosives, intoxicating liquors, opium and its preparations and hemp drugs, the sale of which by unlicensed persons is prohibited by law, are left unclaimed in the possession of the Railway, they will be made over to the Police or Excise authorities for disposal under the laws affecting the article When not of a dangerous, perishable or offensive character, they will, however, be retained in the possession of the Railway for the same period as that prescribed for other unclaimed articles.

This rule, in so far as it relates to explosives, is supplemental to, and not in modification of, the rules made under the Indian Explosives Act.

(e) Perishable articles unclaimed or not taken delivery of will be disposed of by auction at owner's risk and expense by the Station Master of the station at which they may be left after the expiry of 24 hours or earlier if they are or are likely to become offensive.

(f) Public sales by auction will be held from time to time of all unclaimed or lost property which has remained in the possession of the railway over six months. At least fifteen days' previous notice of each auction will be given by advertisement in a newspaper.

(g) Any surplus proceeds arising out of sale of lost property or unclaimed consignments after payment of all charges and expenses due to the Railway will be paid to the person or persons thereto entitled.

Lost Property.

8. (a) Lost property found in Railway vehicles or on Railway premises will, subject to the exception mentioned in paragraph (e) above, be sent to the Lost Property Office after 48 hours and will be dealt with in the same manner as unclaimed booked goods.

(b) Application for the recovery of lost property should be made to the nearest Station Master, and also to the Manager, Dholpur, marked on the outside cover "Lost Property."

(c) The Lost Property Office is situated at Dholpur

(d) A fee of 4 annas for each article or package will be charged, in addition to a storage charge of annas 4 per month or portion of a month during which it has remained in the possession of the Railway as Lost Property.

(e) Carriage charges upon articles returned to the owner by station or Lost Property Office are to be paid at the receiving station by the owner.

Left Luggage Offices or Cloak Rooms.

9. (a) Luggage may be placed for temporary custody in charge of the Station Masters at certain stations.

(b) A left luggage ticket will be given to any person depositing luggage or parcels for custody in a cloak room; and delivery will be made to any person presenting such receipt ticket, after which all responsibility of the Railway Administration in respect of such luggage or parcels shall absolutely cease and determine. The person presenting the ticket must sign his name on the ticket and enter the date. An Indemnity Bond should be executed by the owner in all cases of loss of Left Luggage receipts.

(c) Before a Left Luggage Ticket is given, the Luggage Ticket issued at the forwarding station in the case of luggage received by railway, must be collected.

(d) A charge of two annas per package will be levied for each 24 hours or part of 24 hours during which the luggage or parcel remains in a cloak room.

For the purpose of this rule, Sundays, Good Friday and Christmas Day are not considered dies non. The charge will be calculated from the time the package is deposited in the cloak room. This time will be marked on the Left Luggage Ticket just below the date.

(e) The responsibility of the Railway Administration for articles left in a cloak-room shall be that of a bailee under sections 151, 152 and 161 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872 (IX of 1872).

Articles deposited in cloak rooms, which are unclaimed, will, after a period of one month, be transferred to the Lost Property Office and be dealt with as prescribed in rules for unclaimed packages.

II.—RULES FOR REGULATING THE USE OF ROLLING STOCK, ENGINES AND TRAINS.

10.—Demurrage.

Circumstances	Time allowed free	Rate per ton or part of a ton of carrying capacity per hour or part of an hour in excess of the free time.	REMARKS.
In Railway Premises
On vehicles ordered and waiting to be loaded by senders or detained for consignment note or otherwise owing to default of or at the request of the sender.	9 hours of daylight from the time at which the vehicles are placed in position	One anna.
On loaded vehicles waiting to be discharged by owners.	9 hours of daylight from the time at which the vehicles are placed in position for unloading	Same rates as above.	The Railway Administration will at its option unload the vehicles and charge the consignee for doing so and will also charge wharfage on the contents under Rule I. The Railway reserves the right of unloading owner's loads at destination immediately on arrival or within 9 hours of daylight after arrival In such cases the cost of unloading will be borne by the Railway.
In Private Sidings
On vehicles waiting to be loaded at a private siding	9 hours of daylight from the time at which the vehicles are placed within the limits of such a siding	One anna.
On loaded vehicles waiting to be discharged in a private siding	9 hours of daylight from the time at which the vehicles are shunted within the limits of such a siding.	Same rates as above.

NOTE.—Daylight hours are reckoned as from 6 to 18 o'clock

Demurrage will be charged for every hour, day or night, in excess of the free time.

Demurrage charge on Engines, Reserved Carriage and Special Trains.

11. (a) When a carriage is ordered but not used by the train for which ordered, demurrage at a rate not exceeding 8 annas per vehicle per hour or part of an hour may be charged from the time the vehicle is made available until intimation is received that it is not required, subject to a minimum charge of Rs. 5 per vehicle.

(b) When, for the convenience of passengers, reserved carriages are detained at intermediate or at destination stations, demurrage may be charged as shown in sub-clause (a).

(c) When special trains are detained by passengers either at the starting, destination or intermediate stations, demurrage will be charged at the rate of 8 annas per vehicle per hour or part of an hour and Rs. 5 per hour or part of an hour, for the engine.

(d) In the case of special train ordered but not made use of, the demurrage per vehicle as notified in sub-clause (a) and Rs 5 per hour, subject to a minimum charge of Rs. 10 for the engine, may be charged.

III.—CALCULATION OF CHARGES.

12. In calculating wharfage and demurrage charges, fractions of one anna less than six pies shall be dropped and six pies and over shall be charged as one anna. Where the total amount of demurrage or of wharfage due on any consignment is less than two annas, it shall be foregone.

IV.—GENERAL.

13. (a) In the event of goods requiring to be loaded or unloaded by owners becoming liable to both demurrage and wharfage charges, the Railway Administration may levy both demurrage and wharfage charges for such periods as the goods would be liable to such charges under these rules.

(b) If and for so long as the state of the traffic or any sudden emergency makes it necessary and after advertisement in the local newspapers, the rate of demurrage or wharfage may be increased and the free time may be curtailed.

(c) Sundays Christmas Day and Good Friday will be reckoned in charging demurrage on all wagons made available for unloading on those days and stations will also be opened for unloading of wagons on those days so that merchants receiving wagons to their addresses which they are required to unload may do so.

This does not apply in the case of wharfage in which connection the above days will be treated as dies nón as hitherto fore.

(d) Explosives or dangerous goods must be removed by the consignee from the receiving station during the 12 hours of daylight after arrival ; if this condition is not strictly complied with, the Railway Administration may return the consignment to the consignor at his risk and expense.

(e) Should the wharfage or storage on actual weight exceed the demurrage charge at the wagon rate for the full time, the latter rate will be charged.

(f) The Railway Administration have the same lien on goods for demurrage and wharfage, and if incurred, for unloading as for freight ; and these charges must be paid before the goods are removed

The following Act of the Indian Legislative Council received the assent of the Governor General on the 11th February, 1920, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT No. III OF 1920.

An Act to modify certain provisions of the United Provinces Town Improvement Act, 1919.

U. P. Act VIII of 1919. WHEREAS it is expedient to modify the provisions of the United Provinces Town Improvement Act, 1919, so as to provide in certain cases for an appeal to the High Court from the awards of the Tribunal constituted under that Act; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title. 1. This Act may be called the United Provinces Town Improvement (Appeals) Act, 1920.

Definitions. 2. In this Act—

(1) "High Court" means in Agra the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad, and in Oudh, the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh ; and

U. P. Act VIII of 1919. (2) "Tribunal" has the same meaning as in the United Provinces Town Improvement Act, 1919.

U. P. Act VIII of 1919. Appeals from awards of the Tribunal. 3. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the United Provinces Town Improvement Act, 1919, and subject to the provisions of sub-section (2), an appeal shall lie to the High Court in any of the following cases, namely :—

(a) where the decision is that of the President of the Tribunal sitting alone in pursuance of clause (b) of section 64 of the said Act ;

(b) where the decision is that of the Tribunal, and—

(i) the President of the Tribunal grants a certificate that the case is a fit one for appeal, or

(ii) the High Court grants special leave to appeal :

Provided that the High Court shall not grant such special leave unless the President has refused to grant a certificate under sub-clause (i) and the amount in dispute is not less than five thousand rupees.

(2) An appeal under clause (b) of sub-section (1) shall only lie on one or more of the following grounds, namely :—

(i) the decision being contrary to law or to some usage having the force of law ;

(ii) the decision having failed to determine some material issue of law or usage having the force of law ;

(iii) a substantial error or defect in the procedure provided by the said Act which may possibly have produced error or defect in the decision of the case upon the merits.

Procedure in such appeals. 4. Subject to the provisions of section 3, the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, with respect to appeals from original decrees shall, so far as may be, apply to appeals under this Act. V of 1908.

Execution of orders of High Court. 5. Every order passed by the High Court on appeal under this Act shall be enforced, on application, by a Court of Small Causes within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the award or order appealed against was made, as if it were a decree of that Court.

Period of limitation for such appeals. 6. An appeal under section 3 shall be deemed to be an appeal under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, within the meaning of Article 156 of the First Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1908. V of 1908. IX of 1908.

Bills introduced in the Indian Legislative Council, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council and Bills published under Rule 23.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill further to amend the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907, was presented to the Indian Legislative Council on the 11th February, 1920 :—

WE, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill further to amend the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907, was re-committed for the purpose of consolidation have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the consolidating Bill prepared by us annexed thereto.

2. In preparing the consolidating Bill, we have thought it desirable to re-arrange the sections of the existing Act in what we think to be a better sequence. In so doing and in bringing into it the provisions of the amending Bill, a number of formal consequential amendments have been found necessary, and one or two minor changes of substance to which we refer specifically below.

3. In the Bill as prepared by us the amendments we have made are clearly distinguished, and for facility of reference a table is annexed giving the reference in the case of each clause to the corresponding provisions of the present Act and of the amending Bill, together with a table showing the undisposed provisions of the present Act.

4 Clause 13—With regard to sub-clause (1) (f), (ii), we consider that a statement regarding the annulment of a previous adjudication should be required in all cases and not only where the annulment was for failure to apply or to prosecute an application for discharge, and have provided accordingly

Clause 25.—In our first report we recommended the insertion of a new sub-section (1A), in section 15 of the existing Act, sub-clause (ii) of which we now think on re-consideration, is unnecessary, as we are satisfied that the point which this sub-clause was intended to meet is sufficiently covered by clause 10(2) of the present Bill We have accordingly omitted the sub-clause in question, which would otherwise have found a place here We further consider that sub-section (5) which in our first report we advised should be added in section 14 of the existing Act, (see clause 9 of the draft Bill attached to our first Report) and which would also have come in under clause 25 of the present Bill, is superfluous, as the point which it was intended to meet is sufficiently provided for by the existing power of withdrawal under clause 14 of the present Bill.

Clause 27.—We consider that publication should be made of an order extending the period within which the debtor must apply for his discharge, and for this purpose have made a slight addition to the words proposed to be inserted in the present Act by clause 11 (1) of the amending Bill.

Clause 34.—In view of clause 44 (2) it has become necessary to provide that debts which have been excluded from the schedule on the ground that their value is incapable of being fairly estimated shall not be debts provable under the Act, and we have provided accordingly.

Clause 53.—It is settled law that the word "void" in section 36 of the present Act means "voidable" only, and we have made this clear.

5. We think that the amending Bill has not been so altered as to require re-publication, and we recommend that the consolidating Bill proposed by us be passed

[CONSOLIDATING BILL PREPARED BY SELECT COMMITTEE.]

[The Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907 (III of 1907), re-arranged and with proposed amendments shown in loco.

N. B.—New matter is printed in italics, and new matter not contained in, or which is otherwise a variation of, the Amending Bill, is also underlined, with the exception of Schedules I and II.

The black numerals in margin refer to the sections of the existing Act: see Table of Disposal.]

A Bill to consolidate and amend the Law relating to Insolvency in British India, as administered by Courts having jurisdiction outside the Presidency-towns and the Town of Rangoon.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to insolvency in British India, as administered by Courts having jurisdiction outside the Presidency-towns and the Town of Rangoon; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Provincial Insolvency Act, 192 .

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, except the Scheduled Districts.

Definitions.

2. (1) In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) "creditor" includes a decree-holder, "debt" includes a judgment-debt, and "debtor" includes a judgment-debtor;

(b) "District Court" means the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction in any area outside the local limits for the time being of the Presidency-towns and of the Town of Rangoon;

(c) "prescribed" means prescribed by rules made under this Act;

(d) "property" includes any property over which or the profits of which any person has a disposing power which he may exercise for his own benefit;

(e) "secured creditor" means a person holding a mortgage, charge or lien on the property of the debtor or any part thereof as a security for a debt due to him from the debtor; and

[Cf. s. 2, Act III of 1909.] (f) "transfer of property" includes a transfer of any interest in property and the creation of any charge upon property.

V of 1908. (2) Words and expressions used in this Act and defined in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, and not hereinbefore defined shall have the same meanings as those respectively attributed to them by the said Code.

PART I.

CONSTITUTION AND POWERS OF COURT.

Insolvency jurisdiction.

2 3. (1) The District Courts shall be the Courts having jurisdiction under this Act:

Provided that the Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, invest any Court subordinate to a District Court with jurisdiction in any class of cases, and any Court so invested shall within the local limits of its jurisdiction have concurrent jurisdiction with the District Court under this Act.

(2) For the purposes of this Act, a Court of Small Causes shall be deemed to be subordinate to the District Court.

Power of Court to decide all questions arising in insolvency.

4. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the Court shall have full power to decide all questions whether of title or priority, or of any nature whatsoever, and whether involving matters of law or of fact, which may arise in any case of insolvency coming within the cognisance of the Court, or which the Court may deem it expedient or necessary to decide for the purpose of doing complete justice or making a complete distribution of property in any such case. New. [Cf. s. Act III 1909.]

(2) Subject to the provisions of this Act and notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, every such decision shall be final and binding for all purposes as between the debtor and all claimants against the debtor's estate who were parties thereto and all persons claiming through or under them or any of them.

(3) Where the Court does not deem it expedient or necessary to decide any question of the nature referred to in sub-section (1), but has reason to believe that the debtor has a saleable interest in any property, the Court may without further inquiry sell such interest in such manner and subject to such conditions as it may think fit.

General powers of Courts.

5. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the Court, in regard to proceedings under this Act, shall have the same powers and shall follow the same procedure as it has and follows in the exercise of original civil jurisdiction. 47

(2) Subject as aforesaid, High Courts and District Courts, in regard to proceedings under this Act in Courts subordinate to them, shall have the same powers and shall follow the same procedure as they respectively have and follow in regard to civil suits.

PART II.

PROCEEDINGS FROM ACT OF INSOLVENCY TO DISCHARGE.

Acts of insolvency.

Acts of insolvency.

6. A debtor commits an act of insolvency in each of the following cases, namely:— 4

(a) if, in British India or elsewhere, he makes a transfer of all or substantially all his property to a third person for the benefit of his creditors generally;

(b) if, in British India or elsewhere, he makes a transfer of his property or of any part thereof with intent to defeat or delay his creditors;

(c) if, in British India or elsewhere, he makes any transfer of his property, or of any part thereof, which would, under this or any other enactment for the time being in force, be void as a fraudulent preference if he were adjudged an insolvent;

(d) if, with intent to defeat or delay his creditors,—

(i) he departs or remains out of British India,

(ii) he departs from his dwelling-house or usual place of business or otherwise absents himself,

(iii) he secludes himself so as to deprive his creditors of the means of communicating with him;

(e) if any of his property has been sold in execution of the decree of any Court for the payment of money;

(f) if he petitions to be adjudged an insolvent under the provisions of this Act;

(g) if he gives notice to any of his creditors that he has suspended, or that he is about to suspend, payment of his debts; or

(h) if he is imprisoned in execution of the decree of any Court for the payment of money.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section the act of an agent may be the act of the principal.

Petition.

Petition and adjudication.

7. Subject to the conditions specified in this Act, if a debtor commits an act of insolvency, an insolvency petition may be presented either by a creditor or by the debtor, and the Court may on such petition make an order (hereinafter called an order of adjudication) adjudging him an insolvent.

Explanation.—The presentation of a petition by the debtor shall be deemed an act of insolvency within the meaning of this section, and on such petition the Court may make an order of adjudication.

Exemption of corporation, etc., from insolvency proceedings.

6 (6). 8. No insolvency petition shall be presented against any corporation or against any association or company registered under any enactment for the time being in force.

Conditions on which creditor may petition.

6 (4). 9. (1) A creditor shall not be entitled to present an insolvency petition against a debtor unless—

(a) the debt owing by the debtor to the creditor, or, if two or more creditors join in the petition, the aggregate amount of debts owing to such creditors, amounts to five hundred rupees, and

(b) the debt is a liquidated sum payable either immediately or at some certain future time, and

(c) the act of insolvency on which the petition is grounded has occurred within three months before the presentation of the petition.

6 (5). (2) If the petitioning creditor is a secured creditor, he shall in his petition either state that he is willing to relinquish his security for the benefit of the creditors in the event of the debtor being adjudged insolvent, or give an estimate of the value of the security. In the latter case, he may be admitted as a petitioning creditor to the extent of the balance of the debt due to him after deducting the value so estimated in the same way as if he were an unsecured creditor.

Conditions on which debtor may petition.

10. (1) A debtor shall not be entitled to present an insolvency petition, unless he is unable to pay his debts and— 6 (3).

(a) his debts amount to five hundred rupees; or

(b) he is under arrest or imprisonment in execution of the decree of any Court for the payment of money; or

(c) an order of attachment in execution of such a decree has been made, and is subsisting, against his property.

(2) A debtor in respect of whom an order of adjudication made under this Act has been annulled, owing to his failure to apply, or to prosecute an application for his discharge, shall not be entitled to present an insolvency petition without the leave of the Court by which the order of adjudication was annulled. Such Court shall not grant leave unless it is satisfied either that the debtor was prevented by any reasonable cause from presenting or prosecuting his application, as the case may be, or that the petition is founded on facts substantially different from those contained in the petition on which the order of adjudication was made. New.

Court to which petition shall be presented.

11. Every insolvency petition shall be presented to a Court having jurisdiction under this Act in any local area in which the debtor ordinarily resides or carries on business, or personally works for gain, or if he has been arrested or imprisoned, where he is in custody: 6 (2).

Provided that no objection as to the place of presentment shall be allowed by any Court in the exercise of appellate or revisional jurisdiction unless such objection was taken in the Court by which the petition was heard at the earliest possible opportunity, and unless there has been a consequent failure of justice. New.

Verification of petition.

12. Every insolvency petition shall be in writing and shall be signed and verified in the manner prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, for signing and verifying plaints. 6 (1). V of 1908.

Contents of petition.

13. (1) Every insolvency petition presented by a debtor shall contain the following particulars, namely:— 11.

(a) a statement that the debtor is unable to pay his debts;

(b) the place where he ordinarily resides or carries on business or personally works for gain, or, if he has been arrested or imprisoned, the place where he is in custody;

(c) the Court (if any) by whose order he has been arrested or imprisoned, or by which an order has been made for the attachment of his property, together with particulars of the decree in respect of which any such order has been made;

(d) the amount and particulars of all pecuniary claims against him, together with the names and residences of his creditors so far as they are known to, or can by the exercise of reasonable care and diligence be ascertained by, him;

(e) the amount and particulars of all his property, together with—

(i) a specification of the value of all such property not consisting of money;

(ii) the place or places at which any such property is to be found; and

(iii) a declaration of his willingness to place at the disposal of the Court all such property save in so far as it includes such particulars (not being his books of account) as are exempted by the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, or by any other enactment for the time being in force from liability to attachment and sale in execution of a decree; V of 1908.

New. (f) A statement whether the debtor has on any previous occasion filed a petition to be adjudged an insolvent, and (where such a petition has been filed)—

(i) if such petition has been dismissed, the reasons for such dismissal, or

(ii) if the debtor has been adjudged an insolvent, concise particulars of the insolvency, including a statement whether any previous adjudication has been annulled and, if so, the grounds therefor.

(2) Every insolvency petition presented by a creditor or creditors shall set forth the particulars regarding the debtor specified in clause (b) of sub-section (1), and shall also specify—

(a) the act of insolvency committed by such debtor, together with the date of its commission; and

(b) the amount and particulars of his or their pecuniary claim or claims against such debtor.

Withdrawal of petitions.

14. No petition, whether presented by a debtor or by a creditor, shall be withdrawn without the leave of the Court.

Consolidation of petitions.

15. Where two or more insolvency petitions are presented against the same debtor, or where separate petitions are presented against joint debtors, the Court may consolidate the proceedings or any of them, on such terms as the Court thinks fit.

Power to change carriage of proceedings.

16. Where the petitioner does not proceed with due diligence on his petition, the Court may substitute as petitioner any other creditor to whom the debtor may be indebted in the amount required by this Act in the case of a petitioning creditor.

Continuance of proceedings on death of debtor.

17. If a debtor by or against whom an insolvency petition has been presented dies, the proceedings in the matter shall, unless the Court otherwise orders, be continued so far as may be necessary for the realisation and distribution of the property of the debtor.

Procedure for admission of petition.

18. The procedure laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, with respect to the admission of plaints, shall so far as it is applicable, be followed in the case of insolvency petitions. 6 (1) V of 1908

Procedure on admission of petition.

19. (1) Where an insolvency petition is admitted, the Court shall make an order fixing a date for hearing the petition. 12

(2) Notice of the order under sub-section (1) shall be given to creditors in such manner as may be prescribed.

(3) Where the debtor is not the petitioner, notice of the order under sub-section (1) shall be served on him in the manner provided for the service of summons.

Appointment of interim receiver.

20. The Court when making an order admitting the petition may, and where the debtor is the petitioner ordinarily shall, appoint an interim receiver of the property of the debtor or of any part thereof, and may direct him to take immediate possession thereof or of any part thereof, and the interim receiver shall thereupon have such of the powers conferrable on a receiver appointed under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, as the Court may direct. If an interim receiver is not so appointed, the Court may make such appointment at any subsequent time before adjudication, and the provisions of this sub-section shall apply accordingly. New. [Cf. s. 13(2), Act III of 1907, and s. 16, Act III of 1909.] V of 1908.

Interim proceedings against debtor.

21. At the time of making an order admitting the petition or at any subsequent time before adjudication, the Court may, either of its own motion or on the application of any creditor, make one or more of the following orders, namely:— 13

(1) order the debtor to give reasonable security for his appearance until final orders are made upon the petition, and direct that, in default of giving such security, he shall be detained in the civil prison;

(2) order the attachment by actual seizure of the whole or any part of the property in the possession or under the control of the debtor, other than such particulars (not being his books of account) as are exempted by the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, or by any other enactment for the time being in force from liability to attachment and sale in execution of a decree; V of 1908.

(3) order a warrant to issue with or without bail for the arrest of the debtor, and direct either that he be detained in the civil prison until the disposal of the petition, or that he be released on such terms as to security as may be reasonable and necessary:

Provided that an order under clause (2) or clause (3) shall not be made unless the Court is satisfied that the debtor, with intent to defeat or delay his creditors or to avoid any process of the Court,—

(i) has absconded or has departed from the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court, or is about to abscond or to depart from such limits, or is remaining outside them, or

(ii) has failed to disclose or has concealed, destroyed, transferred or removed from such limits, or is about to conceal, destroy, transfer or remove from such limits, any documents likely to be of use to his creditors in the course of the hearing, or any part of his property other than such particulars as aforesaid.

43 (1) 22. The debtor shall on the making of an order admitting the petition produce all books of account, and shall at any time thereafter give such inventories of his property, and such lists of his creditors and debtors and of the debts due to and from them respectively, submit to such examination in respect of his property or his creditors, attend at such times before the Court or receiver, execute such instruments, and generally do all such acts and things in relation to his property as may be required by the Court or receiver, or as may be prescribed.

Duties of debtors.

New 23. (1) At the time of making an order admitting the petition or at any subsequent time before adjudication, the Court may, if the debtor is under arrest or imprisonment in execution of the decree of any Court for the payment of money, order his release on such terms as to security as may be reasonable and necessary.

Release of debtor.

(2) The Court may at any time order any person who has been released under this section to be re-arrested and re-committed to the custody from which he was released.

(3) At the time of making any order under this section, the Court shall record in writing its reasons therefor.

14 24. (1) On the day fixed for the hearing of the petition, or on any subsequent day to which the hearing may be adjourned, the Court shall require proof of the following matters, namely:—

Procedure at hearing.

(a) that the creditor or the debtor, as the case may be, is entitled to present the petition:

New Provided that, where the debtor is the petitioner, he shall, for the purpose of proving his inability to pay his debts, be required to furnish only such proof as to satisfy the Court that there are prima facie grounds for believing the same and the Court, if and when so satisfied, shall not be bound to hear any further evidence thereon;

(b) that the debtor, if he does not appear on a petition presented by a creditor, has been served with notice of the order admitting the petition; and

(c) that the debtor has committed the act of insolvency alleged against him.

(2) The Court shall also examine the debtor, if he is present, as to his conduct, dealings and property in the presence of such creditors as appear at the hearing, and the creditors shall have the right to question the debtor thereon.

(3) The Court shall, if sufficient cause is shown, grant time to the debtor or to any creditor to produce any evidence which appears to it to be necessary for the proper disposal of the petition.

(4) A memorandum of the substance of the examination of the debtor and of any other oral evidence given shall be made by the Judge, and shall form part of the record of the case.

25. (1) In the case of a petition presented by a creditor, where the Court is not satisfied with the proof of his right to present the petition or of the service on the debtor of notice of the order admitting the petition, or of the alleged act of insolvency, or is satisfied by the debtor that he is able to pay his debts, or that for any other sufficient cause no order ought to be made, the Court shall dismiss the petition. 15(1)

Dismissal of petition.

(2) In the case of a petition presented by a debtor, the Court shall dismiss the petition if it is not satisfied of his right to present the petition. New.

26. (1) Where a petition presented by a creditor is dismissed under sub-section (1) of section 25, and the Court is satisfied that the petition was frivolous or vexatious, the Court may, on the application of the debtor, award against such creditor such amount, not exceeding one thousand rupees, as it deems a reasonable compensation to the debtor for the expense or injury occasioned to him by the petition and the proceedings thereon, and such amount may be realised as if it were a fine. 15 (2) (3)

Award of compensation.

(2) An award under this section shall bar any suit for compensation in respect of such petition and the proceedings thereon.

Order of Adjudication.

27. (1) If the Court does not dismiss the petition it shall make an order of adjudication, and shall specify in such order the period within which the debtor shall apply for his discharge. 16 (1)

Order of adjudication.

(2) The Court may, if sufficient cause is shown, extend the period within which the debtor shall apply for his discharge, and in that case shall publish notice of the order in such manner as it thinks fit. New.

28. (1) On the making of an order of adjudication, the insolvent shall aid to the utmost of his power in the realisation of his property and the distribution of the proceeds among his creditors.

Effect of an order of adjudication.

(2) On the making of an order of adjudication the whole of the property of the insolvent shall vest in the Court or in a receiver as hereinafter provided, and shall become divisible among the creditors, and thereafter, except as provided by this Act, no creditor to whom the insolvent is indebted in respect of any debt provable under this Act shall during the pendency of the insolvency proceedings have any remedy 16(2),(3), (4) against the property of the insolvent in respect of the debt, or commence any suit or other legal proceeding, except with the leave of the Court and on such terms as the Court may impose.

(3) For the purposes of sub-section (2), all goods being, at the date of the presentation of the petition on which the order is made, in the possession, order or disposition of the insolvent in his trade or business, by the consent and permission of the true owner, under such circumstances that he is the reputed owner thereof, shall be deemed to be the property of the insolvent.

(4) All property which is acquired by or devolves on the insolvent after the date of an order of adjudication and before his discharge shall forthwith vest in the Court or receiver, and the provisions of sub-section (2) shall apply in respect thereof.

16 (2) (a) (5) The property of the insolvent for the purposes of this section shall not include any property (not being books of account) which is exempted by the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, or by any other enactment for the time being in force from liability to attachment and sale in execution of a decree. V of 1908.

16 (5) (6) (6) Nothing in this section shall affect the power of any secured creditor to realise or otherwise deal with his security, in the same manner as he would have been entitled to realise or deal with it if this section had not been passed.

(7) An order of adjudication shall relate back to, and take effect from, the date of the presentation of the petition on which it is made.

New. Stay of pending proceedings.

29. Any Court in which a suit or other proceeding is pending against a debtor shall, on proof that an order of adjudication has been made against him under this Act, either stay the proceeding or allow it to continue on such terms as such Court may impose.

6 (7) Publication of order of adjudication.

30. Notice of an order of adjudication stating the name, address and description of the insolvent, the date of the adjudication, the period within which the debtor shall apply for his discharge, and the Court by which the adjudication is made, shall be published in the local official Gazette and in such other manner as may be prescribed.

New. Proceedings consequent on order of adjudication.

Cf. s. 25, Act III of 1909. Protection order.

31. (1) Any insolvent in respect of whom an order of adjudication has been made may apply to the Court for protection, and the Court may on such application make an order for the protection of the insolvent from arrest or detention.

(2) A protection order may apply either to all the debts of the debtor, or to any of them as the Court may think proper, and may commence and take effect at and for such time as the Court may direct, and may be revoked or renewed as the Court may think fit.

(3) A protection order shall protect the insolvent from being arrested or detained in prison for any debt to which such order applies, and any insolvent arrested or detained contrary to the terms of such an order, shall be entitled to his release:

Provided that no such order shall operate to prejudice the rights of any creditor in the event of such order being revoked or the adjudication annulled.

(4) Any creditor shall be entitled to appear and oppose the grant of a protection order.

New. Power to arrest after adjudication.

32. At any time after an order of adjudication has been made, the Court may, if it has reason to believe on the application of any creditor or the receiver, that the debtor has absconded or departed from the local limits of its jurisdiction with intent to avoid any obligation which has been, or might be, imposed on him by or under this Act, order a warrant to issue for his arrest, and on his appearing or being brought before it, may, if satisfied that he was absconding or had departed with such intent, order his release on such terms as to security as may be reasonable or necessary, or if such security is not furnished, direct that he shall be detained in the civil prison for a period which may extend to three months.

Schedule of creditors.

33. (1) When an order of adjudication has been made under this Act, all persons alleging themselves to be creditors of the insolvent in respect of debts provable under this Act shall tender proof of their respective debts by producing evidence of the amount and particulars thereof, and the Court shall, by order, determine the persons who have proved themselves to be creditors of the insolvent in respect of such debts, and the amount of such debts, respectively, and shall frame a schedule of such persons and debts: 24

Provided that, if, in the opinion of the Court, the value of any debt is incapable of being fairly estimated, the Court may make an order to that effect, and thereupon the debt shall not be included in the schedule.

(2) A copy of every such schedule shall be posted in the Court-house.

(3) Any creditor of the insolvent may, at any time before the discharge of the insolvent, tender proof of his debt and apply to the Court for an order directing his name to be entered in the schedule as a creditor in respect of any debt provable under this Act, and not entered in the schedule, and the Court, after causing notice to be served on the insolvent and the other creditors who have proved their debts, and hearing their objections (if any), shall comply with or reject the application.

Debts provable under the Act.

34. (1) Debts which have been excluded from the schedule on the ground that their value is incapable of being fairly estimated and demands in the nature of unliquidated damages arising otherwise than by reason of a contract or a breach of trust shall not be provable under this Act. 28 (2)

(2) Save as provided by sub-section (1) all debts and liabilities, present or future, certain or contingent, to which the debtor is subject when he is adjudged an insolvent, or to which he may become subject before his discharge by reason of any obligation incurred before the date of such adjudication, shall be deemed to be debts provable under this Act. 28 (1)

Annulment of adjudication.

42(1) 35. Where, in the opinion of the Court, a debtor ought not to have been adjudged insolvent, or where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the debts of the insolvent have been paid in full, the Court shall, on the application of the debtor, or of any other person interested, by order in writing, annul the adjudication.

Power to annul adjudication of insolvency.

17 36. If, in any case in which an order of adjudication has been made, it shall be proved to the Court by which such order was made that insolvency proceedings are pending in another Court against the same debtor, and that the property of the debtor can be more conveniently distributed by such other Court, the Court may annul the adjudication or stay all proceedings thereon.

Power to cancel one of concurrent orders of adjudication.

42(2) and (3) 37. (1) Where an adjudication is annulled, all sales and dispositions of property and payments duly made, and all acts theretofore done, by the Court or receiver, shall be valid; but, subject as aforesaid, the property of the debtor who was adjudged insolvent shall vest in such person as the Court may appoint, or, in default of any such appointment, shall revert to the debtor to the extent of his right or interest therein on such conditions (if any) as the Court may, by order in writing, declare.

Proceedings on annulment.

(2) Notice of every order annulling an adjudication shall be published in the local official Gazette and in such other manner as may be prescribed.

Compositions and schemes of arrangement

27(1),(2),(3),(4),(5). 38. (1) Where a debtor, after the making of an order of adjudication, submits a proposal for a composition in satisfaction of his debts, or a proposal for a scheme of arrangement of his affairs, the Court shall fix a date for the consideration of the proposal, and shall issue a notice to all creditors in such manner as may be prescribed.

Compositions and schemes of arrangement.

(2) If, on the consideration of the proposal, a majority in number and three-fourths in value of all the creditors whose debts are proved and who are present in person or by pleader, resolve to accept the proposal, the same shall be deemed to be duly accepted by the creditors.

(3) The debtor may at the meeting amend the terms of his proposal if the amendment is, in the opinion of the Court, calculated to benefit the general body of creditors.

(4) Where the Court is of opinion, after hearing the report of the receiver, if a receiver has been appointed, and after considering any objections which may be made by or on behalf of any creditor, that the terms of the proposal are not reasonable or are not calculated to benefit the general body of creditors, the Court shall refuse to approve the proposal.

(5) If any facts are proved on proof of which the Court would be required either to refuse, suspend or attach conditions to the debtor's discharge, the Court shall refuse to approve the proposal unless it provides reasonable security for payment of not less than six annas in the rupee on all the unsecured debts provable against the debtor's estate.

(6) No composition or scheme shall be approved by the Court which does not provide for the payment in priority to other debts of all debts directed to be so paid in the distribution of the property of an insolvent 27(9)

(7) In any other case the Court may either approve or refuse to approve the proposal. 27 (6)

39. If the Court approves the proposal, the terms shall be embodied in an order of the Court, and the Court shall frame a schedule in accordance with the provisions of section 38, the order of adjudication shall be annulled, and the provisions of section 37 shall apply, and the composition or scheme shall be binding on all the creditors entered in the said schedule so far as relates to any debts entered therein 27 (7)

Order on approval.

40. If default is made in the payment of any instalment due in pursuance of the composition or scheme, or if it appears to the Court that the composition or scheme cannot proceed without injustice or undue delay, or that the approval of the Court was obtained by fraud, the Court may, if it thinks fit, re-adjudge the debtor insolvent and annul the composition or scheme but without prejudice to the validity of any transfer or payment duly made or of anything duly done under or in pursuance of the composition or scheme When a debtor is re-adjudged insolvent under this sub-section, all debts provable in other respects which have been contracted before the date of such re-adjudication shall be provable in the insolvency. 27 (8)

Power to re-adjudge debtor insolvent.

Discharge.

41. (1) A debtor may, at any time after the order of adjudication and shall, within the period specified by the Court, apply to the Court for an order of discharge, and the Court shall fix a day, notice whereof shall be given in such manner as may be prescribed, for hearing such application, and any objections which may be made thereto. 44(1),(2)

Discharge.

(2) Subject to the provisions of this section, the Court may, after considering the objections of any creditor and, where a receiver has been appointed, the report of the receiver —

(a) grant or refuse an absolute order of discharge; or

(b) suspend the operation of the order for a specified time; or

(c) grant an order of discharge subject to any conditions with respect to any earnings or income which may afterwards become due to the insolvent, or with respect to his after-acquired property.

42. (1) The Court shall refuse to grant an absolute order of discharge under section 41 on proof of any of the following facts, namely:— 44 (3)

Cases in which Court must refuse an absolute discharge.

(a) that the insolvent's assets are not of a value equal to eight annas in the rupee on the amount of his unsecured liabilities, unless he satisfies the Court that the fact that the assets are not of a value equal to eight annas in the rupee on the amount of his unsecured liabilities has arisen from circumstances for which he cannot justly be held responsible;

(b) that the insolvent has omitted to keep such books of account as are usual and proper in the business carried on by him and as sufficiently disclose his business transactions and financial position within the three years immediately preceding his insolvency;

(c) that the insolvent has continued to trade after knowing himself to be insolvent;

(d) that the insolvent has contracted any debt provable under this Act without having at the time of contracting it any reasonable or probable ground of expectation (the burden of proving which shall lie on him) that he would be able to pay it;

(e) that the insolvent has failed to account satisfactorily for any loss of assets or for any deficiency of assets to meet his liabilities;

(f) that the insolvent has brought on, or contributed to, his insolvency by rash and hazardous speculations, or by unjustifiable extravagance in living, or by gambling, or by culpable neglect of his business affairs;

(g) that the insolvent has, within three months preceding the date of the presentation of the petition, when unable to pay his debts as they became due, given an undue preference to any of his creditors;

(h) that the insolvent has on any previous occasion been adjudged an insolvent or made a composition or arrangement with his creditors;

(i) that the insolvent has concealed or removed his property or any part thereof, or has been guilty of any other fraud or fraudulent breach of trust.

44 (4) (2) For the purposes of this section, the report of the receiver shall be deemed to be evidence; and the Court may presume the correctness of any statement contained therein

44 (5) (3) The powers of suspending, and of attaching conditions to, an insolvent's discharge may be exercised concurrently.

New. [Cf. s. 41, Act III of 1909.]

Adjudication to be annulled on failure to apply for discharge.

43. (1) If the debtor does not appear on the day fixed for hearing his application for discharge or on such subsequent day as the Court may direct, or if the debtor does not apply for an order of discharge within the period specified by the Court, the order of adjudication shall be annulled, and the provisions of section 37 shall apply accordingly

[Cf. s. 23 (2), Act III of 1909.]

(2) Where a debtor has been released from custody under the provisions of this Act, and the order of adjudication is annulled under sub-section (1), the Court may, if it thinks fit, re-commit the debtor to his former custody, and the officer in charge of the prison to whose custody such debtor is so re-committed shall receive such debtor into his custody according to such re-commitment, and thereupon all processes which were in force against the person of such debtor at the time of such release as aforesaid shall be deemed to be still in force against him as if no order of adjudication had been made.

Effect of order of discharge.

44. (1) An order of discharge shall not release the insolvent from— 45

(a) any debt due to the Crown;

(b) any debt or liability incurred by means of any fraud or fraudulent breach of trust to which he was a party;

(c) any debt or liability in respect of which he has obtained forbearance by any fraud to which he was a party; or

(d) any liability under an order for maintenance made under section 488 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 [Cf. s. 46 (2), Act III of 1909.] V of 1898.

(2) Save as otherwise provided by sub-section (1), an order of discharge shall release the insolvent from all debts provable under this Act

(3) An order of discharge shall not release any person who, at the date of the presentation of the petition, was a partner or co-trustee with the insolvent, or was jointly bound or had made any joint contract with him or any person who was surety for him

PART III

ADMINISTRATION OF PROPERTY.

Method of proof of debts.

Debt payable at a future time

45. A creditor may prove for a debt not payable when the debtor is adjudged an insolvent as if it were payable presently, and may receive dividends equally with the other creditors, deducting therefrom only a rebate of interest at the rate of six per centum per annum computed from the declaration of a dividend to the time when the debt would have become payable, according to the terms on which it was contracted. 29

Mutual dealings and set-off.

46 Where there have been mutual dealings between an insolvent and a creditor proving or claiming to prove a debt under this Act, an account shall be taken of what is due from the one party to the other in respect of such mutual dealings, and the sum due from the one party shall be set off against any sum due from the other party, and the balance of the account, and no more, shall be claimed or paid on either side respectively. 30

Secured creditors

47. (1) Where a secured creditor realises his security, he may prove for the balance due to him, after deducting the net amount realised. 31

(2) Where a secured creditor relinquishes his security for the general benefit of the creditors, he may prove for his whole debt.

(3) Where a secured creditor does not either realise or relinquish his security, he shall, before being entitled to have his debt entered in the schedule, state in his proof the particulars of his security, and the value at which he assesses it, and shall be entitled to receive a dividend only in respect of the balance due to him after deducting the value so assessed.

(4) Where a security is so valued, the Court may at any time before realisation redeem it on payment to the creditor of the assessed value.

(5) Where a creditor, after having valued his security, subsequently realises it, the net amount realised shall be substituted for the amount of any valuation previously made by the creditor, and shall be treated in all respects as an amended valuation made by the creditor.

(6) Where a secured creditor does not comply with the provisions of this section, he shall be excluded from all share in any dividend.

Interest.

32 48. (1) On any debt or sum certain whereon interest is not reserved or agreed for, and which is overdue when the debtor is adjudged an insolvent, and which is provable under this Act, the creditor may prove for interest at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum,—

(a) if the debt or sum is payable by virtue of a written instrument at a certain time, from the time when such debt or sum was payable to the date of such adjudication; or,

(b) if the debt or sum is payable otherwise, from the time when a demand in writing has been made giving the debtor notice that interest will be claimed from the date of the demand until the time of payment to the date of such adjudication.

(2) Where a debt which has been proved under this Act includes interest or any pecuniary consideration in lieu of interest, the interest or consideration shall, for the purposes of dividend, be calculated at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum, without prejudice to the right of a creditor to receive out of the debtor's estate any higher rate of interest to which he may be entitled after all the debts proved have been paid in full.

Mode of proof.

25 49. (1) A debt may be proved under this Act by delivering, or sending by post in a registered letter, to the Court an affidavit verifying the debt.

(2) The affidavit shall contain or refer to a statement of account showing the particulars of the debt, and shall specify the vouchers (if any) by which the same can be substantiated. The Court may at any time call for the production of the vouchers.

Disallowance and reduction of entries in schedule.

26 50. (1) Where the receiver thinks that a debt has been improperly entered in the schedule, the Court may, on the application of the receiver and after notice to the creditor, and such inquiry (if any) as the Court thinks necessary, expunge such entry or reduce the amount of the debt.

(2) The Court may also, after like inquiry, expunge an entry or reduce the amount of a debt upon the application of a creditor where no receiver has been appointed, or where the receiver declines to interfere in the matter or, in the case of a composition or scheme, upon the application of the debtor.

Effect of insolvency on antecedent transactions.

Restriction of rights of creditor under execution.

34 51. (1) Where execution of a decree has issued against the property of a debtor, no person shall be entitled to the benefit of the execution against the receiver except in respect of assets realised in the course of the execution by sale or otherwise before the date of the admission of the petition. [Cf. s. 53(1), Act III of 1909.]

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the rights of a secured creditor in respect of the property against which the decree is executed.

(3) A person who in good faith purchases the property of a debtor under a sale in execution shall in all cases acquire a good title to it against the receiver.

Duties of Court executing decree as to property taken in execution.

52. Where execution of a decree has issued against any property of a debtor which is saleable in execution and before the sale thereof notice is given to the Court executing the decree that an insolvency petition by or against the debtor has been admitted, the Court shall, on application, direct the property, if in the possession of the Court, to be delivered to the receiver, but the costs of the suit in which the decree was made and of the execution shall be a first charge on the property so delivered, and the receiver may sell the property or an adequate part thereof for the purpose of satisfying the charge. 35

Avoidance of voluntary transfer.

53. Any transfer of property not being a transfer made before and in consideration of marriage or made in favour of a purchaser or incumbrancer in good faith and for valuable consideration shall, if the transferor is adjudged insolvent within two years after the date of the transfer, be voidable as against the receiver and may be annulled by the Court. 36

Avoidance of preference in certain cases.

54. (1) Every transfer of property, every payment made, every obligation incurred, and every judicial proceeding taken or suffered by any person unable to pay his debts as they become due from his own money in favour of any creditor, with a view of giving that creditor a preference over the other creditors, shall, if such person is adjudged insolvent on a petition presented within three months after the date thereof, be deemed fraudulent and void as against the receiver and shall be annulled by the Court. 37

(2) This section shall not affect the rights of any person who in good faith and for valuable consideration has acquired a title through or under a creditor of the insolvent.

Protection of bond fide transactions.

55. Subject to the foregoing provisions of this Act with respect to the effect of insolvency on an execution, and with respect to the avoidance of certain transfers and preferences, nothing in this Act shall invalidate in the case of an insolvency— 38

(a) any payment by the insolvent to any of his creditors;

(b) any payment or delivery to the insolvent;

(c) any transfer by the insolvent for valuable consideration; or

(d) any contract or dealing by or with the insolvent for valuable consideration:

Provided that any such transaction takes place before the date of the order of adjudication, and that the person with whom such transaction takes place has not at the time notice of the presentation of any insolvency petition by or against the debtor.

Realisation of Property.

18 56. (1) The Court may, at the time of the order of adjudication, or at any time afterwards, appoint a receiver for the property of the insolvent, and such property shall thereupon vest in such receiver.

Appointment of receiver.

(2) Subject to such conditions as may be prescribed, the Court may—

(a) require the receiver to give such security as it thinks fit duly to account for what he shall receive in respect of the property; and

(b) by general or special order, fix the amount to be paid as remuneration for the services of the receiver out of the assets of the insolvent.

(3) Where the Court appoints a receiver, it may remove the person in whose possession or custody any such property as aforesaid is from the possession or custody thereof:

Provided that nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorise the Court to remove from the possession or custody of property any person whom the insolvent has not a present right so to remove.

(4) Where a receiver appointed under this section—

(a) fails to submit his accounts at such periods and in such form as the Court directs, or

(b) fails to pay the balance due from him thereon as the Court directs, or

(c) occasions loss to the property by his wilful default or gross negligence, the Court may direct his property to be attached and sold, and may apply the proceeds to make good any balance found to be due from him or any loss so occasioned by him.

New (5) The provisions of this section shall apply, so far as may be, to interim receivers appointed under section 20.

19 57. (1) The Local Government may appoint such persons as it thinks fit (to be called "Official Receivers") to be receivers under this Act within such local limits as it may prescribe.

Power to appoint Official Receivers.

(2) Where any Official Receiver has been so appointed for the local limits of the jurisdiction of any Court having jurisdiction under this Act, he shall be the receiver for the purpose of every order appointing a receiver or an interim receiver issued by any such Court, unless the Court for special reasons otherwise directs.

(3) Any sum payable under clause (b) of sub-section (2) of section 56 in respect of the services of an Official Receiver shall be credited to such fund as the Local Government may direct.

(4) Every Official Receiver shall receive such remuneration out of the said fund or otherwise as the Local Government may fix in this behalf, and no remuneration whatever beyond that so fixed shall be received by the Official Receiver as such.

23 58. Where no receiver is appointed, the Court shall have all the rights of, and may exercise all the powers conferred on, a receiver under this Act.

Powers of Court if no receiver appointed.

59. Subject t[illegible]isions of this Act, the receiver shall, with all convenient speed, realise the property of the debtor and distribute dividends among the creditors entitled thereto, and for that purpose may— 20

Duties and powers of receiver.

(a) sell all or any part of the property of the insolvent;

(b) give receipts for any money received by him;

and may, by leave of the Court, do all or any of the following things, namely:—

(c) carry on the business of the insolvent so far as may be necessary for the beneficial winding up of the same;

(d) institute, defend or continue any suit or other legal proceeding relating to the property of the insolvent;

(e) employ a pleader or other agent to take any proceedings or do any business which may be sanctioned by the Court;

(f) accept as the consideration for the sale of any property of the insolvent a sum of money payable at a future time subject to such stipulations as to security and otherwise as the Court thinks fit;

(g) mortgage or pledge any part of the property of the insolvent for the purpose of raising money for the payment of his debts;

(h) refer any dispute to arbitration, and compromise all debts, claims and liabilities, on such terms as may be agreed upon; and

(i) divide in its existing form amongst the creditors, according to its estimated value, any property which, from its peculiar nature or other special circumstances, cannot readily or advantageously be sold.

60. (1) In any local area in which a declaration has been made under section 68 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, and is in force, no sale of immoveable property paying revenue to the Government or held or let for agricultural purposes shall be made by the receiver; but, after the other property of the insolvent has been realised, the Court shall ascertain— 21 V of 1908.

Special provisions in regard to immoveable property.

(a) the amount required to satisfy the debts proved under this Act after deducting the monies already received;

(b) the immoveable property of the insolvent remaining unsold; and

(c) the incumbrances (if any) existing thereon;

and shall forward a statement to the Collector containing the particulars aforesaid; and thereupon the Collector shall proceed to raise the amount so required by the exercise of such of the powers conferred on him by paragraphs 2 to 10 of the Third Schedule to the said Code as he thinks fit, and subject to the provisions of those paragraphs so far as they are applicable, and shall hold at the disposal of the Court all sums that may come to his hands by the exercise of such powers.

(2) Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to affect any provisions of any enactment for the time being in force prohibiting or restricting the execution of decrees or orders against immoveable property; and any such provisions shall be deemed to apply to the enforcement of an order of adjudication made under this Act as if it were such a decree or order.

Distribution of Property.

33 61. (1) In the distribution of the property of the insolvent, there shall be paid in priority to all other debts—

Priority of debts.

(a) all debts due to the Crown or to any local authority; and

(b) all salary or wages, not exceeding twenty rupees in all, of any clerk, servant or labourer in respect of services rendered to the insolvent during four months before the date of the presentation of the petition.

(2) The debts specified in sub-section (1) shall rank equally between themselves, and shall be paid in full, unless the property of the insolvent is insufficient to meet them, in which case they shall abate in equal proportions between themselves.

(3) Subject to the retention of such sums as may be necessary for the expenses of administration or otherwise, the debts specified in sub-section (1) shall be discharged forthwith in so far as the property of the insolvent is sufficient to meet them.

(4) In the case of partners, the partnership property shall be applicable in the first instance in payment of the partnership debts, and the separate property of each partner shall be applicable in the first instance in payment of his separate debts. Where there is a surplus of the separate property of the partners, it shall be dealt with as part of the partnership property; and where there is a surplus of the partnership property, it shall be dealt with as part of the respective separate property in proportion to the rights and interests of each partner in the partnership property.

(5) Subject to the provisions of this Act, all debts entered in the schedule shall be paid rateably according to the amounts of such debts respectively and without any preference.

(6) Where there is any surplus after payment of the foregoing debts, it shall be applied in payment of interest from the date on which the debtor is adjudged an insolvent at the rate of six per centum per annum on all debts entered in the schedule.

39 (1), (2) 62. (1) In the calculation of dividends, the receiver shall retain in his hands sufficient assets to meet—

Calculation of dividends.

(a) debts provable under this Act and appearing, from the insolvent's statements or otherwise, to be due to persons resident in places so distant that in the ordinary course of communication they have not had sufficient time to tender their proofs;

(b) debts provable under this Act, the subject of claims not yet determined;

(c) disputed proofs or claims; and

(d) the expenses necessary for the administration of the estate or otherwise.

(2) Subject to the provisions of sub-section (1), all money in hand shall be distributed as dividends.

63. Any creditor who has not proved his debt before the declaration of any dividend or dividends shall be entitled to be paid, out of any money for the time being in the hands of the receiver, any dividend or dividends which he may have failed to receive before that money is applied to the payment of any future dividend or dividends; but he shall not be entitled to disturb the distribution of any dividend declared before his debt was proved by reason that he has not participated therein. 39 (3)

Right of creditor who has not proved debt before declaration of a dividend.

64. When the receiver has realised all the property of the insolvent or so much thereof as can, in the opinion of the Court, be realised without needlessly protracting the receivership, he shall declare a final dividend; but before so doing, he shall give notice in manner prescribed to the persons whose claims to be creditors have been notified but not proved, that if they do not prove their claims within the time limited by the notice, he will proceed to make a final dividend without regard to their claims. After the expiration of the time so limited, or if the Court, on application by any such claimant, grants him further time for establishing his claim, then on the expiration of such further time, the property of the insolvent shall be divided among the creditors entered in the schedule without regard to the claims of any other persons. 39 (4)

Final dividend.

65. No suit for a dividend shall lie against the receiver; but where the receiver refuses to pay any dividend, the Court may, on the application of any creditor who is entered in the schedule, order him to pay it, and also to pay out of his own money interest thereon for the time that it is withheld, and the costs of the application. 39 (5)

No suit for dividend.

66. (1) The Court may appoint the insolvent himself to superintend the management of the property of the insolvent or of any part thereof, or to carry on the trade (if any) of the insolvent for the benefit of the creditors, and in any other respect to aid in administering the property in such manner and on such terms as the Court may direct. 40

Management by and allowance to insolvent.

(2) The Court may, from time to time, make such allowance as it may think just to the insolvent out of his property for the support of himself and his family, or in consideration of his services if he is engaged in winding up his estate; but any such allowance may, at any time, be varied or determined by the Court.

67. The insolvent shall be entitled to any surplus remaining after payment in full of his creditors, with interest as provided by this Act, and of the expenses of the proceedings taken thereunder. 41

Right of insolvent to surplus.

Appeal to Court against receiver.

22 68. If the insolvent or any of the creditors or any other person is aggrieved by any act or decision of the receiver, he may apply to the Court, and the Court may confirm, reverse or modify the act or decision complained of, and make such order as it thinks just:

Appeal to Court against receiver.

Provided that no application under this section shall be entertained after the expiration of twenty-one days from the date of the act or decision complained of.

PART V.

PENALTIES.

New. [Cf. s. 48 (9), Act III of 1907 and s. 103, Act III of 1909.]

69. If a debtor, whether before or after the making of an order of adjudication,—

Offences by debtors.

(a) wilfully fails to perform the duties imposed on him by section 22 or to deliver up possession of any part of his property which is divisible among his creditors under this Act, and which is for the time being in his possession or under his control to the Court or to any person authorised by the Court to take possession of it, or

(b) fraudulently with intent to conceal the state of his affairs or to defeat the objects of this Act,—

(i) has destroyed or otherwise wilfully prevented or purposely withheld the production of any document relating to such of his affairs as are subject to investigation under this Act, or

(ii) has kept or caused to be kept false books, or

(iii) has made false entries in or withheld entries from or wilfully altered or falsified any document relating to such of his affairs as are subject to investigation under this Act, or

(c) fraudulently with intent to diminish the sum to be divided among his creditors or to give an undue preference to any of his creditors,—

(i) has discharged or concealed any debt due to or from him, or

(ii) has made away with, charged, mortgaged or concealed any part of his property of any kind whatsoever, he shall be punishable on conviction by the Court with imprisonment which may extend to one year.

New. [Cf. s. 104, Act III of 1909.]

70. (1) Where the Court is satisfied that there is ground for inquiring into any offence referred to in section 69, the Court shall direct that a notice be served on the debtor in the manner prescribed in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, for service of a summons, calling on him to show cause why a charge or charges should not be framed against him.

Procedure on charge under section 69.

V of 1898.

(2) The notice shall set forth the substance of the offence, and any number of offences may be set forth in the same notice.

(3) At the hearing of such notice and of any charge framed in pursuance thereof, the Court shall, so far as may be, follow the procedure for the trial of warrant cases by Magistrates prescribed by Chapter XXI of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, and nothing in Chapter XXIII of the said Code relating to trials before High Courts and Courts of Session shall be applicable to such trial. V of 1898.

(4) Any number of offences under this section may be charged at the same time:

Provided that no debtor shall be sentenced to imprisonment exceeding an aggregate period of two years for offences under this section committed in the course of the same insolvency proceeding.

(5) The Court may, instead of itself inquiring into an offence under section 69 make a complaint thereof in writing to the nearest Magistrate of the first class having jurisdiction, and such Magistrate shall deal with such complaint in the manner laid down in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898: V of 1898.

Provided that it shall not be necessary to examine the complainant.

71. Where an insolvent has been guilty of any of the offences specified in section 69, he shall not be exempt from being proceeded against therefor by reason that he has obtained his discharge, or that a composition or scheme of arrangement has been accepted or approved. New. [Cf. s. 105 Act III of 1909.]

Criminal liability after discharge or composition.

72. (1) An undischarged insolvent obtaining credit to the extent of fifty rupees or upwards from any person without informing such person that he is an undischarged insolvent shall, on conviction by a Magistrate, be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine, or with both. 53

Undischarged insolvent obtaining credit.

(2) Where the Court has reason to believe that an undischarged insolvent has committed the offence referred to in sub-section (1), the Court, after making any preliminary inquiry that may be necessary, may send the case for trial to the nearest Magistrate of the first class, and may send the accused in custody or take sufficient security for his appearance before such Magistrate; and may bind over any person to appear and give evidence on such trial.

73. (1) Where a debtor is adjudged or re-adjudged insolvent under this Act, he shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be disqualified from— New.

Disqualifications of insolvent.

(a) being appointed or acting as a Magistrate;

(b) being elected to any office of any local authority where the appointment to such office is by election or holding or exercising any such office to which no salary is attached; and

(c) being elected or sitting or voting as member of any local authority.

(2) The disqualification which an insolvent is subject to under this section shall be removed, and shall cease if—

(a) the order of adjudication is annulled under section 35, or

(b) he obtains from the Court an order of discharge, whether absolute or conditional, with a certificate that his bankruptcy was caused by misfortune without any misconduct on his part.

(3) The Court may grant or refuse such certificate as it thinks fit, but any order of refusal shall be subject to appeal.

PART V.

SUMMARY ADMINISTRATION.

48 74. When a petition is presented by or against a debtor, if the Court is satisfied by affidavit or otherwise that the property of the debtor is not likely to exceed in value five hundred rupees, the Court may make an order that the debtor's estate be administered in a summary manner, and thereupon the provisions of this Act shall be subject to the following modifications, namely :—

Summary administration.

(i) unless the Court otherwise directs, no notice required under this Act shall be published in the local official Gazette ;

(ii) on the admission of a petition by a debtor, the property of the debtor shall vest in the Court as a receiver ;

(iii) at the hearing of the petition, the Court shall inquire into the debts and assets of the debtor, and determine the same by order in writing, and it shall not be necessary to frame a schedule under the provisions of section 33 ;

(iv) the property of the debtor shall be realised with all reasonable despatch and, thereafter, when practicable, distributed in a single dividend ;

(v) the debtor shall apply for his discharge within six months from the date of adjudication ; and

(vi) such other modifications as may be prescribed with the view of saving expense and simplifying procedure :

Provided that the Court may at any time direct that the ordinary procedure provided for in this Act shall be followed in regard to the debtor's estate, and thereafter the Act shall have effect accordingly.

PART VI.

APPEALS.

46 75. (1) The debtor, any creditor, the receiver or any other person aggrieved by a decision come to or an order made in the exercise of insolvency jurisdiction by a Court subordinate to a District Court may appeal to the District Court, and the order of the District Court upon such appeal shall be final :

Appeals.

Provided that the High Court, for the purpose of satisfying itself that an order made in any appeal decided by the District Court was according to law, may call for the case and pass such order with respect thereto as it thinks fit :

Provided further that any such person aggrieved by a decision of the District Court on appeal from a decision of a subordinate Court under section 4 may appeal to the High Court on any of the grounds mentioned in sub-section (1) of section 100 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908. V of 1908.

(2) Any such person aggrieved by any such decision or order of a District Court as is specified in Schedule I, come to or made otherwise than in appeal from an order made by a subordinate Court, may appeal to the High Court.

(3) Any such person aggrieved by any other order made by a District Court otherwise than in appeal from an order made by a subordinate Court may appeal to the High Court by leave of the District Court or of the High Court.

(4) The periods of limitation for appeals to the District Court and to the High Court under this section shall be thirty days and ninety days, respectively.

PART VII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

76. The costs of any proceeding under this Act, including the costs of maintaining a debtor in the civil prison, shall, subject to any rules made under this Act, be in the discretion of the Court in which the proceeding is had. 49

Costs.

77. All Courts having jurisdiction in insolvency and the officers of such Courts respectively shall severally act in aid of and be auxiliary to each other in all matters of insolvency, and an order of a Court seeking aid with a request to another of the said Courts shall be deemed sufficient to enable the latter Court to exercise, in regard to the matters directed by the order, such jurisdiction as either of such Courts could exercise in regard to similar matters within their respective jurisdictions. 50

Courts to be auxiliary to each other.

78. (1) The provisions of sections 5 and 12 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1908, shall apply to appeals and applications under this Act, and for the purpose of the said section 12, a decision under section 4 shall be deemed to be a decree. New. IX of 1908.

Limitation.

(2) Where an order of adjudication has been annulled under this Act, in computing the period of limitation prescribed for any suit or application for the execution of a decree (other than a suit or application in respect of which the leave of the Court was obtained under sub-section (2) of section 28) which might have been brought or made but for the making of an order of adjudication under this Act, the period from the date of the order of adjudication to the date of the order of annulment shall be excluded :

Provided that nothing in this section shall apply to a suit or application in respect of a debt provable but not proved under this Act.

51 79. (1) The High Court may, with the previous sanction, in the case of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, of the Governor General in Council, and, in the case of any other High Court, of the Local Government, make rules for carrying into effect the provisions of this Act.

Power to make rules.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may provide—

(a) for the appointment and remuneration of receivers (other than Official Receivers), the audit of the accounts of all receivers and the costs of such audit,

(b) for meetings of creditors,

[Cf. s. 112 (2) (c) of Act III of 1909.] (c) for the procedure to be followed where the debtor is a firm, and

(d) for the procedure to be followed in the case of estates to be administered in a summary manner.

(3) All rules made under this section shall be published in the Gazette of India or in the local official Gazette, as the case may be, and shall, on such publication, have effect as if enacted in this Act.

52 80. (1) The High Court, with the like sanction, may from time to time direct that, in any matters in respect of which jurisdiction is given to the Court by this Act, the Official Receiver shall, subject to the directions of the Court, have all or any of the following powers, namely :—

Delegation of powers to Official Receivers.

(a) to hear insolvency petitions, to examine the debtor and to make orders of adjudication ;

(b) to frame schedules and to admit or reject proofs of creditors ;

(c) to grant orders of discharge ;

(d) to approve compositions or schemes of arrangement ;

(e) to make interim orders in any case of urgency ; and

(f) to hear and determine any unopposed or ex parte application.

(2) Subject to the appeal to the Court provided for by section 68, any order made or act done by the Official Receiver in the exercise of the said powers shall be deemed the order or act of the Court.

81. Any Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, by notification in the local official Gazette, declare that any of the provisions of this Act specified in Schedule II shall not apply to insolvency proceedings in any Court or Courts having jurisdiction under this Act in any part of the territories administered by such Local Government. 54

Power of Local Government to bar application of certain provisions to certain Courts.

82. Nothing in this Act shall — 55

Savings.

(a) affect the Presidency-towns Insolvency Act, 1909, or section 8 of the Lower Burma Courts Act, 1900, or III of 1909. VI of 1900.

(b) apply to cases to which Chapter IV of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act, 1879, is applicable. XVII of 1879.

83. (1) The enactments mentioned in Schedule III are hereby repealed to the extent specified in the fourth column thereof. 56

Repeals.

(2) Where in any enactment or instrument in force at the date of the commencement of this Act, reference is made to Chapter XX (of Insolvent Judgment-debtors) of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1877, or of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, or to any section of either of those Chapters, such reference shall, so far as may be practicable, be construed as applying to this Act or to the corresponding section thereof. BILL No. 16 OF 1919

[AS AMENDED BY SELECT COMMITTEE.]

[Words printed in italics indicate the amendments suggested by the Select Committee.]

A Bill to provide for certain matters in connection with the taking of the Census.

WHEREAS it has been determined to take a census of British India during the year 1921, and it is expedient to provide for certain matters in connection with the taking of such census; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Census Act, 1920.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, inclusive of British Baluchistan, the Sonthal Parganas and the Pargana of Spiti.

Appointment of census-officers.

2. (1) The Local Government may appoint any person to take, or aid in, or supervise the taking of, the census within any specified local area.

(2) Persons so appointed shall be called census officers.

(3) The Local Government may delegate to such authority as it thinks fit the power of appointing census-officers which is conferred by this section.

Proof of appointment of census-officers and their status as public servants.

3. (1) A declaration in writing, signed by any officer authorised by the Local Government in this behalf, that any person has been duly appointed a census-officer for any local area shall be conclusive proof of such appointment

(2) All census-officers shall be deemed to be public servants within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code — XLV of 1860

Discharge of duties of census-officers in certain cases.

4. (1) (a) Every officer in command of any body of men belonging to His Majesty's naval, military or air forces or to His Majesty's Indian Marine Service or of any vessel of war,

(b) every person (except a pilot or harbour-master) having charge or control of a vessel,

(c) every person in charge of a lunatic asylum, hospital, workhouse, prison, reformatory or lock-up or of any public, charitable, religious or educational institution,

(d) every keeper, secretary or manager of any sarai, hotel, boarding-house, lodging-house, emigration depôt or club, and

(e) every occupant of immoveable property who has at the time of the taking of the census not less than twenty persons living on or in such property, and every manager or officer of a railway or other commercial or industrial establishment who has at such time not less than ten persons employed under him, shall, if so required by the District Magistrate or by such officer as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf, perform such of the duties of a census-officer in relation to the persons who at the time of the taking of the census are under his command or charge, or are inmates of his house or present on or in such immoveable property or are employed under him, as such Magistrate or officer may, by written order, direct.

(2) All the provisions of this Act relating to census-officers shall apply, so far as they can be made applicable, to all persons while performing such duties under this section, and any person refusing or neglecting to perform any duty which he is directed under this section to perform shall be deemed to have committed an offence under section 187 of the Indian Penal Code. — XLV of 1860

Power of District Magistrate to call upon certain persons to give assistance.

5. (1) The District Magistrate, or such officer as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf for any local area, may, by written order, which shall have effect throughout the limits of his district or of such local area, as the case may be, call upon—

(a) all owners and occupiers of land, tenure-holders, farmers, assignees of land-revenue and lessees of fisheries under the Burma Fisheries Act, 1905, or the Upper Burma Land and Revenue Regulation, 1889, or their agents, — Bur. Act III of 1905. III of 1889.

(b) all village-officers and servants in estates as defined in the Madras Proprietary Estates' Village Service Act, 1894, and — Mad. Act II of 1894.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Indian Legislative Council on the 11th February, 1920 :—

No. 5 OF 1920

Bill further to amend the Indian Tariff Act, 1894.

VIII of 1894. WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Tariff Act, 1894 ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title. 1. This Act may be called the Indian Tariff (Amendment) Act, 192 .

VIII of 1894. Amendment of Schedule II, Act VIII, 1894. 2. In Schedule II of the Indian Tariff Act, 1894, as subsequently amended, for item 45 the following shall be substituted, namely :—

Subject to the exemptions specified in No. 10—		Rs.
(1) Firearms other than pistols including gas and air-guns and rifles.	Each	15	or 20 per cent. ad valorem, whichever is higher.
(2) Barrels for the same, whether single or double.	"	15
(3) Pistols, including automatic pistols and revolvers.	"	15
(4) Barrels for the same, whether single or double.	"	15
(5) Main springs and magazine springs for firearms, including gas guns and rifles.	Each.	5	or 20 per cent. ad valorem, whichever is higher.
(6) Gun stocks and breech blocks.	"	3
(7) Revolver-cylinders, for each cartridge they will carry.	"	2
(8) Actions (including skeleton and waster) breech bolts and their heads, cocking pieces and locks (for muzzle loading arms).	"	1
(9) Machines for making, loading, or closing cartridges for rifled arms.	Ad valorem.	20 per cent.
(10) Machines for capping cartridges for rifled arms.	Ad valorem.	20 per cent.

It is hereby declared that it is expedient in the public interest that this Bill should have temporary effect under the provisions of the Provisional Collection of Taxes Act, 1918. XVI of 1918.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The main features of the present system under which tariff duties are levied on certain firearms, parts of firearms and cartridge-making machines in accordance with entry 45 in Schedule II to the Indian Tariff Act, 1894 (VIII of 1894), as subsequently amended, have remained unchanged since 1878, when the rates were first enacted as part of the Indian Arms Act, 1878 (XI of 1878). Both specific and ad valorem duties are provided for, the duty to be assessed in each case being the higher of the two rates. This rule is subject to two provisos, viz., (1) that no duty in excess of the 20 per cent ad valorem rate is levied on any article imported for his own private use, by a person lawfully entitled to possess it, and (2) that refunds of any duty paid in excess of the ad valorem rate may be granted on articles imported by dealers and subsequently sold retail to private persons lawfully entitled to possess them. This system of refunds has in practice been found to entail considerable trouble to the Customs authorities, and as the object of the imposition of the duties is not to increase the revenue, but to maintain some check on the importation of firearms, etc., the Government of India have decided to abolish that system and to substitute a general ad valorem duty of 20 per cent on all the articles mentioned in entry 45, subject to minimum rates in the case of the first eight articles. The Bill gives effect to that decision.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE INDIAN LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL ASSEMBLED UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT, 1915. (5 & 6 Geo. V, Ch. 61.)

The Council met at the Council Chamber, Imperial Secretariat, Delhi, on Wednesday, the 4th February, 1920.

PRESENT:

His Excellency BARON CHELMSFORD, P.C., G.M.S.I., G.M.I.E., G.C.M.G., G.C.B.E., Viceroy and Governor General, presiding, and 59 Members, of whom 51 were Additional Members.

OATH OF OFFICE.

The following Additional Members made the prescribed oath or affirmation of allegiance to the Crown :— 11-5 A.M.

The Hon'ble Sir Thomas Holland, K.C.S.I., K.C.I.E.

" Mr. Phillip James Griffiths Pipon, C.I.E., M.C.

" Haji Chaudhuri Muhammad Ismail Khan.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur asked :— 11-8 A.M.

1. "What is the annual cost of maintaining the establishment of the Indian Trade Commissioner in London ?" The establishment of the Indian Trade Commissioner in London.

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

"The cost of maintaining the establishment of the Indian Trade Commissioner in London during the year 1918-[illegible] amounted to £4,853-13-3."

[Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur; Sir George Barnes; Sir Arthur Anderson; Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi.] [4TH FEBRUARY, 1920.]

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur asked :—

Settlement of Indians in British Guiana.

2. "(a) Have any proposals been made by the authorities of British Guiana to attract Indians to settle in that country temporarily or permanently with a view to develop it?

(b) If so, what are the proposals and what do Government propose doing in the matter?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

"His Excellency has dealt with the subject-matter of this question in his opening speech. He proposes, as the Hon'ble Member will have learnt, that the scheme put forward by the authorities in British Guiana to attract Indians to settle in that country should be considered by a Committee of this Council and their conclusions reported to this Council. A Resolution will be proposed later to-day by the Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea."

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur asked :—

Safeguard-

3. "(a) Have Government any information about the proposed Undesirables Ordinance of the East African Protectorate?

(b) Do Government propose to take necessary steps to safeguard the interests of Indians in the Protectorate?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

"The Government of India have not received official information about the proposed removal of Undesirables Ordinance of the East African Protectorate, and we have no right to assume that the word undesirables connotes and is limited to Indian subjects.

They have, however, already addressed the Secretary of State for India on the subject, and have expressed the hope that in the absence of the Governor of the East African Protectorate, no anti-Indian legislation will be passed through the Legislative Council, and that no action detrimental to Indian interests will be taken pending the discussion with Lord Milner in London."

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur asked :—

...ment of parcels rate at several ...

4. "(a) Is it a fact that the rate for parcels to several important stations on the Eastern Bengal Railway has recently been considerably advanced causing great inconvenience to the general public?

(b) If the enhancement is due to the connected steamer companies having introduced a separate higher scale of charges over their steamer services, do Government propose to take necessary steps to bring the rates down to the previous level?"

The Hon'ble Sir Arthur Anderson replied :—

"(a) There has been no alteration in the parcels rates on the Eastern Bengal Railway.

(b) The steamer companies having through-booking arrangements with the Eastern Bengal Railway enhanced their charges with effect from the 1st June, 1919. Government have no control over the rates charged by the steamer companies, and the reply to the second part of the Hon'ble Member's question is accordingly in the negative."

The Hon'ble Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi asked :—

The Provincial Judicial Service in Bengal.

5. "(a) Have Government received all the recommendations of the Government of Bengal on the scheme of reorganisation of the Provincial Judicial Service in Bengal?

(b) Have any orders been passed on the said recommendations or are Government still considering the

[4TH FEBRUARY, 1920.] [Sir William Vincent; Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy; Sir George Barnes; Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda.]

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

"(a) The views of the Government of Bengal on the recommendations of the Public Services Commission relating to the Provincial Judicial Service have been received.

(b) No orders have yet been passed, but proposals in regard to pay of the Provincial Civil and Judicial Services of Bengal and of other Provinces also were submitted to the Secretary of State on the 9th December last. Other questions connected with these Services have recently been referred to him The Bengal Government's proposal for an increase of their judicial cadre has been deferred pending decision on the general question of reorganisation."

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy asked :—

Treatment of Indians in South Africa.

6 "Do Government propose to lay on the table the correspondence, if any, with authorities in England and South Africa in regard to the appointment of members of, terms of reference to, and procedure of, the Commission concerning the treatment of Indians in South Africa?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

"Such correspondence as has taken place is of a confidential nature, and the Government therefore do not propose to lay it upon the table."

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy asked :—

Unification of the laws of the Empire re Patents, Merchandise, etc.

7. "(a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the Resolution of the British Imperial Council of Commerce urging the unification of the laws of the Empire regarding Patents, Merchandise marks, etc.?

(b) Have Government had any correspondence with the Secretary of State about this matter?

(c) If so, will it be placed on the table?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

"The attention of the Government of India has been drawn to a Resolution passed at a special Business Conference of the British Imperial Council of Commerce on June 4th, 1919. The Resolution ran as follows :—

'That considerable economies in time and expense would be acomplished if various laws of the Empire were unified, especially in regard to—

(a) the constitution and registration of firms and companies;
(b) the liquidation and winding up of companies;
(c) bankruptcy of private firms;
(d) merchandise marks;
(e) patents, trade marks and designs;
(f) copyright;
(g) the description and labelling of foodstuffs and drugs;

and that representations be addressed to His Majesty's Government and the Governments of the Dominions urging that the subject of the unification of commercial laws be considered by the Imperial Conference.'

The Government of India have had no correspondence with the Secretary of State relating to this Resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda asked :—

The Arms Act.

8. "(a) Is it the policy of the revised Arms Act Rules to remove all racial distinctions in the matter of exemption under the Act?

(b) In the revised rules published in the Gazette of India Extraordinary of the 1st January, 1920, does not clause [illegible] Schedule I exempt every officer holding a commission from His Majesty, every Officer of His Majesty's Forces, every person who has been registered under the Registration Ordinance, 1917 (I of 1917), and every Warrant Officer or Staff Sergeant of a British Unit of His Majesty's Army (including a Staff Sergeant or Warrant Officer who is an instructor of an Indian Defence Force Corps) from all prohibitions under the Arms Act ?

(c) Does such exemption extend to the Indian ranks of the Army and the Indian sections of the Indian Defence Force, and can any Indian come under the class of persons registered under the Registration Ordinance of 1917 ? If not, will Government consider the propriety of removing the racial distinctions involved ?"

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent replied :—

"(a) Yes

(b) The Hon'ble Member has apparently misunderstood the purport of entry (9) of Schedule I of the Indian Arms Rules, 1920. The classes mentioned in that entry are exempted only in respect of single-barrel rifles of ·303 bore required for match-shooting purposes, and the exemption is subject to the provisos and restrictions specified in column 3 of the Schedule. The intention of the entry was merely to protect from confiscation the present possessors of match-shooting rifles. There has been no match-shooting since 1914, and it is improbable that match-shooting rifles will be permitted in future rifle competitions. When this question has been decided, the necessity of amending the entry will be considered.

(c) The exemption extends equally to all members of the classes named in the entry, irrespective of their race. It does not extend to the Indian section of the Indian Defence Force. The Registration Ordinance of 1917 does not apply to Indians; only European British subjects were required to register themselves under that Ordinance."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda asked :—

Memorial of Telephone Operators, Eastern Circle.

9. "(a) Have the Government telephone operators of the Eastern Circle submitted a memorial to His Excellency the Viceroy setting forth certain grievances ?

(b) Is it a fact, as stated in this memorial—

(i) that they have to work for 56 hours during the week, including Telegraph office holidays and Sundays and have also to perform night duties without any overtime allowance ;

(ii) that the increase in their pay lately sanctioned under the revised scheme has immediately been curtailed ;

(iii) that promotion is not made in accordance with seniority among all the operators in the Circle but according to a system of grading the operators of each Exchange by themselves—with the result that a junior operator of one Exchange is promoted to a higher grade in supersession of a senior operator of another Exchange in the same Circle; and

(iv) that their service has been made non-pensionable ?

(c) Do Government propose to consider these grievances and direct that the service of the present operators at any rate should continue to be pensionable and to sanction pay at the same time-scale rate (Rs. 35—5—130) as that of the signal room clerks ?"

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes replied :—

"(a) The first memorials from Government telephone operators of the Eastern Circle reached the Director General, Posts and Telegraphs, on January 10th, 1920.

[4TH FEBRUARY, 1920.] [Sir George Barnes; Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda; Mr. Shafi; Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis; Mr. H. R. C. Dobbs.]

(b) (i) In small Exchanges, open always, where only three operators are employed owing to the lightness of the work, the average weekly duty throughout the year is 56 hours. In the more heavily worked Exchanges where a larger staff is necessary the hours are less. Ordinary night duties without overtime are required from operators as part of the conditions of their service. Government have recently authorised the Director General to grant overtime and a standard period of duty is now being considered.

(ii) The rates of pay were in a few cases modified subsequent to the introduction of the revised scale to meet the local requirements of the different Exchanges. In every case the rates finally sanctioned were higher than those originally in force.

(iii) The staff of each telephone system is retained on a separate cadre at varying local rates of pay because conditions of work vary considerably in different Exchanges.

(iv) The service was made non-pensionable with effect from March 1st, 1919, but the pension rates of men already in the service were safeguarded.

(c) The Government of India will consider any recommendations which the Director General, Posts and Telegraphs, may make as the result of these memorials."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda asked :—

10. "Have any Local Governments taken action on the lines recommended by the Royal Commission on venereal diseases which, as was stated by Sir Sankaran Nair in reply to a question by the Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy on the 20th September, 1917, were commended to the Local Governments ?" Venereal diseases

The Hon'ble Mr. Shafi replied :—

"The Hon'ble Member's attention is invited to the reply given by the Hon'ble Sir Sankaran Nair to the Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy's question on the same subject on the 20th September, 1917. Information regarding the action which Local Governments might take was not called for and hence is not available. Certain alterations in the statistical tables of the working of Hospitals and Dispensaries are under consideration, so as to elucidate more clearly the incidence of venereal diseases throughout British India. The Hon'ble Member will be interested to learn that a league for combating venereal diseases was formed in the city of Bombay in March 1917, and, through the generosity of the Western India Turf Club, which gave a donation of R30,000, has established a dispensary in the city. The dispensary is reported to be doing exceptionally good work The expenditure of the League is between R20,000 and R25,000. The Bombay Municipal Corporation gives an annual grant of R7,500 and the Local Government an annual grant of R15,000. Action for coping with these diseases has also been taken by the Dufferin Fund Association and, it is understood, by other authorities."

The Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis asked :—

11. "In view of several telegrams appearing in the papers about Russian Bolshevik forces trying to make their head-quarters in mid-Asia and the influence they are thus likely to have on Indian politics, will Government be pleased to state their policy in that connection, and what steps Government intended to take to meet that contingency ?" The Russian Bolshevik Forces.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. R. C. Dobbs replied :—

"The Government of India are fully alive to the importance of excluding Bolshevik influence from India and have for some time been engaged in measures for that purpose. It would not be in the public interest to state what those measures are."

INDIAN CENSUS BILL.

11-16 A.M. The Hon'ble Mr. Shafi :—"My Lord, I beg to move that the Bill to provide for certain matters in connection with the taking of the Census be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes, the Hon'ble Mr. Sharp, the Hon'ble Sardar Sunder Singh, the Hon'ble Nawab Nawab Ali Chaudhuri, the Hon'ble Mr. Sinha, the Hon'ble Mr. Allen and myself"

The motion was put and agreed to

INLAND STEAM VESSELS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

11-17 A.M. The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes :—"My Lord, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Inland Steam-vessels Act, 1917.

"The reason for this Bill is the introduction by the Board of Trade of a new formula for determining the nominal horse-power of marine engines. This new formula expresses the power of engines with more accuracy than the old formula, and we think that it ought to be made applicable to inland steam-vessels in India.

"The result of adopting the new formula will be to raise the nominal horse-power of engines. As an example, the engine of 80 horse-power under the old formula becomes, under the new formula, an engine of about 100 horse-power.

"Thus the result of adopting the new formula without amending the Act would be to preclude masters and engineers, who have held charge of vessels for years and who are fully competent, from holding charge any longer. This would obviously be unwise and unjust, and it is consequently proposed to amend the figures of nominal horse-power given in sections 25, 26 and 27 of the Inland Steam-vessels Act, 1917.

"At the same time, the Bill proposes to give Local Governments power to relax to some extent the stringency of the conditions laid down in the Act so as to enable persons holding second-class masters' certificates or first-class engine-drivers' certificates granted under the Inland Steam-vessels Act, or engine-drivers' certificates granted under the Indian Steam-ships Act, 1884 (VII of 1884), to be licensed, in certain circumstances, as masters or engineers of vessels having engines of a somewhat higher nominal horse-power than the existing law allows The conditions under which such licenses are to be granted are stated in clause 2 of the Bill.

"The amendments in clauses 3 and 4 are purely consequential Clauses 5, 6 and 7 make the necessary amendments which are consequent on adopting the new formula. Clause 8 gives a rule-making power with regard to the grant of licenses under clause 2, and clause 9 contains nothing but small consequential amendments."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes :—"My Lord, I beg to introduce the Bill and to move that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India in English."

The motion was put and agreed to.

INDIAN SECURITIES BILL.

11-20 A.M. The Hon'ble Mr. W. M. Hailey :—"My Lord, I beg to move that the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Government Securities be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Sir

[4TH FEBRUARY, 1920.] [Mr. W. M. Hailey; Sir William Vincent]

George Lowndes, the Hon'ble Mr. Sita Nath Ray, the Hon'ble Mr. Sarma, the Hon'ble Mr. Moncrieff Smith, the Hon'ble Mr. Paton, the Hon'ble Mr. Crum, the Hon'ble Mr. Cook, the Hon'ble Mr. Marjoribanks and myself.

"I do not think, my Lord, that I need detain the Council with remarks at any great length on the proposed Bill. It was published in October last, and a letter which fully explained its objects was issued to Local Governments and to public bodies and a copy was also sent to each Member of this Council. Briefly, I may say that the existing Act of 1886 has now become obsolete in modern conditions. It served its purpose well enough when the only contributors to our loans were banks or large financial houses, but our policy of late years has been to endeavour to extend the sphere of our subscribers as far as possible; to bring small subscribers on to our loan lists wherever we can. In the loan of 1917 there were 157,000 subscribers, in the list of 1918, 230,000 It is obvious that we must provide greater facilities for these small subscribers than were necessary when the loans were confined to the banks or large financial houses.

"There are two other points for notice. We have decided to take powers to enable persons occupying public or quasi-public positions to hold securities, without such securities being entered in their own names, and also desire to provide in the Bill some summary procedure for settling disputed claims to promissory notes. In a technical matter of this nature, it is necessary that there should be a some wide rule-making power and we have, therefore, drawn up rules in advance which we propose to place before the Select Committee for their information."

The motion was put and agreed to.

CHARITABLE AND RELIGIOUS TRUSTS BILL.

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent :—" My Lord, the Bill on which I am about to address the Council is one that I introduced last September, and I then explained its provisions in some detail. In my judgment it is a measure which is much overdue and has been long demanded by educated opinion in this country. I believe also that, even if it goes a small way to assist those who are anxious to prevent the misappropriation of public trust funds, it will serve a very beneficent purpose. My Lord, I think I am right in saying that, when I introduced this Bill, there was not a single dissentient voice here; and from conversations and discussions outside the Council, I had reason to believe that the measure commended itself to many Hon'ble Members. It has now been circulated for examination by Local Governments, and I may say that general opinion is strongly in favour of our proposals. I think I ought perhaps on a subject of this importance to give the Council some of the leading opinions. The Central Provinces Administration say that the Bill was welcomed with hardly a dissenting note The Bengal Government report practically no objection from any of those consulted, and further that the view was expressed that there was nothing in the Bill which was repugnant to religious sentiment Assam supports the Bill Bihar and Orissa also approve it and say that it has been very well received there; Burma approves of it. Bombay reports that well-informed Indian opinion is in favour of it There are, however, some Local Governments that do not take this view. The Government of the Punjab thinks that the Bill is in advance of public opinion. I doubt if that is correct myself, but if that is so, it would be possible to arrange that the Punjab should be excluded from the area in which the Bill applies proprio vigore, and it may be extended to that province later, if necessary. The Chief Commissioner of Delhi also is not in favour of the Bill The Government of the United Provinces suggests that the matter should be deferred until there is a larger and more representative Council, and Madras is anxious to deal with the subject entirely by local legislation. But even in these provinces from which this note of dissent has come there are many authorities and associations which have approved of the provisions of the Bill. Indeed, there is amongst some an idea that the Bill does not go far enough. When I introduced the Bill in Council, I explained that it was by no means intended that this should be a comprehensive measure for dealing with these Trusts. We have left to Local Governments and Provincial Councils complete latitude to deal further with these Trusts in any manner they think fit, subject at present to certain limitations which the Secretary of State has imposed, and I hope, in view of the hostile opinions to which I have drawn attention, that Members of this Council will realise the difficulties in the way of introducing a more comprehensive All-India measure, one that would give us stricter powers of control. It is, however, open to any Member now to promote a Bill which gives additional powers of control, but with the existing form of government, I suggest to the Council that the present Bill goes far enough. It is not the intention of Government to force this Bill through the Council. If there is a decided majority of non-officials against it, then I shall make no further motion in respect of it. Official Additional Members in this Council also have complete freedom in the matter of speaking and voting on this Bill as they like. My own hope is that it will commend itself to the Council, for though it is a very simple measure it will, I hope, have far-reaching effects for good in many ways. I sympathise very much with the view of those who would go further. I should like, my Lord, to explain the position of Government in this matter, and why we do not go further. When I took up the question I found that the scheme of the present Bill had been threshed out after very careful and prolonged consultation, both with non-officials in this Council and with the Secretary of State. I was, therefore, left in this dilemma that if I wanted to introduce a more comprehensive Bill I should have had first of all to convince my Colleagues that it was safe to do so without again consulting the non-officials, and then I should have had to convince the Secretary of State. The India Office has been at times, as Members of this Council are aware, very conservative in dealing with these Trusts. I should also have to meet a certain amount of opposition from the conservative section of the people. In these circumstances, and bearing in mind the fact that Provincial Councils are left free to deal more completely with this matter, I thought it was advisable to introduce the Bill in its present form. My Lord, I do not propose to discuss the details of the measure at this juncture; the views put forward will be very carefully examined in the Select Committee.

"Many of these criticisms are indeed of great weight. I have now only to say that, though I have left this matter to an open vote, I sincerely hope that this Bill which goes some way to prevent the really scandalous misappropriation of public trust money which goes on at the present moment, that this Bill which has been supported by the educated opinion throughout the country, will commend itself to Members of this Council.

"I move, my Lord, that the Bill to provide more effectual control over the administration of Charitable and Religious Trusts be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes, the Hon'ble Mir Asad Ali, the Hon'ble Mr. Muddiman, the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde, the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea, the Hon'ble Pandit Malaviya, the Hon'ble Mr. Marjoribanks, the Hon'ble Mr. Sinha, the Hon'ble Mr. Kincaid, the Hon'ble Mr. Casson and myself."

11-31 A.M. The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda:—"My Lord, I beg to move the amendment which stands in my name and which is as follows:—

'That the motion to refer the Bill to a Select Committee do stand over till 1921.'

"My Lord, I may tell the Council at once that I move this amendment because I feel that the Bill does not go far enough. We want control, real control, over the administration of religious and charitable trusts, and power to prevent waste and maladministration and misappropriation of trust funds which now goes on very largely. We want means for the removal of dishonest and unscrupulous trustees, managers, mahants of temples and the like who are now disgracefully, shamefully squandering or misappropriating the funds of such religious endowments and doing wicked things in the name of religion. Of course, my remarks apply to Hindu shrines as I have no knowledge of the shrines of other communities. This is what is wanted, but I do not think that the remedies proposed in this Bill will be of very great use to us. Speaking broadly, there are two remedies proposed by this Bill. One is, that any one interested in any Trust may move the Judge and through him obtain some information, and secondly, the Trustees of these Trusts may apply to the Judge for direction, advice and opinion. As regards the second remedy, I do not know if it is not of doubtful utility, it may even be mischievous. As regards the first, the mere fact that there will be in the Statute-book a provision enabling any one interested in any Trust to apply to the Judge and obtain information will be something but it will not go far enough. All the same, in spite of this information a suit will have to be filed against the trustees. This can be done even at present with a certificate from the Advocate General. At the same time, I do not feel that I should be justified in asking for a more drastic measure, for the incorporation of more stringent provisions in this Bill if this Bill is to be passed by the Council as at present constituted. It will not be expedient. That will be exposing the Government unnecessarily to public odium, and the unscrupulous trustees and managers will take advantage of the ignorance of the masses and the mohants and the managers have immense hold upon them being considered tirtha-gurus or religious preceptors at the shrines, and these trustees and managers will work on and exploit the superstitions and ignorance of the masses against the Government. I do not think it will be fair. The matter is really very urgent, no doubt, but we have allowed more than half a century to go by without taking any action. There has been non-intervention for 57 years, and I do not think it will do much harm if we would wait only one year more. A year hence there will be a more popular form of government in the Provinces, the Councils will be more representative of the opinions of the country. Therefore, my Lord, why not leave those people to take action in the matter and to propose what remedies they think necessary in each Province. That is my ground for moving my amendment, my Lord, and I am fortified in this by the weighty opinions of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of the United Provinces. The Council is aware that the United Provinces has got the largest number of Hindu shrines in Benares, Allahabad, Bindhachall, Hardwar, Rishikesh, Lachmanjhoola, Muttra and Bindraban. I think the opinion of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor that the matter might be postponed and that it might be dangerous to let the Bill pass by this Council ought to carry weight. I also find that my Hon'ble friend Mr. Barron is of the same opinion. Speaking as Chief Commissioner of Delhi he supports it, and the Punjab Government goes further. On these grounds, my Lord, I submit that it will be wiser to let the matter stand over for one year. Subject to this amendment, I would like to make one or two observations on some of the provisions of the Bill. In the first place, I do not find the word 'Trustees' defined. I think it will be advisable to define 'Trustees' . . .

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—"May I rise to a point of order, my Lord? The Hon'ble Member is speaking on the provisions of the Bill, while he is actually moving an amendment that consideration of the Bill should be postponed. He will have an opportunity of speaking on the details of the Bill later and ought to do so then." 11-38 A.M.

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda:—"I do not think I shall have an opportunity of discussing this matter in the Select Committee, so I thought I might submit one or two observations relating to the provisions of the Bill."

The President:—"The Hon'ble Member will have an opportunity, when his amendment is disposed of, of discussing this question on the motion that the Bill be passed."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda:—"Very well, my Lord. With these remarks, I submit my amendment to the Council."

[Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya; Mr. Sachchidananda Sinha.] [4TH FEBRUARY, 1920.]

11-39 A.M. The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—"My Lord, I support the amendment moved by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Chanda. I am entirely at one with those who want that Religious Trusts and Charitable Trusts should be better administered. There has been a great deal of complaint and just complaint, that the noble objects of those who endowed these Trusts have in too many instances not been satisfactorily achieved, and there is a just complaint that there should be some better provision made to bring those who are responsible for the management of those Trusts to account. But, while I am heartily in sympathy with the principle of the Bill, while I wish that no unnecessary delay should take place in providing effective means for having the objects of the Trusts rightly carried out, I feel there is a great deal of force in the opinion expressed by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of the United Provinces wherein he points out for the consideration of the Government of India that the consideration of this Bill might be left over until the new Councils are re-constituted. Now, my Lord, the Government of Madras also said that 'the Governor in Council is of opinion that, if local legislatures are to be allowed to revise Act XX of 1863, the provisions of the present Bill might well have been left for consideration in connection with local Bills.' There is a great deal in support of this view. The Religious and Charitable Trusts are particularly matters which can best be dealt with by local Councils on which there will be representatives of various districts in the Provinces. I do not think that this is a matter which can be dealt with satisfactorily by the present Council. The conditions of these Charitable and Religious Trusts in the different Provinces vary, and the need for interference and the measures necessary to make the interference more effective will also probably vary. Therefore, I think that this is a matter which should be left over not merely till the representative Legislative Assemblies are constituted, but it might be left over to the Provincial Councils as they will be constituted under the Reform Act. No doubt there will be some delay, and it is regrettable, but as has been pointed out by several gentlemen who were consulted, this Bill proposes to make the procedure more easy and simple, but at the same time it has also been pointed out by some of those who were consulted, the Bill does not go far enough in the interests of several persons. If, therefore, as some people think, the measure should not be passed by this Council, and if, on the other hand, as some people think, the measure does not go far enough, that shows that this is a measure which might well stand over and considered by the re-constituted Provincial Councils, and one might expect that with the full knowledge which the local representatives will possess, they will be able to provide for a more effective measure for the honest administration of both Religious and Charitable Trusts. With these observations, I second the proposal of Mr. Chanda that the matter might well stand over until the re-constituted Councils, at least until the Legislative Assembly has been re-constructed As I have indicated, personally I think that this is a matter properly for local legislatures and it will be better if the consideration of this matter were left over for another year."

11-43 A.M. The Hon'ble Mr. Sachchidananda Sinha:—"My Lord, I have listened very carefully to the speeches of my Hon'ble friends, Mr. Chanda and Pandit Malaviya, and I am sorry to say that I have not been able to appreciate their point of view. I rise, therefore, to support the motion before the Council, and to oppose my friend Mr. Chanda's amendment. Mr. Chanda concedes that the Bill does not go far enough. That is also the view, I understand, of my esteemed friend Pandit Malaviya, but Mr. Chanda suggests that, in view of the fact that there will be a new Council sitting next year, this matter might be postponed till then. My Lord, I feel very strongly on this question of Religious and Charitable Endowments, and if I did not express my opinion in September last at Simla when the Bill was introduced by my Hon'ble friend Sir William Vincent, it was only because I thought that the matter did not require any tangible support from a member of the educated Indian community. The mismanagement of these Endowments by mahants, mutawalis and others throughout the whole country, has been a great scandal for the last fifty or sixty years, and I am very glad that the Government have at last made up their mind to move even partially in the matter. I do not think, therefore, it is desirable that this Bill should be postponed for those who will come into this Council hereafter. That Council will no doubt be a representative one, but I doubt personally whether it would be quite as good as this Council is to consider this matter. A representative Council does not necessarily mean that it will be more cultured and enlightened than we are, and, I think, we are quite—if not more—as capable, as cultured and as enlightened to deal with a non-controversial matter of this character as the Council to come.

"My friend Pandit Malaviya says that this matter should be left over for the Provincial Councils to decide. I agree; but it does not strike me that there will be the least harm done if the Government of India will give a certain amount of lead in this matter to the Provincial Councils. As my Hon'ble friend Sir William Vincent has pointed out, it is always open to the Provincial Councils to adopt the provisions of this Bill by such judicial adaptation as they may think necessary, regard being had to local conditions. I, therefore, strongly feel we shall be making a great mistake if in deference to the considerations urged by my two friends, Mr. Chanda and Pandit Malaviya, the passage of this Bill be postponed. It may be that in a matter like this the Local Government of Agra and Oudh are erring on the side of caution, but there is no reason why we should not be taking but one step in advance; and I think the attitude of the Hon'ble the Home Member is this, that in this particular matter, even if we cannot go far, we shall take one step in advance rather than leave the matter stand where it is. With these words, my Lord, I support the motion before the Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea :—"My Lord, I desire to accord my support to the Bill. I quite agree with my friends the Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya and the Hon'ble Mr. Chanda in thinking that the Bill does not go far enough, and also I am of opinion that it is a matter for local Legislatures to deal with. The conditions of these charitable endowments in the various Provinces differ and local Legislatures should deal with them. But, my Lord, this scandal has been allowed to last for more than the lifetime of a generation and it has gone on, and the Government of India has been very slow to move in the matter, but it has at last moved, and I think we ought to welcome the opportunity and accord to the Government of India the full measure of support which the Indian Members of this Council can accord to a measure of such far-reaching importance. My Lord, in my own Province the waste of charitable funds has been simply scandalous, and the same cry comes from all parts of India. Nothing has been done but something is going to be done now. It is a small instalment, a very small instalment, but let us accept it thankfully. And there is another consideration to be borne in mind, namely, that the Government of India gives a lead to the Provincial Governments. The Provincial Governments will be spurred on to do their duty in this matter after this Bill has been passed into law by the Supreme Legislative Council. And, my Lord, there is another aspect of the question which is not to be ignored. The mahants—I am again speaking of my own Province because I am most familiar with the conditions of my own Province—the mahants are beginning to be alarmed. I was approached by a mahant who shall be nameless for the present, and I was asked to interest myself in procuring the postponement of this Bill. To that I gave an emphatic negative. I said to him that it was my duty, it was my interest as a patriotic citizen, to support this Bill and to prevent the scandalous waste of charitable funds. They are, therefore, if I may use a very strong word, in a state of somewhat nervous trepidation. If we give up the Bill, they will be encouraged in this scandalous waste which is now going on. They will say, with some show of reason, 'The Government of India threatens, but they do nothing and we can go on in our old, accustomed ways.' Therefore, the immediate moral effect of the enactment of this Bill into 11-46 A.M.

law will be to restrain the unholy activities of these mahants in the direction of the waste of the temple funds. I think, therefore, having regard to all these conditions, my non-official Indian friends will accord the Bill their whole-hearted support. If they can expand it and make it more progressive than it really is—and I hope my Hon'ble friend the Home Member will listen to the voice of sweet reasonableness that may prevail in the Select Committee—if, they can do that, and enlarge it, so much the better; but let us not refuse to accept what is offered to us in such a generous way by the Hon'ble the Home Member. I, therefore, accord my entire support to the Bill."

11-50 A.M. The Hon'ble Sardar Bahadur Sardar Sundar Singh Majithia:—"My Lord, I am sorry to find that the Punjab Government has not seen its way to support this Bill. The feeling in the Punjab and particularly of the Sikh community is to welcome the measure. Many charitable institutions are being mismanaged and they have been allowed to be mismanaged for a long time, and this should not be allowed to go on as it has been going on in the past It has been found that when the public call for the accounts of charitable institutions it is very difficult to obtain them, and cases which have been instituted have been thrown out even on some technical grounds of law. So from my point of view I think that this Bill should not be delayed any more, and I heartily support the motion of the Home Member."

11-51 A.M. The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—"My Lord, I have explained the position of Government quite clearly in this matter. We do not want to force this Bill through, or even to press it unduly on the Council. If the majority of the Members approve it, we shall proceed with it. If it is not approved, Government is prepared, though speaking for myself I should do so with very great reluctance, to drop it. The only reason for suggesting the postponement of this measure, as I understand the Hon'ble Member, is that it does not go far enough. The Hon'ble Mr Chanda says he approves the Bill so far as it goes, except in one respect, and his real objection is, that he thinks it does not go far enough. At the same time he himself admitted that it would not be right to introduce a more drastic measure now. My Lord, if the Hon'ble Member wishes to go any further than this Bill does, it is open to him at the next Session to give us notice of a new Bill. All I wish to do now, is to take one step forward in a matter of great importance by a very simple measure. I believe the step will do good, and I am grateful to Hon'ble Members who have supported me in that view. The Bill is the result of very long deliberation, and non-official Members of this Council were consulted in great detail over the provisions. There is a real need—that is quite clear—to facilitate the prevention of these breaches of trust in regard to charitable funds, and I hope that the Council will see that it would be fatal to delay a measure of this kind merely because it does not go as far as some would like. The decided consensus of educated opinion is in favour of the Bill. Incidentally I may say that the Province of Assam, from which my Hon'ble friend comes, supported the Bill. There is no indication of any dissent from any person there, and I can only infer that in opposing the Bill and proposing a delaying amendment the Hon'ble Member is acting under some other influence, some influence outside Assam I mean. The result of the amendment would be, I put it to the Council, to delay indefinitely this measure. When you have your new Councils, your new Legislative Assembly, your new constitution, the Council may take it, I think from me, that their time will be fully occupied with other business for a long time, and that this subject will not be taken up for many years, at any rate for two or three years. In these circumstances, I hope the Council will not approve of an amendment which really will indefinitely delay a proposal so strongly supported by public opinion. If they do, the responsibility is upon the Members of this Council and not on the Government of India."

The amendment was put and the Hon'ble Sir William Vincent called for a division

[4TH FEBRUARY, 1920.] [Khan Bahadur Mir Asad Ali; The President.]

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Mir Asad Ali :—"May officials vote according to their discretion?"

The President :—"Certainly, that is what Sir William Vincent said"

The Council then divided as follows :—

The amendment was therefore rejected.

[The President; Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda; Sir William Vincent; Mr. Sachchidananda Sinha.] [4TH FEBRUARY, 1920.]

The President :—" Mr. Chanda, do you wish to proceed with the discussion on the Bill?"

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda :—" No, my Lord."

The motion that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee was then put and agreed to.

WORKMAN'S BREACH OF CONTRACT (AMENDMENT) BILL.

12-3 P.M. The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent :—" My Lord, this is another Bill the provisions of which I explained very fully last September. It is intended to relax in favour of the labourer the provisions of the Workman's Breach of Contract Act, 1859. I am glad to say that, when I introduced the Bill, it met with general approval in this Council, though some Members thought that the Government of India had not gone far enough. It has now been circulated to all the Local Governments for opinion and has again met with general approval. In particular, I should like to draw the attention of Council to the opinions of the Punjab and Assam which are particularly affected. The Bombay Government considers that all the amendments proposed in the law are improvements, and the Bengal Government also supports the Bill.

" There is, however, a certain volume of opinion in favour of total repeal On the other hand, some authorities are averse from any change, thinking that the proposed amendments will render the law useless for the purpose for which it is intended; but these opinions are the opinions of private individuals and firms possibly of those who have a considerable interest in maintaining the present law as it stands; and the Local Governments do not support them in their views. The Bill as it stands is in favour of the workman or labourer, and it certainly is in accordance with the spirit of modern times so far as it goes.

" There are many suggestions which I have received as to detailed modifications, which, again, I do not wish to waste the time of the Council now. They can only be considered with any care and advantage in Select Committee.

" On this Bill again official Members will be allowed to vote and speak as they like. I know that there are individual members who think the Bill does not go far enough; but I would ask them to remember that it is not only the conditions of one province that have to be considered in a matter of this kind, but the conditions all over India. Further, there is no measure before the Council at present for the total repeal of this Bill. In these circumstances, even those who would go a little further may, I think, and should, safely support the provisions of the present measure. My Lord, I move that the Bill further to amend the Workman's Breach of Contract Act, 1859, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes, the Hon'ble Mr. Muddiman, the Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Wacha, the Hon'ble Mr. Sarma, the Hon'ble Mr. Crum, the Hon'ble Mr Nathmal, the Hon'ble Mr. Sinha, the Hon'ble Sir Sydney Crookshank, the Hon'ble Mr. Allan, the Hon'ble Mr. De and myself."

12-7 P.M. The Hon'ble Mr. Sachchidananda Sinha :—" With your Lordship's leave I should like to suggest the addition of a name to this Committee, that of an official Member."

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent :—" May I know the name?"

The Hon'ble Mr. Sachchidananda Sinha :—" I would like to suggest the name of the Hon'ble Mr. Christie of Burma."

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent :—" I am quite prepared to accept the proposal "

The Hon'ble Mr. Sachchidananda Sinha :—" My Lord, I propose that the Hon'ble Mr Christie be taken on this Committee "

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya :— My Lord, I once more draw the attention of Council to the necessity of repealing this Act I am strengthened in this view by the opinions which have been now received At the time the measure was last taken up, I mentioned this view, but I am glad now that the opinions since received lend much support to that view I would first draw attention to the opinion of Sir Benjamin Robertson He points out in paragraph 3 of his letter that — 12-8 P.M.

"There is some judicial authority for holding the view that such contracts (that is contracts between employer and workman which fall within the purview of the Act include only a definite contract for a definite amount of work This view would appear to have been followed to a certain extent by the drafters of the Bill since the explanation to the proposed new section 2 sub-section (1), clearly contemplates that the work is such that the time required for the performance thereof is capable of being easily estimated On the other hand there is also judicial authority to uphold the view that the present Act covers the case where a workman is engaged to work for an indefinite period and is thereupon given an advance which he agrees to pay off by deductions from his earnings This case is undoubtedly the normal case in these Provinces and should be clearly provided for If it is contemplated however that it should be excluded from the scope of the Act then the Chief Commissioner would mention that as far as these Provinces are concerned the whole of the Act might as well be repealed as the exclusion would render the Act virtually inoperative

" So far as the Central Provinces are concerned in order that the Act should be of any value, he says that cases where a workman is engaged to work for an indefinite period and is thereupon given an advance which he agrees to pay off by deductions from his earnings should be included If these cases are included, I submit a great deal of injustice will be done, and if they are not included, as the Chief Commissioner points out, the Act will virtually be inoperative

" Now, my Lord, there are two classes of contracts which will come within the purview of the Act One is contracts of individuals to perform a definite kind of work, the other is a contract by an individual who undertakes to get some work done by others In the case of persons who agree to perform a certain contract themselves one can understand the contract being enforced against them under certain circumstances, but where a man undertakes to get the work done by some others it becomes more difficult, there is greater hardship involved in getting him to perform a contract which depends not entirely upon his volition, but upon the volition of others, and in such cases the difficulty at once arises All the evils of the system of cooly recruitment are likely to be revived Sir Benjamin Robertson points this out in his letter to the Government of India He says—'The Act seems to cover the case where a large contractor gives an advance of money to a petty contractor for work which he has to get performed by any other artificers, workmen or labourers Sir Benjamin Robertson is of opinion that the time is now come to exclude this class of advance entirely from the operation of the Act In his opinion its retention will only serve to encourage the notorious abuses connected with the unregulated recruiting of labour He considers that the large employer should either use his own servants to recruit his labour (they will be criminally liable for any malversation of money advances), or should employ only petty contractors whom he can trust or who can furnish reasonable security for advances made to them If the class of man with whom he makes sub contracts is such as would require the quasi-criminal provisions of this Act to keep them to their contracts, then that class of man is an undesirable class, and likely to practise the evil devices resorted to by unregulated cooly recruiters The Chief Commissioner is of opinion that it should be made clear that the Act is not intended to apply to such cases

[Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.] [4TH FEBRUARY, 1920.]

"If that is made clear, then, as he says, the whole Act might as well be repealed. That is the view of an administrator who has had much to do with questions relating to employers and employed.

"There are other opinions in support of this view. I may refer to one from the Chamber of Commerce, Bombay. They say that they know of no Act in England under which a workman can be compelled to work under penalty of imprisonment. The Secretary of the Indian Merchants' Chamber and Bureau says—'whilst the Committee note that the Bill under consideration makes certain improvements on the present Act, they very strongly feel that it is high time that the Government of India should consider the advisability of repealing the Act altogether.' They point out that—'the State has no right to give an artificial and a special support to a particular industry, at the expense of the employee of that industry. Labour must get its due, if the best economic interests of the country are to be safeguarded. Given reasonable conditions of wages, housing, hours of work, etc., labour will remain contented. The existing Statute, as a coercive measure, only tends to deprive labour of those just and reasonable conditions; and the State thereby directly encourages deficient and unfair conditions of labour. If the planters need to create and retain a permanent labour population, it will not be difficult for them to do so provided they give suitable conditions, as other industries have to, if they want to keep their labour. Labour has its price, and a fair price is all it wants. The State ought certainly to refrain from forcing down that price by imposing harsh and iniquitous conditions on labour contracts.'

"In another place in the same communication they say—'Referring to the special necessity in India of guarding the interests and increasing the efficiency of labour the Secretary of State observes: 'I would here only remark in regard to labour that if the efficiency of labour be increased even to a moderate extent, India could probably hold her own.' They therefore recommend the total repeal of this Act.

"There are several other opinions in which the same view has been urged. I will refer to one, that of the Advocate General of Madras, the Hon'ble Mr. Srinivasa Iyengar. He says—'In my opinion the Workman's Breach of Contract Act, 1859, is mediæval in outlook, and modern conditions require its total repeal and not merely an amendment Bill like the one proposed . . . . . . The principle underlying the Act of 1859 is not that there should be exceptional sanctions to compel the performance of services absolutely essential to helpless sections of the community which may not be performed without such sanctions, but that a master who advances money to a servant should be enabled, through a criminal Court, to get his work done by his servant, or should get repayment of the money, and that in default the servant should be put in prison. This is quite opposed to all principles of modern jurisprudence. And the Act of 1859, even if it is not obsolescent, is not really necessary.' He therefore urges the total repeal of this enactment. I submit, my Lord, that in view of these and many other opinions which I need not read out here (I am sure Hon'ble Members have looked into them), it is very desirable that the Government should review its decision, and now that it has received this large volume of opinion, should consider whether the Act should not be repealed.

"There is no doubt that there is a certain amount of opinion in favour of retaining measure, with the modifications that have been suggested. I submit that at this era of the world's history, when, Government have sent representatives to the Washington Labour Conference, the representatives should urge that the condition of labour should be improved. It seems to me very undesirable that Government should retain this Act upon the Statute-book even in a modified form. I do not know that in a modified form it is an improvement upon the Act it is desired to amend. I submit that it should not be within the power of a Magistrate to sentence a man to imprisonment simply because he refuses to perform a contract. In other walks of life contracts are entered into and it is not regarded as a criminal offence if they are not executed. I think that what is required is to place labour on a healthy footing, and that the Act even in its amended form, is a handicap on labour. For these reasons I once more press the Government to consider the advisability of dropping the Bill altogether, or to substitute a simple measure saying that the Act has been repealed"

The Hon'ble Mr. W. E. Crum:—"My Lord, I am not quite clear whether the Hon'ble Pandit is opposing the motion now before the Council, or whether he is simply making a request to Government." 12-18 P.M.

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—"The latter."

The Hon'ble Mr. W. E. Crum:—"Then I have nothing to say."

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—"My Lord, I am glad to find that the Hon'ble Mr. Malaviya is not opposing this motion, but not surprised, for when I introduced the Bill in September, I understood him to say that he welcomed it as an improvement on the existing law He then also raised this question of repealing the Act and I made what was, I think, a very fair suggestion to the Hon'ble Member. Members of this Council will remember that I said that if the Hon'ble Mr. Malaviya would then send me a copy of his proposed Bill to repeal the Act, I would have it circulated at once with the present Bill so that opinion in this country might be invited on both measures. My Lord, from that day to this I have not heard one word from the Hon'ble Member. Surely, if he sought to repeal the Act, it would have been reasonable for him to have accepted the offer which was made in perfectly good faith and ascertain the opinion of the country upon the particular proposal he had in view. The effect of the Hon'ble Member not accepting the present Bill would, however, be merely to leave the labourer or workman under disabilities which, we think, are unfair and to leave untouched the provisions of the present law which, we think, are capable of misuse. The whole of the Bill now before the Council is for the benefit of the labourer, and it has been our sole object throughout to make the provisions of the law less drastic Having regard, however, to the opinions received from Local Governments we thought that it would be unwise to go further at the present moment. The Hon'ble Member quoted to the Council certain opinions in support of total repeal, but, I think, those who have read the voluminous correspondence will agree that the majority of opinions are in favour of retaining the Act on the Statute-book. I have only one word more to say, and that is in regard to the allegation of the Hon'ble Mr. Malaviya that the Act penalises ordinary breaches of contract. This is incorrect as was pointed out last Session. What the Act does is to penalise particular fraudulent breaches of contract. To repeat his suggestion after being corrected last Session is a little misleading. I do not say that is the Hon'ble Member's intention. My Lord, the only effect of refusing to accept the motion which I have put before Council would be to leave persons who fall within the 'mischief' of the Act in a worse position than they would otherwise be. 12-19 P.M.

"May I, with your Excellency's permission, add Mr. Christie's name to the names proposed for the Select Committee."

The motion was put and agreed to.

RESOLUTION re COLONIZATION IN BRITISH GUIANA.

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea:—"My Lord, the terms of my Resolution are these:— 12-21 P.M.

'That this Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that he may be pleased to appoint a Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Srinivasa Sastri, the Hon'ble Sir

[Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea] [4TH FEBRUARY, 1920.]

Dinshaw Eduljee Wacha, the Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, the Hon'ble Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru, the Hon'ble Mr. B N. Sarma, the Hon'ble Mir Asad Ali, Khan Bahadur, the Hon'ble Mr. W. E Crum, the Hon'ble Mr Marjoribanks and myself (a) to examine the scheme of colonization which the Deputation from British Guiana desire to put forward, and to report thereon and make recommendations to the Government of India, and (b) to meet the Deputation from Fiji which has arrived in this country and to examine any proposals which they may put forward, and to report thereon and make recommendations to the Government of India'

"With your Excellency's permission I desire to put one name on the Committee, and that is the name of Mr Chanda. My Resolution is a non-committal one, it does not bind this Council or the Committee which we are about to appoint to any definite course of action. All that this Resolution proposes is the appointment of a Committee of this Council to examine certain proposals which may be put forward by the Deputations, one from British Guiana and the other from Fiji, on the subject of colonization and emigration to those parts of the Empire and to report thereon. My Lord, the question which we have to consider, which this Council has to decide, is whether such an inquiry is necessary, and if there are sufficient materials to justify it. If the answer is in the affirmative the Resolution must be accepted, if it is in the negative the Resolution may be dropped. My Lord, I use the word 'may' advisedly for I go a step further and I would like to urge that even if there were not sufficient grounds or adequate materials for us to go upon, it would be desirable to appoint a Committee authorised by this Council, to meet the Deputations to discuss matters with them. My Lord, those Deputations have come from distant lands to put forward points which they consider to be of vital interest to the communities whom they represent, and it seems to me. and it must seem to this Council also, to be an act of courtesy and even of fairness that we should meet them, hear their views and formulate our own conclusions on the materials that they may place before us. Here I desire to guard against a misapprehension which the adoption of this Resolution might give rise to, I take it that there is not the slightest disposition on the part of this Council or any section of it or of the Government to revive in any form or shape, or under any guise the system of indentured labour which has been definitely abandoned. Educated Indian opinion regards it as a form of quasi-slavery and has unequivocally condemned it Its revival in any shape or form is unthinkable. I desire to enter a caveat on this point. There is another consideration which I am sure will guide this Committee in the deliberations before it, and it is this that we cannot consent to any form of colonization or emigration to any British Colony or any part of the Empire except upon the basis of civic self-respect, involving the recognition of British Indians in these Colonies, in these distant lands as equal subjects of the Crown with other British subjects. My Lord, we are very sensitive about this matter, we are anxious that the point should be cleared up, we are anxious that sufficient guarantees should be given in that behalf, and furthermore guarantees should be forthcoming for the protection of the interests of those who would emigrate to those Colonies I find that in the view which I have put forward I am supported by an Indian authority, the greatest on this question. I have the authority of Mr. Gandhi on this matter. I will quote from a statement he has made. He says:—

'Once assured that equal rights for Indians existed in regard to political, municipal, legal, commercial and industrial matters in British Guiana and that they were not alone receiving fair treatment from the administration and the general community but would be guaranteed the continuance of such fair treatment, he would not oppose any scheme of free colonization by Indian agricultural families. He was satisfied that the Colony had a liberal constitution and Indians could be and were elected to membership of the legislature and to municipal office. He was satisfied that they had equality of rights with other races, and that there were opportunities of acquiring land for settlement. He was in favour of allowing a test of the scheme subject to a report at the end of six months on its working by Mr C F. Andrews or some other representative of the Indian popular leaders. The Deputation (which is now before us for consideration) accepted this proposal of a report by a popular representative independently of any supervising officer nominated by the Indian Government and offered to pay all expenses.

[4TH FEBRUARY, 1920.] [Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea.]

Mr Gandhi agreed that all necessary guarantees for the continuance of equal treatment could be furnished by the Colonial Office and British Guiana through the Government of India to the Indian people and its popular leaders.'

"I find this view corroborated by another distinguished authority whose opinion, I am sure, will carry weight with non-official Indian members, namely, Mr. Andrews. This is what he says :—

'He stated that he had no objection to any scheme of free colonization and that he had always understood that equality of all races rested in British Guiana under a blessed constitution, that the Indians were fairly treated there and that the evils of the lately-abolished indenture system so far as they existed did not prevail in that Colony to the same extent as elsewhere While however he had no objection to the principle of free colonization and even welcomed it, until he had had an opportunity of going into the details as set out in the printed and typed documents he would postpone public support as to the details'

"These details will have to be considered by the Committee which is about to be appointed My Lord, what the position of the Indians is in this Colony has been set forth in a statement by Dr. Nunan, I think that is his name, Attorney-General of British Guiana, who introduced a Deputation to the Hon'ble Member for Commerce and Industry, and in introducing this Deputation he made a statement which set forth in clear lines the status, the position and the prospects of the Indians emigrating to that part of the British Empire This is what he said —

'We provide free passages, guarantee employment at the locally current rates which are now about Rs 2 a day (the cost of living amounting to a little over one-third of the average earnings) We provide free repatriation at any stage whenever required by the officers of the Indian Government and free repatriation at the option of the individual or family after a short period of years Those who engage in agricultural work either for an employer or on their own behalf for three years will receive reward grants of five acres of land on nominal terms This land is prepared by an expensive process for immediate utilisation at the cost of the Colony, in the immediate neighbourhood of markets and factories Other lands can be bought or leased on easy terms No contracts of any kind are required There is to be no trace of the old indenture system There is no compulsory residence or service or other element of compulsion Settlers can choose their own employees'

"There is still another statement which places the matter upon a higher footing and that is by Mr Lukhoo, who is a member of the Deputation I read an extract from a speech which he delivered at a meeting of the Indian Association I am sure the extract will interest my friends in this Council. He says :—

'Through the recommendations made in the Montagu-Chelmsford Report on Indian Constitutional Reforms, India can look forward to a large measure of self-government and greater freedom in determining her own affairs. We, in British Guiana, feel it incumbent on us to rise to the occasion and make ourselves worthy of the great race to which we belong We feel the time has arrived when we must collect our forces together in our great effort to achieve the high and noble destiny to which we feel we are now called.

'The only remedy I could suggest is the voluntary emigration of the higher classes, gentlemen in learned professions, merchants, skilled artisans and others whose social position will entitle them to respect'

"In conclusion, he says :—

'Let us appeal to the Motherland to recognise and keep in touch with her sons who have emigrated to this Colony, so that she might look across the oceans with pride at the chances that lie open to her sons and the greatest destiny that it is their lot to fulfil in the ordered progress of true light and civilization'

"Well, my Lord, this represents the bright side of the picture But there is also another side to the shield which it is my duty to lay before this Council. British Guiana, as the Council is aware, is situated on the north-east corner of South America. It is sparsely populated. It has an area of 90 thousand square miles, the population is only 310 thousand Of the 310 thousand, 134 thousand are Indians. The climate is said to be favourable. Sugar is the staple industry of the country, and rice is also largely cultivated. Sixty thousand Indians are employed in the cultivation of rice and thirty thousand more are needed.

[Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea; Mr. Sachchidananda Sinha.] [4TH FEBRUARY, 1920.]

Wages are said to be high, and I have just read to you Dr. Nunan's statement which shows that there is a substantial saving after the cost of living has been provided for. But, my Lord, as I have said, there is also another side to the shield From the Emigration Report of 1916, I find that there were so many as 16 suicides among the Indian population. Some explanation is given of these cases, but I cannot say that I am satisfied with it. The number dwindled down to seven in the following year. But, in 1917, we find that there were so many as 65 cases of death due to accidents, and it is extraordinary that out of these 65 cases, 40 were by drowning. I am unable to understand it altogether, because Indians are expert swimmers How 45 people were drowned is one of those things which I should like the Deputation to explain.

"Then there are certain other matters which my Hon'ble friend the Member for Commerce and Industry Department suggested to the Deputation. Answers to those questions have been given I need not trouble this Council with these questions and answers. One of them was, whether it would be necessary to employ recruiters. The Hon'ble Member for Commerce and Industry naturally does not want that any recruiters should be employed, because the recruitment by professional recruiters is always liable to abuse. He also suggested several other questions to the Deputation, such as the rate of wages, the cost of living and so forth. All these matters will have to be considered by the Committee I do submit, my Lord, that, having regard to the fact that there are these Deputations and that they have come with the amplest materials for our information, it is our duty to appoint a Committee, and the Committee that I have suggested is largely Indian in its personnel, because the matter concerns the Indian population. The Hon'ble Mr Crum and the Hon'ble Mr. Marjoribanks have very kindly consented to serve on the Committee, and we are grateful to them. The Hon'ble Mr. Marjoribanks has uniqué experience in regard to the question of emigration. Two years ago he was sent to Ceylon and to the Malay States in connection with a question of a kindred nature. I am sure his advice will be of the greatest possible use to us. I have said nothing about Fiji or about emigration to that Island. I am sure the Deputation will supply the necessary information in regard to this matter. My Lord, these are the grounds upon which I beg leave to move the Resolution. I feel that no harm can accrue from the appointment of a Committee, and I hope and trust that the Council will agree to the acceptance of my Resolution and appoint the Committee which I have suggested."

12-40 P.M. The Hon'ble Mr. Sachidananda Sinha :—"My Lord, I rise to move the amendment of which I have given notice, and which runs as follows:—

'(1) That after the word 'moves' in Mr. Banerjea's Resolution the following be added :—

(a) to examine and report generally on the status and position of His Majesty's Indian subjects in all the British Colonies and',

(2) That clauses (a) and (b) be re-lettered (b) and (c), and

(3) That in clause (b) as re-lettered after the words 'to examine' the word 'specially' be inserted.'

"My Lord, in the course of the speech with which your Lordship inaugurated the present Session of this Council on Friday last, your Lordship was pleased to say that 'there are now two Deputations in India, one from British Guiana and one from Fiji, who have come here to persuade us to re-open emigration to those Colonies on a new basis. We propose that a Committee of this Council should meet the Deputations, discuss the different conditions on which it would be possible to re-open emigration and report their conclusions to Government. Sir George Barnes will move a Resolution to that effect.'

[4TH FEBRUARY, 1920.] [Mr. Sachchidananda Sinha.]

"The Council will realise my surprise when yesterday, on receiving the agenda paper for to-day's Council meeting, I found that in the course of the last three or four days, Sir George Barnes had been metamorphosed into Mr. Banerjea. If Sir George Barnes had moved the Resolution on behalf of the Government as an official Resolution, I would not perhaps have been justified in trying to tack my amendment to the Resolution. But when our leader, Mr. Surendranath Banerjea, brings up before this Council a Resolution affecting the status, the position and the rights of Indians in two Colonies, British Guiana and Fiji, I feel justified in trying to induce him to accept my amendment, so that the whole question of the position of Indians in the British Colonies might be, so far as possible, determined by the same Committee which my Hon'ble friend has asked the Council to appoint.

"Now, before I make my submissions, as briefly as I can, I desire to say one thing and it is this. I think I shall be expressing the unanimous opinion of all the non-official Members of this Council, when I say that we are all profoundly grateful to the Government of India, to your Lordship's Government and the Government of your Lordship's predecessors also, for the very strong attitude they have always taken in the matter of the rights and status of Indians in the British Colonies. Your Lordship's predecessor, Lord Hardinge, incurred great odium for having delivered a very sympathetic speech at Madras, in which he took up a very strong attitude on this question, and I am convinced that your Lordship also will be prepared to incur odium, if necessary, for the sake of standing up for the rights of His Majesty's subjects in the British Colonies. But the question, my Lord, in my humble opinion cannot be disposed of piecemeal It has been for many years now a crying evil and the burning question for the people of this country It is about ten years since my late lamented leader, Mr. Gokhale, moved in Calcutta a very important Resolution on this very subject so far as it concerned South Africa, and Mr. Valentine Chirol, now Sir Valentine Chirol, who sat in the gallery wrote to the 'Times' that for the first time in the history of British India a Native of India had sat in judgment on the policy of His Majesty's Government and the 'Government of India had to sit silent' as they could not make an effective reply. It is ten years since then, my Lord, but the question of the rights of Indians in British Colonies remains exactly, I think, where it was Every six months we hear of trouble now in South Africa, now in Canada, now in East Africa, now here and now there. So far as Canada is concerned, we know that the laws there are so stringent and are so designed against keeping out Indians that some years back there was great trouble in regard to the Sikh emigrants who returned by the 'Komagata Maru,' which led to disastrous occurrences, which were investigated into by my Hon'ble friend Sir William Vincent. So far as Australia is concerned, there is no Indian problem there, for the very simple reason that no Indian is allowed to go there. The laws in Australia are so strict that not even enlightened Indian gentlemen can go there for the purpose of travelling, but, I understand, these have been modified since the war, or are going to be modified in so far as to enable educated Indians to travel in that country. I confess this relaxation or concession in our favour is not one which I am prepared to be enthusiastic about. Leaving these two Colonies aside, the position in South Africa is always causing a stir I have got here with me the letters which the Hon'ble Sir George Barnes recently wrote on the subject to Mr. Gandhi, and which have been published in the papers. In these letters Sir George Barnes exhibits all that sympathy which we have learnt to associate with him in the matter of the position of Indians in the British Colonies, and he concedes frankly that the position in South Africa is again very difficult and very critical, and though the Government of India and your Lordship are making every possible effort to relieve the situation, things are at such a pass that nobody can really say how they would ultimately be solved Sir Benjamin Robertson is, I believe, on his way to settle the difficulties. Personally I would have wished that some non-official Indian Member of this Council, some one like my esteemed friend, Mr Sastri, had been associated with Sir Benjamin Robertson in that mission. I would have liked that a public man of the position of Mr. Sastri would have been deputed to South Africa to help Sir Benjamin Robertson, instead of detained here shivering as he does every day in the cold of Delhi

"The situation brought out in the Hon'ble Sir George Barnes' letters to Mr. Gandhi really unfolds a tale of woe and misery which passes comprehension. But, my Lord, there are even more difficult questions facing us at the present moment as to the position of the Indians in British East Africa. Some reference was made by your Lordship to that aspect of the case in the course of your observations on Friday last, but I find that Mr. Andrews, of whom Mr. Banerjea in moving his Resolution, deservedly spoke in terms of high appreciation, which I fully endorse, has sent communications from East Africa, where he now is, to Sir Rabindra Nath Tagore and to various papers, which unfold before us a situation which will cause great pain to every Indian who can appreciate the position aright Mr. Andrews has summarised in the papers the East African Economic Commission's report, about which your Lordship was pleased to say that it does not necessarily represent the views of the Government of that Colony. That may be, but even assuming it to be so, there is not the least doubt that this report, which Mr. Andrews says has been published with the Royal coat of arms prominently displayed, does represent the views of a most important and influential section of the public in that Colony. I also find from Mr. Andrews' letter that the gathering of the Colonists, which is called the 'British Parliament' of East Africa, has passed a number of very important Resolutions on Indian policy. The matter being of great importance, I shall with your Lordship's leave read out these Resolutions to indicate how the matter stands :—

'That whereas our Nation has assumed responsibility for the future of the indigenous East African peoples and of the countries they inhabit;

And whereas our national ideals of enlightenment and progress are crystallised in our Christian Western Civilisation and it is our duty to make sure that the best contained therein is readily available for the needs of awakening Africa;

And whereas the maintenance of this country depends entirely on the prestige and force of character of the white man;

And whereas certain Indians have entered this country as traders, clerks and artisans;

And whereas these people follow in all things a civilization which is Eastern and in many respects repugnant to ours;

And whereas their social status brings them more frequently into contact with the African, and thus subjects him to intimate personal influences antagonistic to the ideals of the West;

And whereas the African has shown that he possesses latent qualities which under Western guidance hold promise of material development;

And whereas Indian competition denies him all incentives to ambition and opportunities of advancement;

And whereas the Indian community in this country are agitating for adult suffrage and by this means seek to gain control over the destinies of this country;

We, therefore, representing the whole community, ask the Secretary of State to rule that no system of franchise be given to the Asiatics, nor should they be allowed to acquire land except in townships on short leases, nor be employed in Government works, and that steps be taken at once to restrict Asiatic immigration in order that this stronghold of European colonisation in Central Africa may stand beside her sister Colonies in their Asiatic policy.'

"Now, that declaration, my Lord, should satisfy every member of this Council that the Indians are in a bad way in this East African Colony. Then in the report, to which I have made reference, there are various passages couched in language calculated to give great offence to any impartial subject of His Majesty, be he European or Indian. I shall not inflict on this Council any long passages from this report, but I shall read out one passage to indicate the trend of it, and the value to be attached to a document of this character. After describing the Indians as a 'crafty race' and using about them other such opprobrious terms, they say :—

'The moral depravity of the Indian is equally damaging to the African, who, in his natural state, is at least innocent of the worst vices of the East. The Indian is the inciter to crime as well as vice, since it is the opportunity afforded by the ever ready Indian receiver which makes thieving easy. If the Indian were eliminated, the number of offences against property, now high, would be reduced to measurable proportions.

'The Empire is faced with a serious dilemma, which cannot be evaded The choice lies between the vital interest of the African and the ambition of the Indian. The presence of the Indian in this country is quite obviously inimical to the moral and physical welfare and the economic advancement of the natives. The matter is one of the highest Imperial importance, and we regard it as imperative that the Empire should definitely decide, and that without delay, whether the welfare of the African is to be subordinated in his own country to political considerations and the pretensions of the more restless elements of the Indians. Upon the decision as to East Africa the future of the whole Continent will largely depend, for if Indians are to be allowed to stream in at any one entrance in unlimited numbers, it will scarcely be possible to localise them indefinitely in any particular territory.'

"My Lord, I could read out many more similar passages, but my time is limited and I shall not do so, therefore. I shall now read out one short passage from Mr. Andrews' review of the situation which he has sent to Sir Rabindranath Tagore. He says :—

'I cannot tell you the misery this situation means to the Indians who have settled here. Many of them have settled for generations and were here long before the Europeans They are practically told now that they are to clear bag and baggage out of the country. And all the while the truth is as plain as can be that it is their moral qualities themselves of thrift and sobriety which are the cause of offence in a large number of cases and this cry of 'Christian Western civilisation' is a hypocrisy which is as base as it is cowardly and mean'

"Without endorsing the strong language of Mr. Andrews, who is on the spot, who sees what is going on and feels strongly. I think it will be apparent to every Member of this Council, Indian or European, that things in East Africa are in a bad way, indeed. This being the condition in Canada, in Australia, in South Africa and in East Africa; surely it is time that the Government of India, either suo moto or as Mr Banerjea suggests, should appoint a Committee to go into the whole question, as it cannot be disposed of piecemeal by sending Sir Benjamin Robertson here or a Deputation there, or a telegram to somebody else. I submit what is really required, is a settlement of the whole thing once for all by a definite declaration as to the policy of His Majesty's Government. My Lord, I am not unaware that these Colonies, or many of them, have got self-government, and I quite realise that the British Parliament cannot force them. I am not disposed to take a hypercritical view or take my stand on the theory that because they are parts of the British Empire, therefore the British Parliament should coerce them. At the same time, I must stand up for the just and legitimate rights of my own people. The Empire has to us, my Lord, no meaning whatsoever if our Indian fellow-subjects cannot obtain even the elementary rights of the British citizens in the British Colonies I have no need to enlarge upon that part of my contention, as Mr. Banerjea has himself referred in most eloquent words to the indefeasible rights of the Indians in the British Colonies. I, therefore, without trespassing further on the patience of the Council, ask that my amendment be accepted, and the Committee proposed by Mr. Banerjea be appointed to go into the whole question exhaustively."

The Hon'ble Mr. W. E. Crum:—"My Lord, I find myself very much in sympathy with what Mr. Sinha has said, and I am perfectly certain that he has in his sentiments the sympathy of every Member of this Council; but I must say that from a business gentleman like Mr. Sinha I expected a somewhat more businesslike proposition. The Committee that is to be appointed is for two specific objects; to go into the question of the British Guiana emigration and the Fiji emigration, and I understand that we have here Deputations from both these Colonies with whom we can discuss the whole question. Now Mr. Sinha proposes that we should also examine and report generally on the status and the position of His Majesty's Indian subjects in all the British Colonies; and he does not tell us in the very least how we should do it. I submit, my Lord, that that is a matter quite outside the scope of a Committee appointed for the special object which this Committee has been appointed, and 12-56 P.M.

[Mr. W. E Crum; Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy; The President; Mr. G. S. Khaparde.] [4TH FEBRUARY, 1920.]

I hope that, if Hon'ble Members wish to couple Mr. Sinha's amendment with the original proposition, I will be left out of the Committee which is going to examine it, because I foresee visits to Canada, Australia, South Africa and every other Colony, and a matter of a year or perhaps more before we have got to the end of it. I beg therefore to oppose Mr. Sinha's amendment."

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy:—"My Lord, although I agree with the feelings which the Hon'ble Mr. Sinha has expressed regarding emigration to South Africa, I do not think it is judicious that we should bring in this question at present, because the question is pending and Sir Benjamin Robertson has gone to South Africa, and about East Africa your Excellency has assured us that you are following the same policy as Lord Hardinge. My Lord, I think I can speak on the Resolution too?"

The President:—"Certainly."

The Hon'ble Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy:—"My Lord, I agree only with my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea and I beg to support his Resolution. I am very anxious that our relations with the other parts of the Empire should always remain very cordial as we are now one of the parts, and a very important part, of the Empire, and I do not wish that we should have the same friction with the other parts of the Empire when we enter into an agreement with them in regard to emigration as we have had with South Africa. We must make it clear to them that we must have equal political status as regards franchise and election; we should have the same right of citizenship as other people in the Colony have If we want our Reform Scheme to be successful and if we are to reach the position of the self-governing Dominions, we ought to protect the rights of the Indians in other parts of the Empire so that we can get equal status and position with the self-governing Dominions

"With these few remarks, your Excellency, I support the Resolution"

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde:—"I desire to speak on this Resolution in the hope that my Hon'ble friend Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea will see his way to accepting what little I have to propose by way of amendment. It is not really an amendment . . .

The President:—"Mr. Khaparde, you are out of order in moving an amendment as you are out of time, and you must make your remarks not by way of an amendment but by way of suggestion."

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde:—"I thank your Excellency, but unfortunately the Resolution came very late and it was a very rainy day and it was not possible to send in an amendment, and it was blowing very hard too. However I shall make it as a suggestion as your Excellency has proposed and it is this When I was in England there was a Deputation from British Guiana there, and we had various consultations with them and I made some inquiries from people who had gone into that question, and one gentleman whose name I am not at liberty to mention to-day, had gone very considerably into that matter and had a great deal of correspondence to show, and my suggestion is that the credentials of this Deputation should be examined. When I heard your Excellency saying that Sir George Barnes intended to move the Resolution I was sure that he would look into the credentials of these people and see that they are really deputed either by the Government or by some public body or some people whom they actually represent I do not think this point has attracted the attention of the Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea.

"And if your Excellency permits, I would add one clause to this . . .

[4TH FEBRUARY, 1920.] [The President; Mr. G. S. Khaparde.]

The President:—"No. The Hon'ble Member is out of order there. By way of a suggestion he can put it to Mr. Banerjea; he cannot move it as an amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde:—"No, I am not moving it as an amendment. I suggest it to him if he will see his way to add that clause here, namely, to examine the credentials of these Deputations first. If they are from the Government of British Guiana or from the Government of Fiji, I would like to get an assurance from those Governments that equality of status and rights with other settlers there will be guaranteed. If they are from the people generally, I would like to take time and be addressed through your Excellency and be assured that they will be treated as they ought to be treated. The reason why I move this, why I speak about it, is that I am looking forward to a great industrial regeneration in India. There is a Commerce Department and we will require as many people as we can have here to man our new industries and our new factories. I am not anxious that many of our people should go away altogether from India. There is a great field for them here, a good deal of work to be done here.

"There is also a further consideration in this matter, and that further consideration is, that these people go away to these distant places—and they are very distant places—and it will not be possible to be constantly in touch with them and we might lose sight of them altogether and nobody will know what may happen to them. My friend mentioned a few cases of suicide; there may be many more than that, I do not know. So for these reasons, though I do not wish to oppose this Resolution, I make a suggestion that the credentials of this Commission should be looked into. If they are from the Government of British Guiana . . .

The President:—"I have just been informed by Mr. Moncrieff Smith that fifteen days' notice was waived in this case, and therefore Hon'ble Members have not had the time at their disposal to bring forward amendments which they would otherwise have had. Of course, in these circumstances, if the Hon'ble Member wishes to move an amendment I shall certainly not disallow it."

The Hon'ble Mr. G. S. Khaparde:—"I thank your Excellency. I had that thing in my mind, but I did not like to mention it. It was acting on my mind. My amendment then, since it has been kindly permitted, would, I think, be to add one more clause to this Resolution, to the effect that the credentials of these Deputations, both from Fiji and British Guiana, should be examined. If they are properly accredited by their Governments, then of course our proposals would be different. If they are from public bodies there, that would make our proposals and our submissions different; and if they are from nobody at all, or if they only represent certain capitalist interests or any particular kind of interests, then our proposals will have to be of a third kind. These are the reasons why I ask for an examination of the credentials of these gentlemen. There is nothing further that I wish to add because I do not like the idea of my countrymen going out when, I believe, they can get ample employment here. There is a good deal of capital coming from England and many industries are going to be started, and many of our people will have a good means of getting larger wages possibly if they will easily qualify themselves. I believe there is a scheme of technical education going on, and with this Industrial Commission's Report we shall require more men here. At present our advantage is that we have cheap labour and this attracts capital from outside; and if our people go away and labour becomes expensive here as it is elsewhere capital will run away; and we are poor people and we are anxious to get capital out of foreign countries if they will send it here. These are my reasons for being a little bit stringent in this matter and saying that the credentials of these Deputations should be carefully looked into. I hope Mr. Banerjea will see his way to adopt it."

[Sir George Barnes; Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea; The President: Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya; Mr. Srinivasa Sastri.] [4TH FEBRUARY, 1920.]

1-5 P.M. The Hon'ble Sir George Barnes:—"My Lord, I think I owe one word of explanation. Mr. Sinha alluded to the fact that your Excellency in your opening speech said that I would move a Resolution on the lines of the Resolution which has just been moved by Mr. Banerjea That is quite accurate. The reason why the Resolution has not been moved by me is because the form of the Resolution is a recommendation to the Governor General in Council, and it was pointed out to me that one Member of the Council could hardly make his recommendation to his colleagues. Consequently, I asked Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea to move the Resolution which I would otherwise have moved.

"I think, my Lord, I need only say that of course we accept the Resolution; but I cannot accept the amendment of Mr Sinha. As Mr. Crum has pointed out it would involve a number of our most valued members journeying round the world for a year or possibly two years, visiting the various Colonies, and I hope that my friend, Mr. Sinha, will not press that

"With regard to Mr. Khaparde's amendment I would suggest to Mr. Banerjea that there is no objection to the addition of the words which Mr. Khaparde has suggested, or perhaps it would suit Mr. Khaparde better if he were added as a member of the committee, and then he would have an opportunity of examining the credentials of these Deputations himself. I leave that to Mr. Banerjea."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendranath Banerjea:—"I do not think there has really been any serious opposition to this Resolution."

The President:—"You are talking on the amendment, I presume?"

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendranath Banerjea:—"Yes, my Lord."

The President:—"I think it might perhaps be as well if you sum up the debate as a whole. If the amendment is rejected there will not be any further discussion on the substantive Resolution, and I fancy the Hon'ble Pandit wishes to speak to this."

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—"I think the Hon'ble Mr. Sastri wanted to speak. I shall speak after him."

1-7 P.M. The Hon'ble Mr. Srinivasa Sastri:—"Your Excellency, my object was merely to say that though the Hon'ble Mr. Sinha's amendment has my heartiest sympathy, I am unable, like Mr. Crum, to support it as I should like to support it. It really involves too great a departure from the rather restricted purpose of the Hon'ble Mr. Banerjea's Resolution I was hoping, however, when the Hon'ble Member for Commerce and Industry stood up to speak, he would embrace the opportunity of making some sort of statement on the subjects to which the Hon'ble Mr. Sinha had referred. That really would have been to meet the Hon'ble Mr. Sinha's purpose. I suppose he would have liked it, and I should have certainly liked it, if on this occasion the Government of India through their official spokesman said something on the matters arising from Mr. Andrews' letters, which would on the one hand afford consolation to the people of India, and on the other by a clear and unequivocal pronouncement prevent further mischief arising in East Africa. I make no doubt whatever that, although the words that I desire so much have not been spoken, the attitude of the Government of India is one of perfect sympathy. It is perhaps now too late to invite the Hon'ble Sir George Barnes to make such a statement, and I am really sorry that he spoke before I did, because I had intended to ask him to refer to the subject in the name of the Government of India. However, it is now too late, I am really sorry.

[4TH FEBRUARY, 1920.] [Mr. Srinivasa Sastri; Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.]

I can only request the Hon'ble Mr. Sinha, as the Hon'ble Sir George Barnes has himself done, to withdraw his amendment now as his principal object in moving it has been achieved."

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya :—"My Lord, I regret, I think, that this Resolution comes at a very inopportune moment. The speech of the Hon'ble Mr. Sinha has reminded us of the situation of Indians in several of the Colonies, and while the question is so acute in several parts of the Empire, it seems rather hard upon us to ask us to hear the proposals of the people from British Guiana and Fiji for continuing in some form or another a system which has been the source of so much suffering, sorrow and shame to our people, a system which the Government and the public have long regarded as an evil system and which the Government have now put an end to. My Lord I think that before we take up any proposal from any Colony or any part of the Empire by which the Government of this country and the representatives of public opinion in this country would be directly or indirectly a party to any system such as is proposed, I think that it is essential that the question of the status of Indians in these various parts of the Empire should be put on a satisfactory footing. It is true, it may be said, that British Guiana has treated Indians not so badly as some other parts, but that is only a part of the problem. The whole question of the position of Indians in the Colonies is causing intense sorrow and suffering throughout the land, and I submit therefore that this is a very inopportune time to propose that a committee of this Council should be appointed to hear the Deputations that have come and make recommendations for the adoption of some system of labour by which Indians would be sent out, or encouraged to go out to British Guiana. 1-10 P.M.

"There is another reason why I consider that this proposal is inopportune. The Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde has raised a doubt as to the credentials of this Deputation. I should like to know from the Hon'ble Member for Commerce and Industry whether this Deputation has been sent out by the Government of British Guiana, whether the Government of British Guiana have informed the Government of India what the conditions are, political and economical, which the Government of British Guiana guarantee would apply to any Indians who would go out under the proposals of this Deputation. I should also like to know whether the Indian public in British Guiana have been consulted about this matter. I should like to know whether Indians generally in British Guiana favour the idea of any more Indians being encouraged to go out to British Guiana. My Lord, political, economic and moral considerations all are involved in any proposal by which the Government of India should help Indians to go out to British Guiana. It has been said that so far as political considerations are concerned the Government of India would put Indians on a footing of equality with our other fellow-subjects there. Well, our experience in the past has been very sad, and I should like the Government of India before asking a committee to be appointed, before approving of the appointment of a committee, to satisfy themselves that this political equality will be guaranteed beyond cavil or dispute, beyond assail, before any more Indian subjects of His Majesty are asked or encouraged to go out to British Guiana.

"Then, with regard to the economic position, these gentlemen who have formed the Deputation come to us with certain statements. Have those statements been verified? Are they supported by the Government of British Guiana? Are they supported by any evidence which the Government of India consider to be satisfactory? If not, what I suggest is, that the first step to be taken in this matter should be first to determine the general question whether the Government of India in the present state of affairs would encourage emigration of Indians from India to other parts of the Empire. That is the first question which arises. I take it that it was in order to secure attention to this general question that the Hon'ble Mr. Sinha moved his amendment. First, the Government and the public should make up their minds on a review of the totality of the circumstances existing in these Colonies, whether the

[Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.] [4TH FEBRUARY, 1920.]

Government should actively encourage Indians to go out to these Colonies. In order to settle that question, my Lord, what is necessary is not that a committee of this Council should sit to hear the statements of those who have come out to make out a case for Indians going out to these Colonies, but that this Council, the Government and the Council, should depute two men, two members of this Council, to visit British Guiana to investigate the question on the spot, to elicit the opinions of the Government of British Guiana and also to elicit, what is of greater importance to my mind, the opinions of the Indians who are living there.

"My Lord, there are two classes of Indians who are living there; there are those who have a competence and who it is not necessary should work for wages as daily labourers, and there is also a large population who work as daily labourers. I understand the number in British Guiana is from 60,000 to 70,000. The Government ought to find out from an inquiry of those Indians why it is that they do not supply the labour which the planters and others require in British Guiana? Is it that the planters are not willing to pay the wages that these Indians demand? Is it that the conditions they impose are such that Indians who are already in Guiana do not want to take up work with them? These are vital questions. There are economic questions involved in the emigration of Indians to Guiana which require investigation How can two or three gentlemen coming from there give you information from all points of view. My Lord, the economic situation is important, and I submit that this Committee will spend its time fruitlessly if it wishes to hear the Deputation and does not hear the evidence of its own Deputation or Deputations. Before I leave the economic question I should like to remind the Council of the misery and suffering that have been endured by Indians who have gone to these foreign lands by reason of the fact that owing to high prices the necessaries of life have not been supplied to them, and by reason of their never having been informed of the conditions under which they would live, and of how many suicides have taken place. Now, the Government of India should satisfy itself by correspondence and by investigation of the state of the economic question. When the Government of India has got all this information it may well ask a committee of this Council to discuss the matter with the Hon'ble the Commerce and Industry Member, but until that material has been collected and in a manner in which the Government would feel satisfied that it was dealing with materials it could rely upon, I submit that this inquiry will be premature. I wish, my Lord, to draw attention to certain considerations involved in this matter Unfortunately my countrymen have not advanced very much in education and are wanting in resourcefulness. Unfortunately owing to the long continued system of government that has prevailed even for a long period before the arrival of the British, owing to their being over-governed, they have lost greatly in resourcefulness. So that when they are encouraged to go long distances to various Colonies they naturally find themselves in strange surroundings in a state of helplessness My Lord, the evils involved in their being sent to distant Colonies helpless and feeble are very great. I want to remind the Council of the moral evils that are involved in sending day labourers to distant lands without safeguards being provided against their falling into bad hands. The Government of India have not been able so far to provide the moral or political safeguards which are so essential to ensure that justice should be done between Indians and those who employ them. In this state of affairs I beg humbly to suggest that this Resolution should not be accepted by this Council at present, and that the Government should send two competent men, such as my esteemed friends Mr. Sastri and the Hon'ble Mir Asad Ali, or two other members to British Guiana to investigate the matter on the spot and to make a report to them in regard to the political, economic and moral situation, and then appoint a Committee to discuss the whole matter and decide what should be done. I submit that the way in which it is proposed to appoint a Committee will give a wrong impression both here to the public and to the world outside. To the world outside this action will create the impression that, notwithstanding all that has been said by representative public men, the Government really do not feel so acutely the problem of the Indian people in the Colonies. That would create a very unfortunate impression and for this reason I submit that the proper course at this stage would be to depute two Indians to go to Guiana and to Fiji, if the case of Fiji is to be considered, to report whether the Indians who are already there and whether Indians who are free to take up employment in these Colonies desire that any more of their brethren should be sent under some system which the Government may devise. It has been said that there should be no obstacle to Indians going as free men to any part of the British Empire. Most certainly. I should like any Indian who desires to go out to go as a free man The matter may be put in any form; there are moral dangers involved in Indians being sent to distant lands There are economic and political disabilities involved by reason of the fact that the magistracy is not under the control of the Government of India, that the Government of India cannot ensure justice between Indians who go to these Colonies and those who administer the law there. The situation is one in which I think the Government should not seriously think of adopting any system by which it would be inferred that it had the encouragement or the approval of the Indian Government. Well, if Indians want to go freely there is no bar and there should be no bar, but I submit that the Government should not approve of any system until it is satisfied that it possesses the political and moral safeguards that should be provided. I regret I do not see my way to support the proposal of my Hon'ble friend Mr. Banerjea. I do hope that the suggestions I have made will find some response in this Council. If that is done it will be time for him to move for the appointment of a Committee such as he has suggested."

The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes :—" My Lord, I think I ought to intervene in this debate because of the words which have fallen from my friend Mr. Sastri. My Hon'ble friend found himself unable to support the Hon'ble Mr. Sinha's amendment, but asked for a pronouncement on the part of Government as to their policy on other parts of India and that demand seems to have been emphasized in an almost offensive form by my Hon'ble friend the Pandit who has just sat down. He said, if I heard him correctly, that the Government did not feel acutely the position of Indians in other parts of the world . . .

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya :—" I said this would give the impression that Government did not feel the position of Indians."

The Hon'ble Sir George Lowndes :—" I am glad I have quoted the Hon'ble Member so correctly.

" I think in this connection that it is only necessary for me to refer to the speech which was delivered by His Excellency at the opening of this Council. There could be no more certain pronouncement of the policy of the Government of India and no more emphatic repudiation of the charge that has been made by the Hon'ble Pandit. I trust that I shall not weary the Council if I read again the most important passages from that speech.

" The first is as follows :—

'The position of the Government of India is and always will be that there is no justification in a Crown Colony or Protectorate for assigning to British Indians a status in any way inferior to that of any other class of His Majesty's subjects. With the support of the Secretary of State we have steadily pressed this view on the Colonial Office, and we have asked the Secretary of State to see to it that Indian interests are fully represented at the forthcoming discussions in London between Lord Milner and the Governer of East Africa.'

" A little later this passage occurs :—

'I wish however to make it clear that the position which was taken up by Lord Hardinge's Government still holds good. It is not the duty of India to provide labour for British labour for British Colonies. But if the Colonies offer Indians a wider and more prosperous career than that which they can look for in their own homes, then we should not stand in the way. Our duty then will be to protect the ignorant Indian emigrant against misrepresentation and to see that such guarantees are given as will safeguard his interests as a free settler in the country to which he goes.'

[Sir George Lowndes; Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea; Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.] [4TH FEBRUARY, 1920.]

"Surely the last passage which I have read from His Excellency's speech is an emphatic pronouncement of the policy of the Government of India in these matters and is as emphatic a repudiation of the charge which the Hon'ble Pandit has brought against us as can possibly be made in any Assembly dealing with such matters. I only wish to say in answer to the rest of the Hon'ble Pandit's speech that it is proposed that he should be a member of the Committee, and we hope that he will undertake this responsibility. It will then be for him to make all the proposals he has made in this Council. We have asked the Committee to undertake the consideration of this question, because we believe that these are Indian questions which ought to be considered and ought to be dealt with by Indians. It is surely absurd to suggest that, when a Deputation has come to India to put before Indians conditions under which it may be reasonable for Indians to emigrate to the country from which the Deputation has come, we should refuse to meet them, refuse to consider the proposals they have to make and to say 'go back to the country from which you came, we will send two members of this Council to look at the country first'. After the Committee has considered the proposals of the gentlemen who have come over to India to deal with these matters and has perhaps examined their credentials, as the Hon'ble Mr. Khaparde suggests, it will be open to it to make all the proposals which the Hon'ble Pandit has put to this Council which may be quite reasonable, which will be of great weight and will receive from the Government of India the most careful and anxious consideration. I hope that now when some responsibility is being put on Indian members of this Council to advise the Government on proposals which are to be put before them, they will not shirk the responsibility and say 'we will not meet these people' and so put off the matter for years. This is the first opportunity Hon'ble Members have since the passing of the Reforms of accepting definite responsibility in a matter which concerns India most intimately."

1-30 P.M. The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea.—"My Lord, I must express my unqualified surprise at the observations which have fallen from my friend the Pandit My friend says 'Do not appoint a Committee but send two delegates from this Council to visit British Guiana and make their recommendations.' Will my Hon'ble friend be a member of the deputation? I do not think he will . . .

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya:—"If it became my duty I would."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea:—"Then I take it that if the Committee recommends such a Deputation my Hon'ble friend will consent to be a member of that Deputation. But a committee being appointed, is it not open to that Committee to make a recommendation to that effect? By appointing a Committee the door is not barred to the way of sending a Deputation later on.

"Then my Hon'ble friend Pandit Malaviya says that it is inopportune to give a hearing to these Deputations. I confess I am unable to understand why it is inopportune to listen to statements and proposals made by responsible persons who have come thousands of miles across the sea in regard to a matter of vital interest to themselves and also to ourselves. It is never inopportune to give a hearing to persons who desire to speak to you upon questions of public importance.

"Then we have heard a great deal about credentials. My Lord, it is to be borne in mind that one of the members of this Deputation is an Indian Barrister; Mr. Luckhoo is, I think, his name. His family has been settled in British Guiana for two generations, and this, I think, is the second time that he is an Indian. A Barrister trained in Oxford or Cambridge comes over to you, solicits an interview with you, desires to make a representation to you; you say 'we do not want to hear you.' He speaks with a sense of responsibility with regard to this matter, and, I think, we ought to give him a hearing. Then again, another member of the Deputation is Dr. Nunan who, if I mistake not, is Attorney-General of British Guiana. Is he not entitled to a hearing? I do think we show scant courtesy to these gentlemen when we say that we are not willing to hear them and that we want to have their credentials. Further, Mr Luckhoo addressed a meeting of the East Indian Association at which the Governor was present and he made a speech from which I have quoted passages. Surely these gentlemen who have come thousands of miles across the sea and with a sense of responsibility are voicing a feeling which is prevalent in British Guiana, and it can do us no possible harm if we lend them a hearing and then act accordingly as we think fit. Therefore, I do hope that this Resolution regarding the appointment of a Committee will be unanimously passed My friend has observed that it is very hard upon us that we should be called upon to listen to these proposals having regard to the hardships of the system of indentured labour, but that system is dead and gone. It is quite another system that we advocate, namely, free emigration. We must not apply to the system which is about to be inaugurated conditions which are matters of past history. My friend's views are altogether hazy and obscure in regard to this matter. My Lord, I think the Committee will be in a position to look into the question of the credentials. My Hon'ble friend Sir George Barnes suggested that we might add that as one of the matters to which the Committee might address themselves. I am quite prepared to accept that suggestion, but it seems to me that it is open to us as a Committee to ask these gentlemen what their credentials are without making this a part of the Resolution, and I have not the least doubt in my own mind that they will produce them. I am in strong sympathy with my friend Mr. Sinha's proposal, but I am afraid I cannot accept it This Committee has to look into two questions, one relating to Fiji and the other relating to British Guiana. We cannot go beyond that. I say I am in great sympathy with my friend Mr. Sinha's amendment, but I cannot accept it. My friend may move it as a substantive Resolution if he likes, but I do not think that we ought to mix up the two things together. That is a very large question, and we shall have to sit for months together before we are able to come to a decision about it. I do hope and trust, therefore, under the circumstances, that my Resolution will be accepted by the Council. It is not only an act of courtesy, but an act of justice to the Deputations who have come from a long distance in order to lay their case before us."

The amendment was put and rejected.

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya :—"May I say a word, my Lord? Holding the views that I do, I regret I shall not be able to serve on this Committee, and I beg I may be excused".

The President :—"There is another amendment to be put first".

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya :—"I beg your Excellency's pardon".

The motion that the following words be added at the end of Mr. Banerjea's Resolution :—

'and that the committee be instructed to examine the credentials of both Deputations' was put and agreed to.

The President :—"I take it that Mr. Banerjea does not wish to include the Hon'ble Pandit's name in the Committee. He withdraws."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea :—"If my friend is unwilling to serve on the Committee, his name must be withdrawn, and with your Excellency's permission I suggest the name of the Hon'ble Mr. Sinha on it."

[The President; Mr. Sachchidananda Sinha; Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea; Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda.] [4TH FEBRUARY, 1920.]

The President :—"Is Mr. Sinha willing to serve on this Committee?"

The Hon'ble Mr. Sachchidananda Sinha :—"I am quite willing to serve on this Committee, my Lord."

The following Resolution was then put:

'That this Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that he may be pleased to appoint a Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr Srinivassa Sastri, the Hon'ble Sir Dinshaw Edulji Wacha, the Hon'ble Mr Sinha, the Hon'ble Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru, the Hon'ble Mr. B. N. Sarma, the Hon'ble Mir Asad Ali, Khan Bahadur, the Hon'ble Mr. W. E. Crum, the Hon'ble Mr Marjoribanks, and the mover (a) to examine the scheme of colonization which the Deputation from British Guiana desire to put forward, and to report thereon and make recommendations to the Government of India; and (b) to meet the Deputation from Fiji which has arrived in this country and to examine any proposals which they may put forward, and to report thereon and make recommendations to the Government of India, and that the Committee be instructed to examine the credentials of both Deputations.'

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjea :—"Before your Excellency puts that, with your Excellency's leave I would propose the name of the Hon'ble Mr. Chanda as a member of the Committee."

The President :—"Is Mr. Chanda willing to serve on the Committee?"

The Hon'ble Mr. Kamini Kumar Chanda :—"Yes, my Lord."

The President :—"And Mr. Chanda."

The motion was agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Wednesday, the 11th February 1920, at 11 o'clock.

25th	...	...	...	2,250	250	2,500

* Or any earlier year.

(2) As there are no Commissionerships in Madras the following special rates have been approved for Collectors in that Presidency in lieu of those set out in columns 5, 6 and 7 above for the years mentioned below:—

Year of Service.	Pay.	Overseas Allowance.	Total.
	R	R	R
20th	2,150	250	2,400
21st	2,200	250	2,450
22nd	2,350	250	2,600
23rd	2,400	250	2,650
24th	2,500	250	2,750
25th	2,500	250	2,750

(3) The overseas allowances set out in columns 3 and 6 above (which will reckon as salary for all purposes of the Civil Service Regulations) will ordinarily be granted only to officers of non-Indian domicile; but as an exception to this general rule, all Indian officers now in the Indian Civil Service, as well as the Indian candidates selected at the Open Competitive Examination of 1919 who are now undergoing probation, and all Indian candidates selected at the next five Open Competitive Examinations beginning with the examination of 1920, will be regarded as eligible for the allowance. Thereafter the continuance of this concession will be further considered.

NOTE.—Overseas allowance will cease for officers holding appointments outside the time-scale and the pay sanctioned for such appointments will be the same for all incumbents.

(4) With the exception of 1st grade judges on R3,000, mentioned in paragraph 3 below, all officers on the general time-scale holding superior judicial appointments including Legal Remembrancers will draw a duty allowance of R150 a month in addition to their salary under that scale. Judicial officers serving in the Madras Presidency will draw this allowance in addition to the salary permissible under the general time-scale and not in addition to that admissible under the scale sanctioned for Madras Collectors.

(5) Officers will become eligible for the increment of R50 per mensem shown in the second and third years of the time-scale on passing the first and second departmental examinations respectively, and will remain on R700 per mensem (or R550, if not eligible for overseas allowance) until the completion of their third year of service.

(6) The time-scales set out above will take the place of the existing grade pay and will cover appointments now graded as Assistant Commissioners, Assistant Collectors and Joint Magistrates or Sub-Collectors, all of which (with the exception of 1st grade Sub-Collectors in Madras mentioned in paragraph 2 below) will be classed as inferior; and Deputy Commissioners or Magistrate-Collectors, and District and Sessions Judges or Divisional Judges, Additional Magistrates and Additional Judges and such appointments as are graded with Magistrates and Collectors or Deputy Commissioners and District and Sessions Judges, all of which will be classed as superior. The 1st grade judges on R3,000 and the other appointments on fixed rates of pay mentioned in paragraph 3 below will, however, be outside the time-scale.

4. (1) In bringing officers at present in service on to the revised rates of pay, articles 156 to 158 of the Civil Service Regulations will not be held to apply. Existing incumbents of offices will be protected against any immediate loss of pay due to the introduction of the revised rates.

(2) Subject to the general proviso above that officers shall not receive less than they were drawing substantively at the time of the introduction of the time-scale their initial pay in the superior scale will be regulated according to the length of their total service counting from the date of commencement of service.

(3) The broken period of a year of service which an officer put in before the date of the introduction of the time-scale shall remain at his credit for the next increment.

5. Exchange compensation allowance is withdrawn with effect from the 1st December 1919.

6 The pay of appointments outside the time-scale which are not mentioned in this Resolution are under separate consideration and orders concerning them will be issued later.

Order.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to all local Governments and Administrations, the several Departments of the Government of India (including the Financial Adviser, Military Finance) and the offices subordinate to this Department, for information and guidance.

Ordered also that it be published in the supplement to the Gazette of India for general information.

Delhi, the 11th February 1920

INCREASE IN THE RATE OF INTEREST ALLOWED ON DEPOSITS IN THE GENERAL PROVIDENT AND OTHER SIMILAR FUNDS FROM 4 PER CENT. TO 5½ PER CENT.

RESOLUTION.

The rise in the rates of interest which the Government of India have had to pay on the money which they borrow in the open market, has led them to take into consideration the question whether the rate of interest on deposits in the General Provident Fund and similar funds should not also be increased.

2. They have now been authorised by His Majesty's Secretary of State for India to announce that interest will be allowed at 5½ per cent. on all deposits, both past and future, and including those in excess of the compulsory minimum, in respect of the following funds :—

1. The General Provident Fund.
2. The Civil Engineers' Provident Fund
3. The Finance Department Provident Fund
4. The Police Department Provident Fund.
5. The Geological Survey Department Provident Fund
6. The Opium Department Provident Fund.
7. The Northern India Salt Revenue Department Provident Fund.
8. The Forest Department Provident Fund.
9. The Civil Veterinary Department Provident Fund.
10. The Post Office Guarantee Fund
11. The Madras Military Assistant Surgeons' Fund
12. The Indian Civil Service Provident Fund.
13. The Indian Civil Service Family Pensions Fund
14. The Indian Military Service Family Pensions Fund, and
15. The Indian Military Widows' and Orphans' Fund

As regards the last two mentioned funds, the new rate will not apply to the insurance branches, the question being still undecided.

3. The increased rate will be allowed with effect from the 1st of April 1919. It will not, however, be fixed for any definite period but will be subject to reconsideration, should the rates at which the Government of India borrow undergo modification. Six months' notice will however be given to subscribers before any alteration is made.

ORDERED that a copy be published in the Gazette of India

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY

Delhi, the 13th February 1920

APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO CONSIDER THE QUESTION OF PAY AND CONDITIONS OF SERVICE OF THE TELEGRAPH STAFF.

RESOLUTION.

The Government of India announced on the 25th of January that they had decided, at the request of the Director-General of Posts and Telegraphs, to appoint immediately a Committee to consider the question of pay and the conditions of service of the Telegraph staff. The Committee has now been constituted as follows —

President

H. Heseltine, Esquire, C.I.E.

Members

The Hon'ble Mr. Nigel Paton, President, Chamber of Commerce, Bombay.

W. Sutherland, Esquire, Postmaster-General, United Provinces Circle.

J. H. Abbott, Esquire, O.B.E., Jhansi.

H. Barton, Esquire, Secretary, Indian Telegraph Association, Calcutta.

N. Raghavendra Rao, Esquire, Deputy Superintendent, Telegraphs, Madura.

Secretary

J. N. Mukerjee, Esquire, Deputy Postmaster General, Telegraph Traffic, Calcutta.

The Government of India endeavoured to secure the services of a member of the commercial community to serve as Chairman and they have been fortunate enough to secure the services of the Hon'ble Mr. Nigel Paton, who, however, has expressed a wish that he should be appointed as a Member of the Committee, instead of as its Chairman.

2. The terms of reference to the Committee are to enquire —

(1) What rates of pay and allowances are suitable for —

(a) General Service Telegraphists,

(b) Local Service Telegraphists, and

(c) Women Telegraphists.

(d) Clerical establishment in departmental telegraph offices.

(e) Delivery establishment in departmental telegraph offices.

(2) The pay of the Supervisory staff, namely, Deputy Superintendents, Telegraph Masters, Inspecting Telegraphists and Technical Supervisors.

(3) If uniform rates of pay are fixed for the above classes of officials in whatever part of India they may be is any revision in the present scale of house rent allowances, which are granted in lieu of free quarters, necessary, especially in the Presidency towns or any other particular localities, and are house rent allowances to be extended to other classes of employees who are not at present entitled to them.

(4) Whether any alteration is required in the present conditions of service or in the scales of free accommodation laid down for different classes of the staff referred to above.

(5) Whether any revision is necessary in the duty allowances now sanctioned for Supervisory and other special work.

3 The Committee will assemble at Delhi on February 16th.

ORDERED that a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to the Indian Munitions Board, the Director-General of Posts and Telegraphs and to the President and Members of the Committee.

Ordered also that the Resolution be published in the Gazette of India.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 7th February 1920.

Burma.—The week was practically rainless. Reaping of winter rice has been completed. Threshing and winnowing are progressing normally in Upper Burma. Cultivation of spring rice, tobacco and onions is proceeding. Harvesting of miscellaneous cold weather crops is progressing. Standing crops are generally satisfactory Cattle are generally healthy In the Amherst district the number of persons on relief works has fallen to 2,300 but the number receiving gratuitous relief remains unchanged at 13 The price of unhusked rice at Rangoon has risen to Rs 180 which is the same as control price but much above normal. The market for white rice is steady at Rs. 450 for specials.

Assam.—The weather during the week was generally cloudy. Light rain fell in all districts and was beneficial to standing crops. Pressing of sugarcane, harvesting of mustard and pulses, pruning of tea, transplanting of spring rice, ploughing for autumn rice and jute and preparation of land for jhumming continue. The outturn of sugarcane, mustard and pulses and prospects of other crops are fair. Cattle disease is reported from five districts. The price of common rice has risen slightly.

Bengal.—During the week light to moderate rain was general. It greatly benefited standing crops and facilitated preparatory tillage for jute and other autumn crops in Eastern Bengal. Transplantation of summer paddy and harvesting of sugarcane, potatoes and early oilseeds are in progress. The average price of common rice has risen by 1 75 per cent.

Bihar and Orissa.—The rainfall during the week was general over the Province, the fall being generally moderate. It was, however, sufficient to permit of general ploughing in the southern portion of the Province and has thus practically assured a favourable start for the coming season's broadcast paddy crop for the failing of which in 1918 the absence of rain in the previous cold weather was largely responsible. Threshing of paddy and pressing of sugarcane still continue in some districts. Standing crops have been much benefited by the recent rainfall and are doing well. The price of common rice has risen in five districts, fallen in five and remained stationary in the remaining districts as compared with that of the preceding week. The average price of local common rice at headquarters was 6·34 seers per rupee against 6·36 seers in the preceding week and that of maize was 7·11 seers against 7·31 seers in the preceding week. Cattle disease is reported from eight districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa and Chota Nagpur is good United Provinces.—Light to moderate rain fell throughout the Province. Slight damage to crops by hail is reported from certain districts. Preparation of land for sugarcane, sowing of extra crops and pressing of sugarcane continue. Irrigation is still going on in some districts. Standing crops are doing well Prospects are favourable. The condition of agricultural stock is satisfactory. Fodder, water and market supplies are sufficient. Prices are stationary with a tendency to fall in some districts.

Punjab.—Light rain fell in all the reporting districts and was very useful. Pressing of sugarcane continues The yield is normal to above normal. The condition of standing wheat and other spring crops is average to good Toria is being harvested in parts of the west with yield generally normal. Sowings of extra spring crops continue in some districts to a normal extent. Cattle are healthy. Fodder and water for drinking and irrigation purposes are generally sufficient. Prices have fallen slightly in some districts and are stationary in others. They are above scarcity rates. Price of wheat :—Rawalpindi 5¾, Ambala 6¼, Ferozepore and Lahore 6¾, and Lyallpur 7¼ seers per rupee.

North-West Frontier Province.—During the week rain fell throughout the Province. Harvesting of sugarcane is in progress with outturn average. The condition of standing crops is average. Wheat is selling in Peshawar at 7 1/16 and in Dera Ismail Khan at 6½ seers per rupee.

Jammu.—The rainfall during the week was sufficient. There is no marked fall in prices. Fodder is sufficient.

Kashmir.—It is snowing and severely cold. Cattle disease prevails in Gurez taluqa. Prices are fluctuating.

Rajputana.—The weather was cold and occasionally cloudy. Slight showers and hail storms are reported in a few places. Spring crops are being weeded and irrigated. The condition of standing crops and their probable outturn are good but some damage from hail and frost is reported. Cattle are generally in good condition. Fodder and water are adequate. Prices are falling in a few places and stationary elsewhere.

Central India.—The rainfall during the week was partial in Bhopal and Baghelkhand. It was insufficient in Gwalior north. Harvesting of autumn crops continues in Indore, Malwa and the Southern States. Picking of cotton continues in Gwalior, Indore and the Southern States. Spring crops are being irrigated. Sowing and pressing of sugarcane continue in Gwalior. Land is being prepared for autumn crops in the Southern States. Standing crops and their probable outturn are fair to good. Damage is reported for want of rain to unirrigated crops in Bundelkhand and in certain parganas by frost in Malwa. Agricultural stock is generally good except for cattle disease in Gwalior, Indore, Bundelkhand and the Southern States Prices are high. Opium is being irrigated and weeded in Gwalior, Indore and Dhar.

Central Provinces.—The weather continues to be cool with occasional clouds. Only Drug received 11 cents of rain Light showers were also received in parts of Saugor, Damoh, Jubbulpore and Bilaspur accompanied by hail in the last three districts but no damage is reported. Threshing of autumn crops and picking of cotton still continue in places. Spring crops are in good condition except pulses which have been slightly affected by cloudy weather and insects. Harvesting of wheat, linseed and minor crops has begun in parts of ten districts. Agricultural stock is generally in good condition There is no deficiency of fodder or water anywhere Wheat and gram in Balaghat rose and juar in Yeotmal fell by one and two seers per rupee. Prices show a slight upward course.

Feudatory States—Spring crops are in flourishing condition.

Bombay.—Slight rain fell during the week in parts of Sind, Broach, Surat, Thana and Nasik. Crops have been damaged slightly by insects in Karachi, Sholapur and Belgaum and by frost in parts of Sind, Gujarat and Cutch and are flourishing elsewhere. Harvesting is progressing in some places. Cotton picking continues in parts of Sind, Gujarat and Satara. Fodder and water are generally adequate. Agricultural stock is generally sufficient and in good condition. Prices of food-grains are high but generally steady.

Hyderabad.—No rain fell during the week. Prospects of spring crop are fair but the crop has been damaged by insects in parts of the Gulbarga, Raichur, Mahbubnagar, Nalgonda and Warangal districts. Harvesting is generally in progress. The late rice crop is doing well and is being weeded. Stocks of fodder are sufficient. The water supply is good, except in Parbhani and Madgaon Cattle disease is prevalent in the Raichur, Mahbubnagar, Nalgonda, Warangal, Karimnagar and Adilabad districts Prices of gram continue to be high. Juar is selling at 4 seers per rupee in the Raichur district

Mysore.—The week was rainless Standing crops are in good condition. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available Prices of food-grains are high and fluctuating. Prospects of the season are good. Harvesting of rice, ragi and sugarcane is proceeding with outturn fair to good.

Coorg.—The weather during the week was dry Threshing of rice and picking of coffee continue. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder for cattle are available. The public health is fair. Prices of food-grains are high Considerable exports to Malabar of paddy continue.

Madras.—The rainfall during the week was light in southern districts. Standing crops are fair generally. The outturn of the harvested paddy and dry crops is fair generally. Fresh sowings of paddy and dry crops are progressing. The condition of cattle is generally good. Water is generally sufficient Pasture and fodder are sufficient generally. Prices are generally steady. Prospects are fair generally.

Nepal.—Report for the period from 16th October 1919 to 15th January 1920.—The rainfall for the period was nil.

October 1919. Garlic and onions were sown. Pepper was gathered and its outturn was good Land began to be prepared for the sowing of spring crops.

November 1919 Rice was harvested and the outturn was good. Oranges began to ripen. Sowings for spring crops were commenced in Nepal as also in the Terai.

DESIGNS ENTERED ON THE REGISTER.

From February 2nd to 7th, 1920.

Class 1. No. 9172. Kali Kumar Banerjee, Rampurhat, Dist. Birbhoom, January 30, 1920.

NOTICES.

THE PATENT OFFICE, 1, COUNCIL HOUSE STREET, CALCUTTA.

Public room, open 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Saturdays, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

1. All communications relating to applications for patents and for registration of designs under the Indian Patents and Designs Act (II of 1911), or in continuation of applications under the Inventions and Designs Act (V of 1888) must be made in English and addressed to the Controller of Patents and Designs, 1, Council House Street, Calcutta. Documents sent by post should be carefully packed and a full address given in all communications.

2. Directions for the guidance of inventors and others are given in the Patent Office Handbook (price one rupee) which contains the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, the Indian Patents and Designs Rules, 1912, the Indian Patents and Designs (Temporary Rules) Act, 1915, the Indian Patents and Designs (Temporary) Rules, 1915, together with current regulations and instructions. These should be consulted before an application is made to the Controller.

3. Advice. The Patent Office cannot undertake (1) to give opinions on the interpretation of Patent Law, or on the advisability of protecting inventions and designs or on their infringement; (2) to make searches in respect of information available in the public room; (3) to recommend any particular agent; or (4) to assist in the disposal of inventions. Models are not required unless specially asked for. Drawings must be on tracing cloth and the Rules and Instructions for the preparation of drawings as given in the Handbook should be strictly followed. A provisional patent cannot be secured under the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911.

4. Applicants are warned that the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, is in force in British India only, and patents granted under it do not extend to the United Kingdom or any of the British possessions. The International Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property does not include India. For information regarding patents in countries other than India application should be made to the patent offices in the countries concerned.

5. Fees are payable in cash and must be received in the Patent Office within the time allowed by the Acts. When cheques are offered in payment of fees, it must be clearly understood that the office cannot hold itself responsible for any delay that may occur in the collection of cash on the cheques; any cheque not payable in Calcutta is subject to commission for which due allowance should be made. In cases where it is not possible to have the fees handed in at the Patent Office, it is preferable to send them by money-order or postal order payable at Calcutta to the Controller of Patents and Designs, and to advise him that they have been so sent. Stamps will not be received in payment of fees.

6. Trade and property marks and names are not registered and medicines are not patented under the Indian Patents and Designs Act. There is no provision of Law in British India for their registration. Neither does this Act deal with pictures, photographs, etc., for which copyright is obtainable under the Indian Copyright Act, 1914.

7. Printed Specifications of applications, which have been accepted, are published within about three weeks after acceptance has been notified in the Gazette of India. These specifications can be purchased at the Patent Office at a uniform price of 8 annas per copy; and may be seen free of charge, together with other publications of the Patent Office, at the following places:—

12. (a) No opium shall be exported under rule 11 otherwise than—

(i) on the production before the Superintendent of Sehore of, and subject to the conditions of, a permit or other authority to import it into the State or area to which it is to be removed, granted by an authorized officer of such State or area and of a permit to export granted by an authorized officer of the Bhopal Darbar and

(ii) in packages secured by seals affixed by the Superintendent of Sehore.

NOTE.—If the said permit or other authority contains any instructions as to the method in which it should be dealt with, the Superintendent of Sehore shall cause such instructions to be complied with as far as possible.

(b) Every person by whom opium is exported under rule 11 shall be responsible for the production, within such period as may be prescribed by the Superintendent of Sehore, of a certificate granted by an authorized officer of the State or area to which the opium is exported, evidencing the arrival of the opium in such State or area.

13. Any person leaving the Cantonment of Sehore may export with him—

(a) any quantity of opium or its preparations or admixtures not exceeding that which he may lawfully possess under rule 5; or in the case of a Jagirdar of the Bhopal State holding the special pass contemplated by rule 6 not exceeding 40 tolas or such smaller quantity as may be covered by the pass.

(b) any quantity of opium lawfully in transit in his charge through the Cantonment in accordance with the conditions under which the import, export and transport of opium are permitted by clause (1) of the proviso contained in section 6 of the Central India and Rajputana Intoxicating Drugs Law, 1919, and of the pass mentioned therein.

SALE.

14. A licensed wholesale vendor may, subject to and in accordance with the conditions of his license, sell—

(a) opium in any quantity not less than half a seer to another licensed wholesale vendor;

(b) manufactured opium in any quantity not less than half a seer and not more than the purchaser is authorized to purchase to a licensed retail vendor presenting to him the permit to purchase required by rule 21;

(c) manufactured opium in any quantity not less than half a seer and not more than the purchaser is authorised to purchase to a retail vendor of the Bhopal State presenting to him the permit to purchase required by the rules promulgated in this behalf by the Darbar;

(d) manufactured opium in any quantity not less than half a seer and not exceeding the quantity which the purchaser is authorized to export to any person authorized under rule 11 to export opium;

(c) manufactured opium in any quantity not less than ½ seer to a Government Medical officer on the production of a special permit from the Political Agent in Bhopal authorizing the purchase of such opium for medical purposes.

NOTE.—Such permits shall be issued in duplicate. One copy, with the date of the purchase and the quantity of opium purchased endorsed on it by the officer to whom the opium is supplied, shall be retained by the wholesale vendor as his authority for the sale. The other, with the name of the licensed wholesale vendor, the number of his license, and the amount sold endorsed upon it by the licensed wholesale vendor and signed by him shall be returned by the Medical Officer to the Political Agent, and by him forwarded to the Bhopal Darbar.

Provided that he shall not sell to any person any preparation or admixture of opium.

15. Subject to and in accordance with the conditions of his license, a licensed retail vendor may sell to any person not being a lunatic, child under 14 years of age, or person in a state of intoxication, any quantity not exceeding 3 tolas of manufactured opium or of any preparation or admixture of opium not used for smoking.

GENERAL.

16. Nothing in these rules shall authorize the possession, import, export or sale of crude opium other than such as has been lawfully produced within the limits of the Bhopal State.

17. A licensed retail vendor will be permitted to purchase for sale under his license manufactured opium only. He will be permitted to purchase such opium only from a licensed wholesale vendor at Sehore.

18. Whenever the licensed retail vendor desires to purchase opium for sale under his license, he shall present to the Treasury Officer an application in duplicate in the following form, together with duty at the rate for the time being in force, on the quantity of opium that he desires to purchase :—

To

The Officer-in-Charge of the Treasury at Sehore.

Please to receive the sum of Rs.__________being the duty on__________seers of opium.

19. The Treasury Officer will receive the application in duplicate and the amount tendered, and, after ascertaining that the amount tendered is correct, will fill up the figures in the endorsement on both copies of the application, sign them in token of the receipt of the amount tendered, and stamp them both with the seal of the Treasury. One copy will then be returned to the applicant, the duplicate being retained in the Treasury.

20. The licensed retail vendor will then present his receipted copy of the application to the Superintendent of Sehore, who will give him a permit to purchase, retaining the receipted application as his authority for the issue of the permit. The permit will be in triplicate in the annexed form. The counterfoil will be retained by the Superintendent of Sehore and the two remaining copies given to the retail vendor.

21. The licensed retail vendor will make his purchase and will deliver one copy of the permit to the wholesale vendor from whom the opium is purchased, after endorsing on the reverse, over his signature, the date of the purchase and the quantity purchased by him. He will obtain from the licensed wholesale vendor a similar endorsement, over the vendor's signature, on the second copy and will return it within 24 hours to the Superintendent of Sehore. The Superintendent of Sehore will immediately forward for the information of the Bhopal Darbar, through the Political Agent, a certified copy of every such permit and of the licensed wholesale vendor's endorsement of the same.

22. The Political Agent may, for special reasons recorded by him in writing, authorize the Superintendent of Sehore to permit the licensed retail vendor to import from any place or places in Central India or Rajputana specified by him in this behalf, instead of purchasing it in the manner prescribed by rules 20 and 21, opium in respect of which duty has been paid by him in accordance with rule 18. All such opium shall be imported by rail in accordance with the first proviso contained in section 6 of the Central India and Rajputana Intoxicating Drugs Law, 1919, and shall, on arrival, be produced in the packages in which it was carried, together with the pass mentioned in the said proviso, for examination by the Superintendent of Sehore.

23. Licenses for the retail vend of opium and of its preparations and admixtures (not being morphia or those used for smoking) at such shops as may from time to time be established by the Political Agent, will be sold by auction by or under the orders of the Political Agent, subject to the sanction of the Agent to the Governor General in Central India, or disposed of in such other manner as may be approved by the Agent to the Governor General in Central India. The successful bidder will ordinarily be required to deposit two months' fees in advance as security for the fulfilment of the conditions of his license. Licenses shall ordinarily comprise the conditions contained in the annexed form and such other conditions as may from time to time be approved by the Agent to the Governor General in Central India, and shall ordinarily be granted for one year.

24. Returns of licenses issued, renewed or cancelled by the Bhopal Darbar under their opium rules, will be supplied periodically by the Darbar to the Superintendent of Sehore.

25. An authorized official of the Bhopal Darbar will be permitted, on previous notice being given to the Superintendent of Sehore, to inspect, check and verify the stock of opium in the possession of licensed wholesale vendors, purchasers or manufacturers, in company with an official deputed by the Superintendent of Sehore. In the event of a discrepancy between the book balance and the actual balance the latter will be certified by the official so deputed as well as by the Darbar official.

26. The duty payable on opium purchased by a licensed retail vendor for sale under his license shall be Rs. 5 per seer.

27. Nothing in these rules shall authorize the possession, import, export or sale of crude opium other than such as has been lawfully produced within the limits of the Bhopal State.

By order,
E. J. D. COLVIN,
First Assistant to the Agent to the Governor General in Central India.

License granted by the Political Agent in Bhopal, for the retail sale of opium and of its preparation and admixtures not being morphia or preparations or admixtures used for smoking, and counterpart of the same.

License to sell opium and its preparations and admixtures (not being morphia or preparations or admixtures used for smoking), by retail at the premises known as_____ situated at_____ is hereby granted to_____(hereinafter referred to as the licensee) for the term of commencing on the _____and ending on the subject to the following conditions, the infraction of any of which, or of any of the provisions of the Central India and Rajputana Intoxicating Drugs Law, 1919, or rules made thereunder by the licensee or by any person employed by him or acting under his orders, or by his authority, or with his knowledge and consent, shall render the license liable to cancellation by order of the Political Agent without prejudice to any other penalty to which the licensee or the person committing such infraction may be liable under the said Law:—

1. That the licensee shall pay to Government the sum of Rs. in the following instalments (in addition to the sum of Rs. _____being one-sixth of the sum annually payable—already deposited by the licensee, which, if it be not intermediately forfeited by the licensee for default or breach of some other condition of this license, shall be set off against the 11th and 12th instalments), viz.:—

On the 1st of * _____

* Here insert in order, the names of the 1st 10 months of the excise year and the instalments, each of which will be one-twelfth of the annual payment.

NOTE.—(1) When the period of the license exceeds one year, the instalments for all but the last two months of the period of the license will be entered, and the words "11th" and "12th" suitably replaced.

(2) In cases where Government Promissory Notes have been deposited as security, the words within brackets will be omitted, and the requisite instalments for the last two months of the excise year added to the list of instalments.

2. That the deposit mentioned in the foregoing condition shall not, in the event of default or infraction of any condition of this license, or of any of the provisions of the Central India and Rajputana Intoxicating Drugs Law, 1919, or rules made thereunder by the licensee or by any person employed by him or acting under his orders, or by his authority, or with his knowledge and consent, be reclaimable by the licensee.

NOTE.—In cases where Government Promissory Notes have been deposited as security, the following condition shall be substituted :—

That in the event of default or breach of any of the conditions of this license, or of any of the provisions of the Central India and Rajputana Intoxicating Drugs Law, 1919, or rules made thereunder by the licensee or by any person employed by him or acting under his orders, or by his authority, or with his knowledge and consent, the Promissory Notes deposited as security for the fulfilment of the conditions of this license, shall vest in Government, and shall not be reclaimable by the licensee.

3. That it shall be competent to the Political Agent, on cancellation of the license and forfeiture of the deposit, to resell the license at the risk of the licensee, and, after deducting the forfeited deposit from any loss arising from the re-sale, to recover the remainder from the licensee as if it were an arrear of land revenue, and that the licensee shall not be entitled to any portion of the profit, if any, that may arise from the re-sale.

4. That the business covered by this license shall not be sublet or transferred without the written permission of the Political Agent, nor shall an Agent be appointed, without such permission endorsed on this license, for the management of the business covered by this license. That no person suffering from leprosy or other infectious or contagious disease and no child under 14 years of age shall, under any circumstances, be employed in the transport, preparation or sale of opium or preparations or admixtures of opium or otherwise in the business covered by this license.

5. That the licensee shall not, without the permission in writing of the Political Agent, hold or acquire any interest in a license, or farm of the fees leviable on licenses, for the retail sale at Sehore of any other excisable commodity, nor shall he, without such permission, employ any person holding such an interest.

6. That the shop for which this license is granted shall, unless its closure be specially authorised by the Political Agent, be kept open throughout the year, and that a supply of opium and preparations and admixtures of opium sufficient to meet the demands of consumers shall be maintained.

7. That no opium or preparations or admixtures of opium shall be possessed or sold except such as shall have been obtained in accordance with rules made under the Central India and Rajputana Intoxicating Drugs Law, 1919, or prepared from opium so obtained that the opium offered for sale as such shall not be adulterated, and that no preparation or admixture of opium used for smoking shall be sold, nor shall any such preparation or admixture be possessed by the lincensee on the premises covered by this license.

8. That sale shall be made only at the premises for which this license is granted and no elsewhere, and that the lincensee shall not, without a pass, possess opium or preparations or admixtures of opium excepting at such premises.

9. That no opium or preparations or admixtures of opium shall be sold on the premises between 9 P. M. and 8 A. M.

10. That a signboard shall be put up in a conspicuous place outside the premises bearing the licensee's name and the designation "Licensee for the retail sale of opium and preparations and admixtures of opium."

11. That the licensee shall not permit the consumption of opium in any form at the premises covered by this license.

12. That nothing except money shall be taken in barter for opium or preparations or admixtures of opium, and that all opium or preparations or admixtures of opium sold shall be paid for on the spot in cash.

13. That not more than 3 tolas in the aggregate of opium and of preparations and admixtures thereof shall be sold to, or removed from the shop by, any person at any one time without a special permit from the Political Agent, and that no opium shall be sold at any price $\frac{\text{other}}{\text{lower}}$ than ———— per seer.

NOTE.—The last 15 words to be deleted, if it is not desired to enforce a fixed or minimum price.

14. That no opium or preparations or admixtures of opium shall be sold or in any way supplied to any Europen Non-Commissioned Officer or soldier or to any European or Eurasian being a camp follower, or to any soldiers wife or child, excepting under the written permission of the Commanding Officer of the station or of some person authorised by the Commanding Officer to grant such permission, or to any Policeman, Excise officer or Railway servant on duty, or to any insane or intoxicated person or to any child under 14 years of age.

15. That no disorderly conduct or gaming shall be allowed in the shop, that persons of notoriously bad character shall not be permitted to resort to the shop, that no person shall be harboured in the shop during the night, and that the licensee shall give immediate information to the nearest Magistrate or Police officer of the resort to the shop of any person suspected of having committed a cognizable and non-bailable offence.

16. That unless specially exempted by the Political Agent from doing so, the licensee shall keep an account showing the daily receipts and sales at his shop of opium and of each preparation or admixture of opium, and the balance in store. That the licensee shall at once produce his license and accounts (if any) for the inspection of the Political Agent or of any person generally or specially authorized by him in this behalf, and shall at all times give entry to the shop to any Police or Excise officer exercising powers not inferior to those of a Sub-Inspector of Police.

17. That no weights or measures, except such as shall previously have been approved by the Political Agent, shall be used at the shop.

18. That the licensee shall be bound, if the Political Agent so directs, to purchase, at a price fixed by the Political Agent, the residue of the previous licensee's stock of opium to the extent of two months' supply. Provided that he shall be required to purchase only such opium as shall be unadulterated and fit for human consumption.

19. This license is granted subject to the provisions of the Central India and Rajputana Intoxicating Drugs Law, 1919, and rules made thereunder. It shall have effect from the———————to the———————and unless renewed by the latter date by special order of the Political Agent, shall thereafter cease to remain in force, notwithstanding that a special order recalling it has not been issued by the Political Agent. It shall also cease to remain in force on the 1st day of any previous month in respect of which the licensee shall have failed to pay the instalment reserved by the 1st condition of this license. It shall likewise immediately cease to operate in the event of the death of the licensee during the currency of the license. It may be forfeited, by order of the Political Agent, in the event of the holder being convicted of any criminal offence.

* The figures under "Rice, husked" represent the prices of common rice.

† Figures have not so far been reported.

NOTE.—These statistics are compiled from the fortnightly returns furnished by District Officers to Local Governments and Administrations, etc. They relate to the wholesale prices in the principal markets (not necessarily district head-quarters) in each province on the last (or nearest mart) day of each fortnight.

[The figures state prices in rupees per ten maunds]

SAMPLES.

An Open General Licence has been issued which permits the free export of all bona-fide samples of prohibited goods to all destinations with which trade is now permitted. Samples exported under this licence may be used only for genuine sample purposes, i.e., for obtaining orders from foreign buyers, and may not be sold except with the written consent of the Export Licence Department, but such consent may be dispensed with when it is desired to sell the articles in the country of destination after they have fulfilled their purpose as samples. Exporters will be required to satisfy the Customs Authorities that the goods presented for export under this licence are bona-fide samples, and to make a declaration to that effect on the relative shipping documents.

This notice only applies to samples of goods which require licences for export to the particular destination concerned.

In addition, the consent of the Export Licence Department is not required for the sale of samples which, though within this scheme at the actual time they were exported, could be exported outside the scheme at the actual time of the proposed sale.

OPEN GENERAL LICENCE FOR COAL EXPORTS.

An Open General Licence has been issued, with effect from Thursday, 1st January, 1920, permitting the export of coal, coke and manufactured fuel to all destinations abroad except Russia, Germany, Hungary, Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria, subject always to the approval, previously obtained, of the Controller of Coal Mines or his duly authorised representative, and subject to shipment being made in a vessel approved by the Commissioners of Customs and Excise or their Officers.

The Customs Authorities will require pre-entry to be made in all cases; and at ports where there is a duly authorised local representative of the Controller of Coal Mines (see list below), the approval referred to above will be signified by his endorsement on the pre-entry form, which must be presented to him for the purpose before shipment.

Where shipment is proposed to be made from a port not included in the list given below, it will be necessary for application for the Controller's approval to be made to the Export Branch of the Coal Mines Department in London Shipments from all ports in the United Kingdom to the destinations excluded from the purview of the general licence must still be covered by an export licence from the Coal Mines Department.

The following are the ports shipments from which will be covered by the local representative's endorsement on pre-entry :—

District.	Controller's Representative.
All Scottish ports	Mr. W. D. Fuller, 4, Dunlop Street, Glasgow.
From Amble to Middlesbrough inclusive .	Mr. W. R. Fisher, Guildhall Chambers, Quayside, Newcastle on-Tyne.

OPEN GENERAL LICENCE FOR THE EXPORT OF INDUSTRIAL EXPLOSIVES, SMOOTH-BORE GUNS, AND MUNITIONS FOR USE THEREWITH.

An Open General Licence has been issued for the export of industrial explosives, smooth-bore guns and munitions for use therewith, to the destinations given below, to which, therefore, exports may be made subject to the usual Customs formalities without applications for specific licences to the Export Licence Department :—

British Possessions and Protectorates (see note below).

French Possessions and Protectorates (see note below).

United States of America.

South America.

Japan and Korea.

Asiatic Russia.

France, Belgium, Spain, Portugal, Greece, Italy, Serbia, Roumania, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, and Switzerland.

In accordance with Article 6, Chapter 2, of the "Arms Convention," all destinations in the prohibited areas set out in Article 6 are excepted from this Open General Licence and will still require a specific export licence for all arms, ammunition and industrial explosives.

OPEN GENERAL LICENCE FOR THE EXPORT OF AIRCRAFT, ETC.

An Open General Licence has been issued for the export of the undermentioned goods to all destinations except Russia, Germany, Hungary, Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria. Applications are no longer to be made to the Export Licence Department in respect of the export of these goods to countries other than those mentioned :—" Aeroplane engines and their component parts. Aircraft, other than balloons of all kinds, and their component parts, together with accessories and articles suitable for use in connection with aircraft."

OPEN GENERAL LICENCE FOR THE EXPORT OF PARCELS CONTAINING MISCELLANEOUS FOODSTUFFS.

An Open General Licence has been issued for the export by parcel post of parcels containing miscellaneous foodstuffs (for the personal use of the addressee and not for trading purposes) to all destinations with which trading is allowed. Applications need, therefore, no longer be submitted to the Export Licence Department in respect of the export of such parcels by parcel post.

URGENT ORDERS.

The Board of Trade, Import and Export Section, announces that, in collaboration with the Department of Overseas Trade, an arrangement has been made whereby firms receiving orders which require immediate acceptance may telegraph details of any such order to the Department of Overseas Trade in order to ascertain whether a licence will be granted for the export of the goods if the order is accepted.

In the event of an applicant being promised a licence he will be enabled to deal with the order straightaway with the knowledge that upon application being made in the proper form to the Export Licence Department the licence will be granted.

The telegrams should be addressed to "Orders, care of Advantage, Stock, London." They should give in each case in addition to the name and postal or telegraphic address of the applicant the quantity and description of the goods comprised in the order and the name and address of the ultimate consignee if the goods are destined for a neutral country. In the case of orders from Allied or British Territory or from Territory in the occupation of troops of the Associated Governments, the consignee need not be stated; and it will be sufficient merely to give the country of destination. A reply of 24 words (1/5) must be prepaid.

Applicants are requested in their own interest to confine their enquiries to orders needing a very urgent decision, since the fewer the enquiries the more promptly can answers be given.

Any subsequent correspondence that is necessary in connection with the telegraphic enquiries should be addressed to the Comptroller-General, Department of Overseas Trade (Export Facilities Section), 35, Old Queen Street, Westminster, S. W.-1.

TRANSHIPMENT IN THE UNITED KINGDOM.

The provisional approval of the Import and Export Section, Board of Trade, should be obtained before the following goods are brought to this country for transhipment:—

No. 1368-D.—The following extract from the "Board of Trade Journal," dated the 15th January 1920, is published for general information :—

GOVERNMENT NOTICES AFFECTING TRADE.

EXPORT SECTION.

CONDITION UNDER WHICH TRADING IS PERMISSIBLE WITH CERTAIN COUNTRIES.

The Board of Trade have issued the following instructions (Cmd. 512, price 1d.), dealing with trading conditions with certain countries as a result of the ratification of the Peace Treaty :—

The following notes on trading conditions as affected by the raising of the blockade, the authorisation of the resumption of trade with Germany and other countries, and the removal of United Kingdom import restrictions, are published for the information of British traders. These notes supersede those published in July and September last as Parliamentary Returns "Cmd. 274" and "Cmd. 350."

During the war it was necessary to prohibit all trading with the enemy, but the necessity for this prohibition has now ceased. It is no part of the policy of His Majesty's Government to discourage British traders from competing in the markets of the late enemy countries, and it is desirable that British traders should make every effort to secure a proper footing in Central Europe.

I.—GERMANY.

Exports.—Any goods may be sent to Germany without licence, except goods on Lists "A" and "B" of prohibited exports. Applications for export licences in respect of goods included in those Lists should be addressed to the Imports and Exports Licensing Section, 22, Carlisle Place, Westminster, S.W.1.
